

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – Regular Season Review

I. General

We made it through week 14 with yet another record-breaking season! Thank you all for being so active and engaged in the league and for making the moves to keep the league, well parts of it, competitive.

And competitive it was in the LFC. It was an exciting end to the LFC with a literal championship match between the breectie boys and comeback team of the year leader, the Toolsy Prospects. And wouldn't you believe it – the LFC trophy and bye-week went to Alex! What a rookie whisperer he is! It was also close in the MFC with a few games to go but in the end your noble Commissioner and Lee had a good gap on the rest of the conference, and league really, with your noble Commissioner coming out on top.

Congratulations must go to Gareth, Neil, Rich and Ross; you're all in with a shout of picking up that coveted No. 1 pick in the Shedeur Bowl! Commiserations go to Ross who missed out on the playoffs for the first time. The competition in the MFC was just too much for him. This leaves just one team to never experience the joys of the toilet bowl – your noble Commissioner.

Congratulations to your noble Commissioner and Lee who remain the top 2 but with even higher scores in the all-time scoring seasons. Chris, Mike and Alex enter at 8, 9 and 10, respectively. Dave would be 11th. This isn't too surprising given the TEP introduction but an achievement for them all nonetheless.

We also had some record-breaking weekly scores. The long-standing record from Week 5 of 2021 of 209.52 was finally beaten by your noble Commissioner.....twice! The record now sits at 231.64 which was set in Week 7 (the other score of 226.68 was set in Week 1)! The 4th best score was put up in Week 11 with 197.48 by Lee who also entered the charts at 5 in Week 14 and 7 from his Week 2 score. Week 8 also featured the 6th top score by Mike who scored 194.04. It now needs a score in excess of 190.28 points to enter the top ten!

At the other end, despite having an extra flex spot and TEP scoring, somehow 'we' had one of the lowest ever weekly scores this season. Kudos to Gareth on that 63.08 total in Week 6.

Let's have a look at how we all performed, hand out some awards and then reflect on what the playoffs might hold.

II. Mandos (Gareth) – LFC 5th – Seed #10

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
1	13	1,360.20 (10)	2,094.78 (10)	-734.58 (10)	1,726.10 (10)	365.90 (4)	78.8 (10)	141.40 (10)	63.08 (10)	90.85 (10)	123.16 (9)

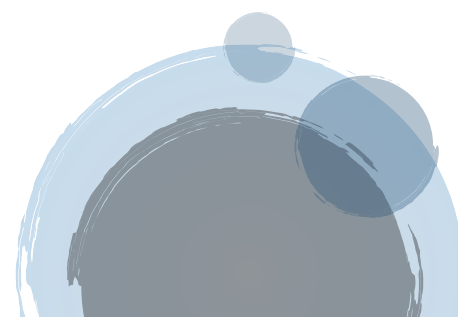

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
61	10 th	10 th	43 (-18)	10 th	-	-

Just look at those tables. If Gareth was a gymnast, he'd be delighted with those ranks! However, this is dynasty fantasy football and we are a 10 man league. The pre-season projections were right in this instance, but as the man himself said, you "don't need a complex algorithm to hit this prediction for 2024". It seems like this was deliberate but was it??? A little bit yes, a little bit no. He's sold his old players and made some high draft picks. Maybe we just have to wait a couple of years, like we did with Alex (more on that later). With the exception of week 14, things seemed to be improving towards the end of the season so maybe there's light at the end of the tunnel? It would also be remiss of me to mention the defensive difficulties Gareth has had this year. He conceded almost 2,100 points, more than any team in the LFC scored and only two teams scored more than in the history of the league. That's a uphill battle no matter how shit your team is.

While, Gareth's team was beset by injuries to his side with Richardson, Christian Watson, Minshew and Hill all spending periods out, he wasn't any worse of than other sides. Also, it's not an all-star list, is it?

As the league's lowest actual and potential points scorer, it'll come as no surprise that Gareth's players had the second fewest top scoring appearances in the weekly awards with four top scorers and four benchwarmers. His ability to pick players has gone downhill though as he didn't pick up a best manager once and 'won' the worst manager eight times!

Gareth's Mandos have seemingly hit the bottom of the curve and surely with yet more high picks we'll see those fortunes improve next year? One thing is for certain – the Commish will have to stomp up for a new loser of all losers trophy if G wins it again this year.

III. Inch by Inch (Dudders) – LFC 4th – Seed #9

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
4	10	1,678.04 (9)	1,815.14 (1)	-137.10 (8)	1,894.16 (9)	216.12 (1)	88.6 (2)	160.26 (7)	84.56 (8)	124.50 (9)	125.94 (8)

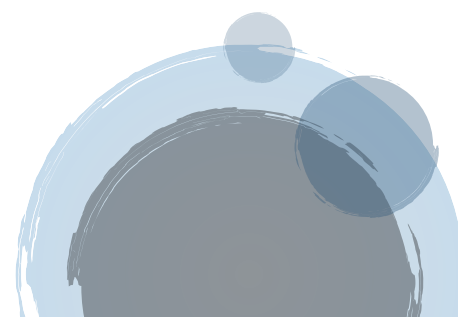

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
67	9 th	=6 th	52 (-15)	9 th	-	-3

We move onto another LFC team and a first appearance for Dudders in the toilet bowl since our inaugural season. In fact the last three season's he's finished 2nd, 4th and 3rd. I suppose with so little trading the team was bound to run out of steam and some point and here we are. Pre-season expert predictions were spot on but the Jebus Ranking™ was way out. His defence has been excellent this year, conceding just over 1,800 points – a bit concerning then that he has a negative points difference.

Unlike previous years, he's been less lucky with injuries this year losing a significant amount of players to injury and filling his IR for most of the season. His running back room hit hardest. But when your starters were Akers, Ekeler and Zeke Elliot, there probably wasn't much hope from the start.

Rich's players featured infrequently appeared in the top scoring position weekly awards. He won just three, the fewest in the league. With so many mediocre players on his bench he also didn't take the weekly benchwarmer 'awards' regularly with just two, the fewest again. This poor bench shined as he consistently selected a similar starting lineup which won him best manager six times, three times that of his closest competitor. Unsurprisingly he never won worst manager.

Rich's team he has every chance of taking home the number one pick if he can continue his Week 14 score. But if it's from any other week he may be trying to avoid the golden turd.

IV. Canton Giants (Neil) – MFC 5th – Seed #8

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
4	10	1,769.70 (8)	1,973.80 (9)	-204.10 (9)	2189.06 (8)	419.36 (7)	80.8 (9)	169.12 (7)	91.30 (7)	125.28 (8)	121.15 (10)

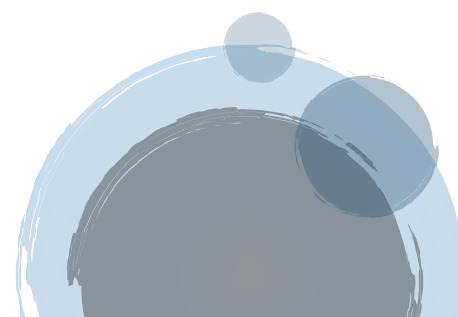

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
76	6 th	8 th	54 (-22)	8 th	-2	-

Our first MFC entry is Neil. Already suffering from a very competitive conference, he was always going to find it difficult to meet the expert predictions of 8th (the Jebus Rankings™ were spot on though). It's taken a while for those top picks of his to get going and that's left his team to suffer a bit. Another high pick this year means he'll be able to add to that Stroud/Williams QB core to provide a solid base for competing in future. But for now, things don't look too rosey.

Neil's not had too many injuries which has helped in getting those four victories but some key injuries at the wrong times has hurt him. An important lesson about depth perhaps?

Neil's players have occasionally featured in the top scoring position weekly awards with seven. He's not picked well and his bench took home 10 of these weekly 'awards'. In fact he's picked so badly he's never won best manager but worst manager the second highest with three.

Neil's season has every chance to end with a massive positive if Stroud can find his form from last season and Caleb can keep enjoying playing ball. He's got himself a lottery ticket for the 1.01 and we'll see how far he can go. One thing for certain, he'll be hoping that golden turd doesn't adorn his mantelpiece for another 12 months.

V. The Rookies Nest (Ross) – MFC 4th – Seed #7

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
6	8	1,863.22 (7)	1,953.14 (8)	-89.92 (7)	2,275.76 (6)	412.54 (6)	81.9 (7)	178.58 (5)	78.48 (9)	131.42 (7)	133.60 (7)

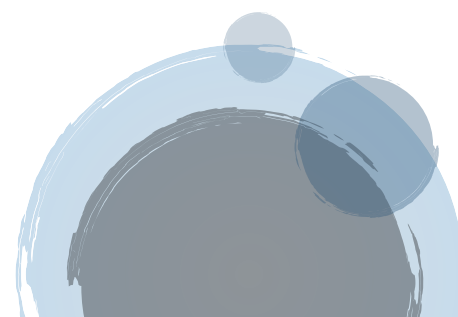

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
86	5 th	5 th	75 (-11)	7 th	-2	-2

After five long seasons He's finally made it.....to the toilet bowl. The wheels have really come off Ross' team this year with some low scores which would have been much much worse had it not been for Josh Allen. He's bucked the pre-season rankings but in the wrong direction but maybe he has hope for that 1.01 so he can make another one of his fabulous rookie picks like.....erm.....there must be one since the maiden draft, right?

The rookies, sorry, chicken's final came home to roost for Ross as his usual injury lucky finally ran out. That paper thin squad exposed for what it was this year. Will the lesson be learned or will Ross' attendance at the toilet bowl become a regular thing, like Gareth?

Ross has hauled in nine top scorers awards – unsurprisingly, half of these were from Josh Allen. Unusually, his bench has been fairly good picking up 11 benchwarmer 'awards'. Going with, those benchwarmers is a man who can't decide who to pick in any given week is his low pick ranking a seven and two worst manager awards. He did have one good week though which accounts for his lone best manager award.

Going into the toilet bowl, head hung in shame, he must fancy his chances of taking the 1.01. I mean he's always confident isn't he? Does his team actually stand a chance though?

VI. Tompa Bay Bucs (Mike) – LFC 3rd – Seed #6

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
7	7	1,978.50 (5)	1,862.22 (4)	116.28 (3)	2,351.46 (5)	372.96 (5)	84.1 (4)	194.04 (3)	108.16 (2)	135.55 (6)	136.92 (6)

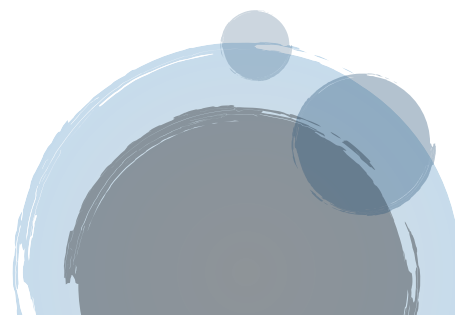

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
98	2 nd	1 st	80 (-18)	6 th	-4	-5

Now the losers are out of the way we move onto the winners. But the first entry, from the LFC of course, is the former back-to-back LFC champion! Mike has made no changes to his team over the summer and what is pretty much an unchanged team has led to a fall in results. Teams are flying past the Bucs as they stand still, regressing even. He might have been right to think he could rest on his laurels from pre-season predictions but they've been wildly out. However, for Mike, maybe a change in regular season results might make a change to his final finish?

Like so many teams, Mike's has been hit by injuries, keeping that IR full for most of the season.

Mike's side has had a high floor in points, coming second at 108.16 points but his players have not been those elite players scoring exceptional numbers. His players have rarely been the top scorer in any one position only picking up seven of these weekly awards, third fewest. But he did leave quite a few points on his bench taking the weekly 'awards' 10 times, third most! Mike's been the 4th best picker, and picked up the best manager award just once but at least he was never worst manager.

Going into the playoffs, Mike's team has to play Week 15 for the first time in three years but is more or less healthy across most position groups. Having not won a conference, he's got as good a chance as anyone of emulating what his precious Bucs used to be and coming home with the big prize.

VII. breecetie boys (Dave) – LFC 2nd – Seed #5

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
8	6	1,949.44 (6)	1,839.78 (3)	109.66 (4)	2,394.52 (4)	445.08 (9)	81.4 (8)	171.56 (6)	97.34 (6)	143.23 (5)	138.55 (5)

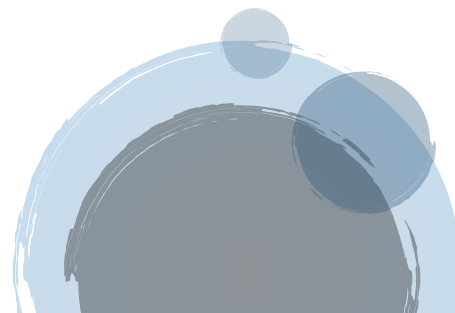

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
91	4 th	4 th	71 (-20)	5 th	-1	-1

At fifth we have our penultimate LFC team, who started the season 5-0 then went on to win just three of the remaining nine games. This seems to be because he doesn't seem to know what his best team is and has left nearly 450 points on his bench! He unsurprisingly fell slightly below his pre-season projections Dave's trading has slowed in pace – has this been his problem?

In the story of 2024, and like most everyone else, Dave's team was beset somewhat by injuries, particularly at QB.

Dave fell a little below expectations probably because his players rarely feature in the top scoring position only picking up eight of these weekly awards in skill positions. The 450 points on his bench is accounted for with seven benchwarmer 'awards', no best manager awards (for the second consecutive season) and one worst manager award.

Going into the playoffs, Dave's team is ready to go back into battle with Mike. His QB situation seems a ropery but he has the advantage of the experience of winning when it matters, will that help him take the big prize for the first time since we introduced conferences?

VIII. Falcons (Chris) – MFC 3rd – Seed #4

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
8	6	2,015.72 (3)	1,911.58 (6)	104.14 (5)	2,262.54 (7)	246.82 (2)	89.1 (1)	188.54 (4)	102.14 (4)	142.39 (4)	160.44 (3)

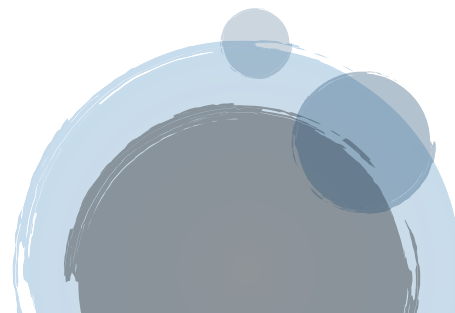

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
75	7 th	=6 th	88 (+13)	4 th	+3	+2

Our third MFC team comes in at fourth, and a first appearance in the playoffs since the inaugural season! The (re?)build is finally showing results. Dale Winton's intrepid team of crooks, sex offenders and King Henry made a good mid-season push to get him in the playoffs, outscoring the whole of the LFC in the process. But why of wise and noble Commissioner was your projection so wrong, I hear you all ask.

Well for starters he's suffered slightly fewer injuries than many teams, with the exception of the tiny towelled twat, which actually did Jerry Jeudy a massive favour!

Also ,Chris has been our best picker getting over 89% of his potential points, missing out on just 250 points. This won him best manager twice and he was never worst manager. It also meant he took home just 3 benchwarmer 'awards', It wasn't just that though, Chris' bandits featured in a top scoring position awards nine times, the third highest in the league.

Going into the playoffs with the third highest form in the league, he'll be hopeful that he can maintain his underdog story and create a fairytale ending with a ~~supermarket~~ sweep into the history books.

IX. J J F J (Lee) – MFC 2nd – Seed #3

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
11	3	2,205.66 (2)	1,915.02 (7)	290.64 (2)	2,653.68 (1)	448.02 (10)	83.1 (5)	197.48 (2)	99.18 (5)	144.75 (2)	171.56 (1)

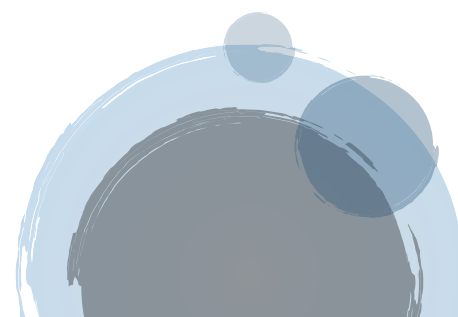

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
100	1 st	3 rd	93 (-7)	2 nd	-1	+1

At third seed (but second in record) is our penultimate MFC team, the Boy Scouts. It's been a great season for Lee with three 190+ points scores, record potential points and 11 wins. Any other year he'd be miles ahead of the rest of the MFC and league. He very nearly made the expert prediction and exceeded the Jebus Rankings™.

It's not been a season without its challenges though. Injuries have befallen his team, not least to any running back that the 49ers put anywhere near a field. Imagine if CMC had been fit!?

His players have outperformed themselves with 15 weekly top scorers – the joint most. However, an inability to pick his best lineup, coming in fifth in that regard, means he amassed 450 points on his bench leading to 14 benchwarmer 'awards', the second most in the league and two worst manager awards (he won none).

He's firmly in the playoffs once again and will be determined to take the best form team in the league to the final and take home the belt. He's free of the league leader curse but is still cursed with less than elite QBs. This leads him to be behind in projections in Week 15 against a team with at least one elite QB. Will this be his Achilles heel or will he finally turn this great regular season team into a great championship winning team?

X. Toolsy Prospects (Alex) – LFC Champion – Seed #2

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
9	5	1,982.40 (4)	1,886.26 (5)	96.14 (6)	2,412.18 (3)	429.78 (8)	82.2 (6)	165.52 (8)	103.38 (3)	143.87 (3)	145.81 (4)

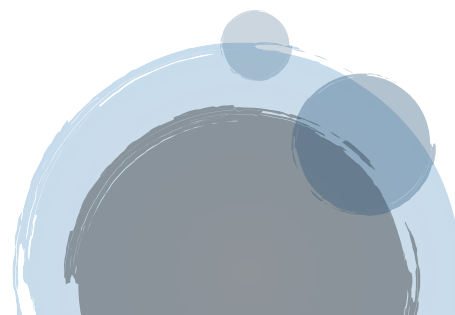

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
67	8 th	9 th	75 (+8)	3 rd	+5	+6

Well, what can I say about Alex's season? Talk about destroying expectations, it looks like Alex is nearly back to his 2020 form! He beat his all-time points scored and potential points records and his team is built for the future. He's gone from an all-time record of 18 losses (including Week 1 this year) to the top of the LFC, a Week 15 bye, and a shot at the belt!

Alex's team did again suffer injury but no worse than any other team in the league given the state of injuries this year.

His players matched last year's consistency; they were consistently good this year though. However, they weren't consistently great with just eight top positional scorers but if you take out kickers and defences then he had just five. I suppose it's a positive he didn't leave that many points on his bench only taking the weekly benchwarmer 'awards' nine times. He missed out on nearly 430 points so his 6th best pick accuracy means there might be much more to come from this team in future years too.

So, the commitment to future success seems to be finally paying off! I think this has come as much of a surprise to Alex as to the rest of us. His success may have come early but that doesn't mean that he's not in with a shot of the belt. 4th in form coming into the playoffs gives him a good a shot as anyone.

XI. Raiders of the Lost Yard (Jebus) – MFC Champion – Seed #1

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low	Median	Form
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
12	2	2,275.84 (1)	1,827.00 (2)	448.84 (1)	2,632.72 (2)	356.88 (3)	86.4 (3)	231.64 (1)	121.50 (1)	157.83 (1)	167.67 (2)

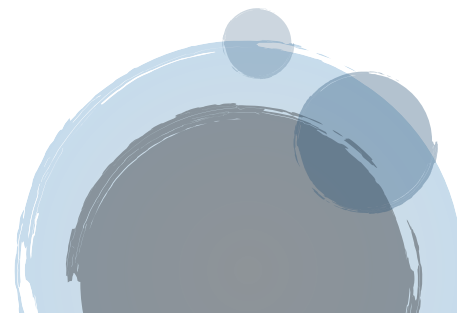

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
94	3 rd	2 nd	100 (+6)	1 st	+2	+1

Last but not least, the MFC Champion and what has been statistically, the best team we’ve seen, even beating the 2021 team, which also went 12-2 but lost in the playoffs. With an average of 16.75 points per player per game and a top score of over 230 points, will we see a team this good again? And can it be sustained to take the belt?

Like many teams he’s had a few injuries to some starters (and those feeding his starters) but not as many as other teams helping to sustain the team week in, week out.

With a few big-name stars, particularly Saquon Barkley (thanks again Dave), it is no surprise that Jebus’ players have regularly featured in the top scoring position weekly awards. He’s won 15 of these, the joint most in the league. Even though he was one of the better picker in the league – earning two best manager awards along the way – his bench still took the most benchwarmer ‘awards’ with 15!

As with many others, Jebus has sacrificed the farm to build this dynasty. Can it now go all the way and three-peat? Can it also be the first league winner to take the belt? He’s got the pedigree to do it but will probably need another good dollop of luck. What he does with this team of old men is probably best to be asked once the season is over.

XII. Awards

So to our end of regular season awards. I've given you a few updates of progress along the way but who are the managers who went the extra mile to pick up the awards?

LFC Winner

Alex

MFC Winner

Your noble Commissioner

Top Scorer

Your noble Commissioner – 2,275.84

Followed by Lee (2,205.66) and Chris (2,015.72).

Top Week Scorer

Your noble Commissioner – 231.64

Followed by your noble commissioner (226.68) and Lee (197.48).

Best Defence

Rich – 1,815.14

Followed by your noble Commissioner (1,827.00) and Dave (1,839.78).

Bestballer

If we had been playing Bestball and your best lineup had played every week the league winner would have been:

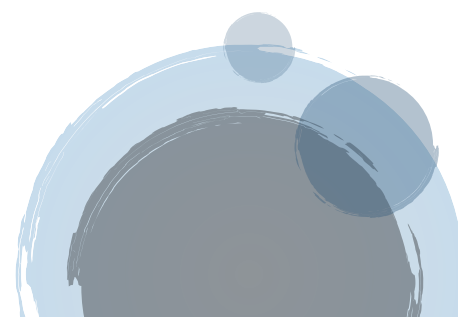

Lee – 2,653.68

Followed by your noble Commissioner (2,632.72) and Alex (2,412.18).

Worstballer

Bottom of the bestball pile (and would be No.1 pick winner)?

Gareth

Followed by Rich and Neil

Overachiever

Who picked up the greatest number of overachiever awards?

Alex and Lee (3)

Wisest Manager

Who picked their closest to optimal team?

Chris – 89.1%

Followed by Rich (88.6%) and your noble Commissioner (86.4%)

Clueless Manager

Who basically picked their team at random?

Gareth

Followed by Neil and Dave

Fine Margins

By winning the most games by a fine margin (3):

Your noble Commissioner and Dave

Fine Loser

By losing the most games by a fine margin (4):

Neil

Biggest Winner

By winning the most games by a large margin (6):

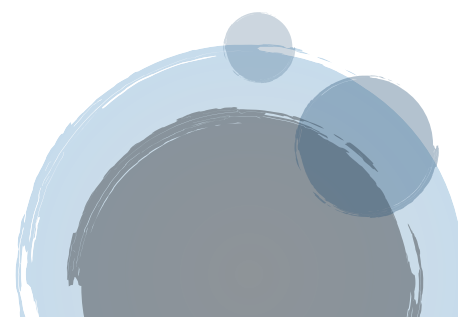

Lee

Biggest Loser

By losing the most games by a large margin (6):

Gareth

Followed by Neil and Ross (2)

MVP Picker

They drafted studs who outperformed all their positional counterparts the most:

Your noble Commissioner and Lee – 15

Followed by Chris and Ross (9)

~~Best Bench~~ Poorest Picker

They drafted studs but just couldn't fit them into their table topping teams:

Your noble Commissioner - 15

Followed by Lee (14) and Mike, Neil and Ross (10)

XIII. Conclusion

It's been another record breaking season. We've seen fortunes rise and fall and a lot of injuries throw a spanner into some carefully laid plans.

There was shimmers of light near the end for the future of Mandolor; Rich is showing us just what you can't achieve by literally improving your team Inch by Inch; the future in Canton seems to be Giant which proves how important making the right QB pick is; those Rookies don't seem to be flying from the nest very well, maybe he needs some new scouts; Mike seems to covet his players as he does his outdated team name, perhaps it's time to retire his approach like his team name; the Felons seems to be at a threshold of a breakout season but will they choose reform or to reoffend; Dave's team seems to follow the form of whatever namesake brand he chooses; J J is back scoring and the Fresh Jameis back in the lineup – can this team finally take the belt; Alex has made the most of the tools he has, pushing his prospects into stardom...and beyond?; and, can the Raiders go that last yard and solidify his dynasty with the three-peat?

XIV. Playoffs Round 1

At the bottom end of the league is our battle for the top picks. Rich absolutely smashed Gareth last week but with the opportunity to steal the 1.01 up for grabs and the bye-weeks gone – which part of the LFC will be battling for the turd and which for a shiney new toy to waste in their meagre teams?

In the MFC we, the Rookies make their first toilet bowl appearance against the veteran shitter in Neil. Neil took first blood last week and they'll be looking to repeat last years success and get that precious 1.01. Could the disaster get even worse for Ross and he be facing the prospect of a turd. Does it matter when his picks play about 10mins of football every two years anyway?

Not fighting at the top are Alex and your noble Commissioner who are sunning themselves for week 15. Less stress for them but there's still that worry that their players will be playing and it doesn't appear anyone is safe from injury this year. As we all know the league winners never take home the belt so let's have a look at our final four:

In the LFC, it's Mike against Dave. Their first ever playoff matchup! Dave will be wanting to prove that his team doesn't suffer from a premature performance peak and try to finally get beyond mid-table since conferences were introduced. For Mike, he'll be seeking to make the final once more but with a different result. The curse has been lifted and his team in good form. It's a tasty wildcard matchup.

In the MFC, it's our third Boy Scout vs Felon faceoff. The light fighting the dark. Good vs evil. Mediocre QBs vs Good QBs. Great WRs vs average WRs. A battle of the builds for the ages. Who will win – the football gods will decide

Good luck to everyone!

