

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2023 Rookie Draft Preview

I. Introduction

We made it through another season with your noble Commissioner taking the belt. We've all now taken the chance to review our teams and cut our rosters down to 25. With the NFL Draft in a few weeks and our draft in just over a month, it is the time of hopes and dreams. When people value free agent movers such as Meyers, Lazard and Penny as actual commodities. And injury plagued players like Hall, Akers and Javonte could somehow shake off the injuries and become productive once more. Or players traded to dramatically different situations can somehow become great like (possibly) Rodgers, Waller or Cooks [Spoiler – you'll all be terribly disappointed].

I thought it would be helpful to do a little review of all the teams. Is your team as good / bad as you think? Where might people need to draft some young blood to improve their team. Will you need to trade up to get your man? Does the draft matter at all and can you trade actual players to improve your team?

All these questions will not get answered and there will only be numerous other questions like: is our Commissioner deluded he can compete again? Is Chris' team any good? What is Gareth's doing? Does Ross even need a QB? One thing that is for sure – a few of us need to update the out-of-date team names / branding.

II. Rule Changes

Thank you all for agreeing to the changes to the rules last month. Updated rules are online but to confirm:

- Formal penalty structure
- An additional Flex spot and Tight End Premium scoring to be considered from the 2026 Season on.
- Trade deadline now midnight on Wednesday of Week 16.

III. 2023 Rookie Draft

The draft board (as things stand) is in the table below:

Pick	Round 1	Round 2	Round 3	Round 4	Round 5
1	Gareth	Jebus	Lee	CHRIS	CHRIS
2	ALEX	ALEX	ALEX	ALEX	Chris
3	GARETH	Alex	GARETH	GARETH	GARETH
4	NEIL	NEIL	Dave	NEIL	NEIL
5	DAVE	Gareth	Gareth	DAVE	DAVE
6	Alex	Alex	Neil	Dave	Jebus
7	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS
8	Ross	Ross	Neil	LEE	Neil
10	Ross	Neil	Ross	JEBUS	JEBUS

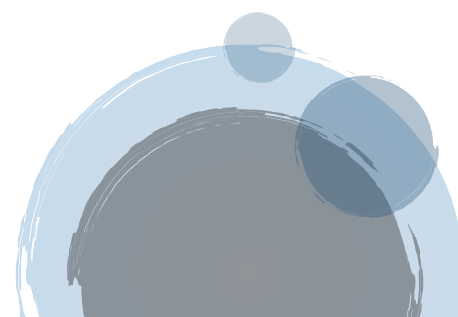

Unlike last year when there was a murky bunch, Gareth has the consensus 1.01 at his mercy with another pick at 3! There's a lot of QB needy teams as always and a decent intake of rookie QBs, a couple with very high ceilings. There's not a strong WR class but the RBs look good with one standout prospect. In a much-needed change, the TE class is looking good and maybe we can get a bit more competition at the position in the coming years.

One thing is clear right now is our draft will be dominated by three GMs – Gareth, Ross and Alex. Gareth and Ross with two first round picks, and Alex with 3 and a further 4 picks in the first 24! They hold some keys to how the draft will fall. Unless they trade it all away? Another note is that the LFC looks like it will heavily influence the draft as they hold seven of the first ten picks and 15 of the first 24 picks! That's probably not too surprising given their recent performances.

IV. 2023 Elite Players

	QB	RB	WR	TE	Total
Alex	0	0	0	0	0
Chris	1	2	0	1	4
Dave	1	1	0	0	2
Dudders	1	0	2	0	3
Gareth	0	0	0	0	0
Jebus	2	1	1	1	5
Lee	0	4	2	0	6
Mike	2	1	1	1	5
Neil	0	0	1	0	1
Ross	2	0	1	1	4

For a bit of context to some of the descriptions below I've included this table setting out how many elite players each team has. For QB, RB and WR this is any player in the top two Expert Consensus Ranked tiers. For TE it's the top tier only.

This time last year Gareth ended the no trade experiment and it seems to have paid off with the number one pick! With the 8th oldest team and a second consecutive golden turd this team could do with an injection of youth and quality. It may be a while that he stays in the doldrums though, with the prospect of winning the belt a faraway dream. No elite players at any position, and just 3 picks in the first two rounds ain't gonna fix the multitude of problems this team has. Maybe he'll trade those picks for a much-needed influx of quality, or will he be keeping that golden turd after a third straight victory?

It looks like Gareth's QB room could probably do with a bit of a refresh. It's the oldest of all teams, worst in dynasty ranks and 9th for 2023. He does have two starters at the time of writing which is some consolation. He has two top three picks so he could add two players and potentially end his QB problems for a very long time. But can he resist the temptation of Bijan? Elsewhere the disappointing Wilson of 2022 has a new coaching team who G may be hoping will improve his fortunes. Or he could just be shit again. Who knows.

In stark contrast to the rest of his team, RB is the one position which has youth on its side. What it has in youth it lacks in quality. The room is 7th in dynasty rankings and 9th for 2023. I'm sure for a third consecutive season Gareth has high hopes for Sanders, and CEH is still on one of the best offences but neither has really panned out to be a top back. He still has Javonte Williams but his knee was completely fucked so whether he returns and is good in 2023 is a big question. There's an obvious addition Gareth could make to this room but does drafting and keeping a young stud RB actually fit his team's direction right now?

Another position group, another area of need. Ranked 9th in both dynasty and 2023, WR unsurprisingly needs some long-term improvements. His aging core has low dynasty value and limited high value production. He must be considering using that second round pick on a WR that might drop to him. Or maybe he moves down the first round to pick up JSN?

At TE it's another similar story. It really is no wonder he's got that golden turd. 9th in dynasty and 8th in 2023 rankings, it's the same old story. He does have Darren Waller. Perhaps he could sell the hope of a repeat of those 2019-20 seasons and boost the long-term value of his roster?

VI. Picks #2, #6 and #9 – Kittle-less Chips – Alex – Lombardi Conference

Next up it's another shitshow LFC team but this one was deliberately burned to the ground. Alex's team is both the oldest and worst overall in dynasty and '23 rankings. He too has no elite players but seven picks in the first 24 picks gives him plenty of darts to find one along with a much-needed injection of youth. With three first round picks in the '24 draft too it may well suit Alex to have another atrocious season to make the most of all these picks. He'll probably be hoping for a repeat of the 2022 season from Chris too!

With the second pick it looks like Alex will be well placed to take his pick of the QBs this year and boy does he need one! With an average age of 32 and 9th ranked dynasty core (last for '23) and just one starter, he needs to hit on a QB of the future and then another one next year.

Another position core and this time it's bottom of the running back barrel in dynasty and '23 rankings. Another obvious area of need but Alex strikes me as a man who has a plan. I can't imagine any of those first round picks are going on a position which doesn't match his direction. But what do I know. Maybe he thinks Gibbs is the key to recurring success?

Alex's WR room is another bottom dweller in both dynasty and '23 ranking with one of the oldest rooms to boot. This WR class isn't as good as it's been in the last few years but does have some good prospects. Can we expect some of those picks to be spent on improving this receiving room?

Alex's TE core is one area his team isn't completely dogshit. At 6th in dynasty and 5th for '23 it's not great either. There is a good TE cast in the draft this year so he could add to his core to pump up this room. This also presents an opportunity for Alex to continue his sell-off. Don't want to risk making the playoffs with a good TE room.....Playoffs, as if – hahahahaha.

VII. Picks #4 – Canton Giants – Neil – Madden Conference

At pick four we have the first and worst of the MFC teams. Neil's team has remained stable keeping an overall and '23 ranking of 8th. Drawn in a tough MFC has provided the opportunity for another top four pick for Neil, let's hope he can add to that solitary elite player. Much like G and Alex, Neil's got needs more or less across the board but with just three picks in the first two rounds not a lot of capital to improve things. With highs of 2nd in '23 and 6th in dynasty rankings, WR is potentially the one position he could pass over.

Neil's QBs are ranked 8th in both dynasty and '23 and it's hard to argue with that assessment. To his credit he does have two NFL starters but unless one of them makes a gigantic and completely unexpected leap, Goff and Danny Dimes probably aren't going to give you a weekly positional advantage. Perhaps at 1.04 there will be an opportunity to add a star talent?

It's a similar story at RB. Ranked 9th in Dynasty and 6th for '23 it's not looking rosy for the Canton Giants without a substantial improvement. He wisely got rid of the aging and likely to be suspended Kamara but that just leaves him with Najee who may have found his ceiling as an RB2. At least he didn't use that previous 1.04 on Zach Wilson, eh. The fall off from there is pretty grim though – Connor on the worst team in the NFL and Jamaal Williams who's not behind that outstanding Lions O-line anymore then Gaskin and Hines - oof. Neil's got a decent candidate to sell in a rebuild or that 1.04 could provide a Gibbs shaped improvement.

WR is the first team so far to feature a top three positional core! Cooper Kupp the only elite talent on the Giants helps paper over some pretty serious cracks. Evans and Hopkins could be good if they get traded to better situations but the Cardinals shitshow and "basket case" Bucs ain't it. From there another big drop off. Is now finally the time to cash in on Kupp with the rest of the MFC still looking so strong and a playoff run looking highly unlikely?

Next up the worst TE room in the JADL. It's a good TE class so a couple of those eight picks he has to go on this area of the team, surely?

VIII. Pick #5 – Draft to the Future – Dave – Lombardi Conference

Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital
Ave Age	Rank	JDR Score	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC - DC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC

At five we have the first team who maybe suffered from the creation of the conferences. Your noble Commissioner has re-run the playoffs and Dave would've had the 1.01 had the conferences not been created. Instead, he went into the playoffs and maxed his pick at the 1.05, which of course is what he got. It's a team that's firmly in the middle of the table, ranked 5th in both dynasty and '23 ranks so he belongs in the playoffs as things stand. With the youngest team there's potential that there is room for this team to move up the ranks in '24 and '25.

Dave's QB room is still around the middle of the pack both in '22 and dynasty rankings but is an area where he has one of his two elite players. He certainly needs not worry about having starters for a good few years with five on his roster and an average age of under 25! Will Dave be tempted to pick up another one if Levis or AR15 drops to him to add to his ever-expanding collection of QBs and try to corner the market?

Dave's RB core has improved from last year. 3rd in dynasty and 5th for '23 with his other elite player, things aren't looking too bad for Dave here. A sub 24-year-old core adds to the positives but this may be more reflective of his drafting strategy than his starters ages. He successfully flipped CMC into Chubb and Breece Hall providing a solid platform but it's a little bit murky from there. Picking up Kamara for the playoff run was a flop and 'Playoff' Lenny is homeless then it's backups from there. Could that 1.05 be spent on Gibbs to push him up the '23 rankings?

The WR core looks like a needy part of his team. 8th in dynasty and 5th for '23 with no elite players could be a problem if he wants to seriously compete with Mike or the MFC. It's a shame this draft class isn't those of previous years. It seems pretty likely that JSN, Addison or Johnson will be available at 5 but JJ or Ja'Marr they are not. Could we see yet another trade from Dave to improve this room?

TE is a difficult position to crack. Without one of those elite players and no free agency to readily stream, a lot of hope is pinned on the Muth and Gesicki's new role at New England. Decent class this year so surely those 4ths go on TE darts?

IX. Pick #7 – Inch by Inch – Dudders – Lombardi Conference

Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital
Ave Age	Rank	JDR Score	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC - DC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC

3.5	6	7	3.67	5	3	4	8	9	4	3	5	9	5	5	4	6

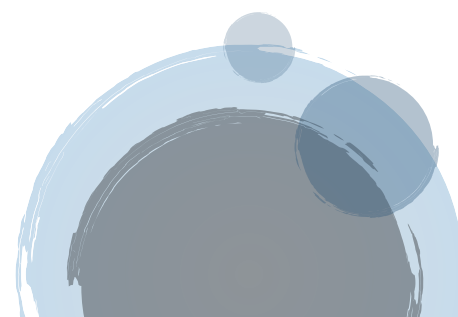

Onto pick seven and it's another LFC team. A top four finish, a bottom four pick but is it a top four team? It is in the LFC but not overall. 7th in dynasty and 6th for '23, has Dudders' competing window ended? He's got another team with some highs and lows. Highs of 3rd at QB and 4th at WR (in '23) are matched with a low of 8th at RB. With a late first there's a few needs to fill with only one pick and a quickly aging team. Perhaps he trades to improve his situation? Haha. Of course not. I feel we have another Gareth on our hands. No trading, quick decent from playoffs to golden turd unless he snaps out of it and rights the ship pretty quickly.

Dudders has three starters with two of those under the age of 25 (including an elite one) leaving him in a comfortable QB position for this year. If one of the better QBs in this draft drops to him it could give him cover for the QB fast approaching his 40s and retirement.

Dudders' RB core appears to be one of his key weaknesses and one that can be addressed in the draft. Cam Akers is young and miraculously back from an achilles rupture is his obvious top asset – that probably illustrates the problem. AJ Dillon continues to struggle to take over from Aaron Jones but Rodgers leaving may leave Love wanting a familiar face in the backfield. Zeke and Hunt are homeless and appear to have lost some 'juice'. If one of those top two RBs somehow makes it to 1.07 the temptation must be there to help support this room.

WR is another success story. Thanks to some excellent drafting, WR looks like an area where Dudders is second only to Lee in dynasty rankings and 4th for '23. He has low dynasty value but high production with Devante Adams and the youth in AJ Brown and Jalen Waddle. Could he be tempted to sell one of his two elite assets to cover the apparent holes elsewhere? I know, the new No Trade Experimenter is unlikely to consider such things. So, that 1.07 seems like a prime spot to add another good young WR.

Dudders has improved his terrible TE core according to most metric ranks but it hasn't come through trading or even waivers! It's come from his continued turtling on assets. It's not improving massively just from near the bottom to the middle. Another team that's likely going to need to spend some draft assets on this TE class.

X. Picks #8 and #10 – One Flew Over the Rookies Nest – Ross – Madden Conference

3.58	7	6	3.39	4	4	1	6	6	7	6	2	1	1	4	1	2

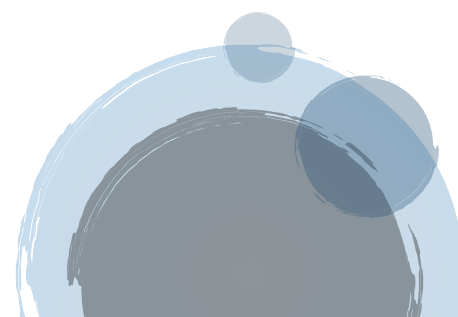

We get to pick eight and finally another MFC team and former champion with Ross. At 7th for '23 the 'former' adjective is going to be sticking around for another year but maybe the future is brighter at 4th in dynasty rankings? He does have four elite players and two 1st round picks this year so he'll need to live up to his team name and make some crazy accurate picks and hit with those rookies to improve his team.

Ross' most obvious strength comes at QB. Two elite starters but once again he has no backup leaving it ranked at 4th both in dynasty and '23. He has the picks to maybe trade up to add a third but would this be at the expense of the rest of his roster as it has been to date. He could trade one of his big two for a king's ransom and set his overall team up to be a top competitor but so far has not even countenanced the thought. A conundrum that seems like it will never be resolved and that one early belt will be the only time he ever gets to hold it.

RB is a clear area of weakness in Ross' team. 6th in age, dynasty and '23 rankings he's got to do something to stop the rot. Trading Chubb away may have been a mistake if he wants to compete this year since all his remaining RBs have question marks against them. The Pats will almost inevitably add an RB to the room at the draft and a pass catcher at that. Dobbins has one leg. The rest are committee backs and backups. Surly he needs to draft here to improve his roster. If he wants to compete he'll need to trade for the elite asset he's sorely missing.

A very similar story at WR. 4th from a dynasty perspective, mainly down to the elite asset in Lamb and the hope of young Jameson, but 7th for '23. Ross has several WRs in his core but only one of top value and one on a new team having had nearly 2 years out and then a whole load of inconsistent WR3/4s. In a position known for its inconsistency, drafting in this area could be a must given his picks and the WR prospects available.

Unlike the rest of his team, TE is where he has an old elite asset. It's the right asset which could secure him another victory and win back that coveted belt but it doesn't seem to marry-up with the rest of his team. A trade here is possible to reinvigorate his team elsewhere but does he think he's competing?

XI. Pick #11 – Raiders of the Lost Yard – Jebus – Madden Conference

Another MFC team and the champ has a pick higher than the 4th round! He was at no. 1 for '22 and got an ending that Watson prefers at the end of a massage but what does that team look like now? Lower half in dynasty at 6th and 4th for '23. It looks like it will be a struggle to repeat but he is one of only two teams with elite players at every position group. Given his team's age profile, 9th overall, maybe he should be thinking of trading those elite assets to teams in need and accepting his competing window is all but closed?

Jebus was a very lucky boy with that QB core last year with Brady coming out of retirement but now is looking a bit short. Like Ross, he has two elite players but one of those doesn't have a contract and he's seemingly got no backups! Should he be trading up to get a QB from this draft or splitting an elite asset into two starters?

The elderly stateman of the RB core with an average age of nearly 27 years old, it's not surprising that it's middling in dynasty rankings but 3rd for '23. A long-term injection of youth and quality here is a must but with just one pick in the first 3 rounds are there needs elsewhere? He could always trade that elite asset but could he still compete with Penny and Foreman frequenting his starting lineup!?

Another old core with his WRs and another challenge on direction. Ranked 6th for dynasty and 5th for '23, it's not looking as rosy as it did 12 months ago, It's yet another area where an injection of youth has to be long-term aim. Sure, Hill will be elite for another year but after that can you rely on Cooper with the tiny-toweled philanderer? Who's throwing Deebo and Hollywood the ball? Do Thielen and Cooks still have anything left to give on their new teams?

Jebus' TE core is a contrast to the rest of his team. Not a basement dwelling age profile and 2nd for both dynasty and '23 rankings. This all hangs on what his QB1 does though. If Lamar leaves the Ravens will MAndrews still be the same elite pass catcher?

At 19 we have the last of the LFC teams. A team worthy of its place amongst the MFC teams surrounding it. What a team Mike has assembled. Ranked dynasty No. 1 at QB and TE and overall for dynasty and '23. It's built to last too with a top four age profile. This hasn't been at the expense of competing now either. He's ranked top three in every position group and 1st at QB and TE. He's basically already won the LFC title again and is in with a shout of the championship once again. His draft capital isn't looking too hot at 8th but that's the problem finishing so high the season before. With elite players at every position it all looks good for Mike.

While Ross had the top two QBs, Mike's core has leapt ahead. It goes without saying that Mahomes is at the top of his tree but with another top 3 QB in Hurts and the punch-drunk Tua providing cover, Mike's pretty settled at QB. The 2.09 is unlikely to add further depth here but it doesn't need it.

If there's a weakness to Mike's team it may be at RB. Sitting at 3rd for '23 the weakness is relative. He obviously has JT as his hero back but after that it's not as strong. Swift finished at RB21, Monty RB24 and Pierce RB28. Nothing to sniff at but two of those are now on the same team and Pierce must end up facing a bit of competition after the draft.

At 3rd in dynasty and 2nd for '23 is this an area Mike needs to strengthen? Probably not but that may not stop him. He has an elite piece in Diggs but no other WR1s. A couple of WR2s and a couple of WR3s. Should he add another WR1 to push him over the top?

With Hockenson backed up by Pitts, Mike's TE core is not a concern for him.

Another high pick, another MFC team. Unlike the last two MFC teams, Lee's team is very much in a position of strength. He has maintained his overall ranked no. 2 team in dynasty and '23 with the third youngest team bolstered by six elite players, the most of any team. He's assembled this through some very smart draft picks and trading away his 23 and 24 firsts, seconds and thirds. But are there any weaknesses to this team?

Yes – it would appear that Lee's QB core is not as good as other top teams. Whilst several teams he's competing with have more than one top 12 QB he has maybe one on the fringe. Despite some rather optimistic claims to have six starters, I would more cautiously make it four and two of those are not exactly setting the world alight in Baker Mayfield and Kenny Pickett. Derek Carr is probably settled in as a QB2 and some weeks Cousins is a QB1 but sometimes he's not. But what about Trey Lance he could be Lamar Jackson....or Jalen Hurts....or Daniel Jones...or Marcus Mariota. We still don't know yet and his own GM says the job is Purdy's to lose. Maybe he'll be traded and he may get to show if he's Lamar or Zach Wilson. If it were me, I'd be looking to sell a couple of those elite assets he has elsewhere to push this well constructed team over the top.

Lee's RB core is top and it's not even close. With four elite assets he'll surely be looking to make the most of that extra flex spot and may even consider using the superflex spot, such is the not-so-hot nature of his QBs! There's an obvious excess here which could be used to support strengthening in areas of need.

Once more, Lee's WR core is top of the tree and he can smugly relax knowing he's got the youngest and best WR core. With the top two elite assets and another WR1 in his pocket, is this an area he could use to support strengthening elsewhere?

Another potential area of weakness, Lee's TE core ranks 4th in dynasty and 5th for '23. Maybe some investment would be wise but he has last years TE7, TE11 and TE12 so maybe he can just stream it this year?

Probably a team not really worth doing a draft preview as Chris has gone for an extreme version of #fuckthosepicks but let's do it anyway for completeness. At 3rd in dynasty and '23 rankings, Chris has slowly built up a competitive team. It's also pretty young at second overall and has top four ranked dynasty cores across the board and top two for '23 except for one glaring hole.

Besides Mike's illustrious QB core, Chris has the second strongest QB core in both dynasty and '23 rankings. He's got one elite player in Joe Burrow but I wonder if he has any short term concerns with the teeny-toweled twat and the injured would be pro-gamer. Watson seemed to make the Browns worse than Brissett, or maybe was mega rusty after being off for two years and Kyler has a knackered knee. Not great for a run orientated undersized QB. The fact the Cardinals seem to be tanking too means they may not be in any rush to bring their QB back.

Chris' starting RBs demonstrate his commitment to competing for the 2022 season. But it's not the 2022 season anymore is it. Cook and Henry are certainly big names but they aren't getting any younger and are well past traditional RB peak age. Both also have health concerns and may not be on their respective teams come 1 September. Saying that his core is ranked 3rd in dynasty and 2nd for '23 so Kenneth is doing a lot of heavy lifting carrying that room on his back. Beyond that is a whole lotta nothin' so Chris will be praying for separate bye-weeks and no injuries.

Now to the elephant in the room. Chris' WR core is an interesting one. It's young and ranked 4th for dynasty but 8th for '23 and there's certainly no elite players. If Tee Higgins was the WR1 on a team it may be a different story but he ain't and his colleague seems to be Burrow's brother from another mother. After that it's Kirk who's role will be diminished with Ridley coming in; Jeudy who has a shit QB or may not be on the team; the still injured and older Michael Thomas; then a load of WR4s. If he wants to compete he needs to improve this room but with no 1st round picks left he'll have to trade a star to do it.

One word describes Chris' TE core – shallow. He has just two players. One injury and he's in real trouble. He has the injury prone Kittle, so I'm sure he'll be fine. In contrast to Lee he'll be willing on Brock Purdy's continued tenure at QB. If Kittle resumes his blocking duties for Lance then he'll be relying on Noah Fant.

XV. Conclusion

Have I been too harsh? Not harsh enough? Are the rankings actually worth the data they're saved in? I hope I have inspired some contemplations of rosters which will result in some great trading before, during and after our draft on 12th May. I'm very much looking forward to the NFL Draft and then our third rookie draft which hopefully will be 100% in person and not disrupted by any medical emergencies! Plans are afoot so I can do my best Goodell impression and big hugs all round.
