

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2025 Rookie Draft Preview

I. Introduction

We made it through another season with your noble Commissioner yet again taking the belt. With our draft in a couple of weeks, it is the time of hopes and dreams. When people value free agent movers such as Adams, Kupp and Najee as actual commodities. And injury plagued players like CMC, Hollywood and Rice could somehow shake off the injuries and become productive once more. Or players traded to dramatically different situations can somehow become great like Metcalf, Jordan Mason or Geno Smith [Spoiler – you'll all be terribly disappointed].

I thought it would be helpful to do a little review of all the teams. Is your team as good / bad as you think? Where might people need to draft some young blood to improve their team. Will you need to trade up to get your man? Does the draft matter at all and can you trade actual players to improve your team?

All these questions will not get answered and there will only be numerous other questions like: is our Commissioner deluded he can compete again? Is Chris' team any good? Which team does Mike support? One thing that is for sure – a few of us need to update the out-of-date team names / branding.

II. Rule Changes

This year we have not agreed to a number of changes of rules as we let the changes of the last few years settle in. What we did agree was:

- The introduction of Auto-substitutes from the 2025 season.

III. 2024 Rookie Draft

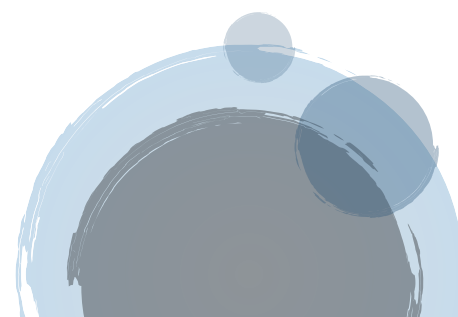

The draft board (as things stand) is in the table below:

Pick	Round 1	Round 2	Round 3	Round 4	Round 5
1	ROSS	Dave	Neil	Dave	Lee
2	GARETH	GARETH	GARETH	GARETH	Neil
3	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS
4	NEIL	NEIL	Mike	NEIL	NEIL
5	Alex	Neil	Mike	Mike	Neil
7	DAVE	Jebus	DAVE	DAVE	Alex
8	Gareth	Dudders	Dave	LEE	LEE
9	ALEX	Neil	Lee	ALEX	ALEX
10	Mike	Mike	JEBUS	JEBUS	JEBUS

All caps denotes own pick

Last years' draft was incredibly strong which Alex took full advantage of propelling himself into the Championship game! While this draft is not as strong all-round there are still some aspects and players worth your careful consideration. There was a QB going at the top of the NFL draft but we may not see the very high fantasy ceilings of past years. As always there's a lot of QB needy teams in the JADL so could we see some movement in the first round? There's not a strong WR class but the RBs look very good with two or three standout prospects and another potential 'generational talent'? There's a good few teams who need RBs and are, presently, at the top of the draft so could we see another team 'do an Alex'? The TE class is decent again with a couple of outstanding prospects.

Unlike the last couple of drafts, there's no single GM dominating the first round. Ross has the all-important 1.01 but nothing else. Alex has halved his first rounders from four to 'just' two but his success of previous years means they're not as early as usual. Mike is in a similar position after poorly gambling on the fall of the mighty Raiders! They both hold some keys to how the draft will fall. Unless they trade it all away? Another note is that the LFC once again looks like it will heavily influence the draft as they hold eight of the first ten picks and 17 of the first 24 picks! That's probably not too surprising given their recent performances.

IV. 2025 Elite Players

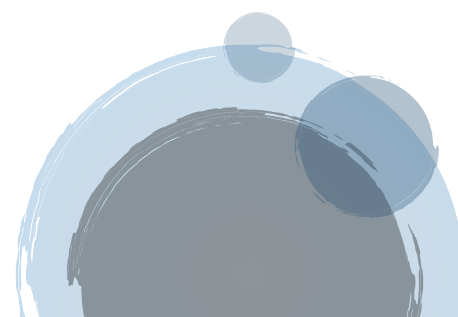

For a bit of context to some of the descriptions below I've included this table setting out how many elite players each team has. For QB, RB and WR this is any player in the top two Expert Consensus Ranked tiers. For TE it's the top tier only.

	QB	RB	WR	TE	Total
Alex	2	0	2	1	5
Chris	2	1	1	1	5
Dave	0	2	0	0	2
Dudders	0	0	1	0	1
Gareth	0	0	0	0	0
Jebus	2	2	0	0	4
Lee	0	2	4	0	6
Mike	2	1	1	0	4
Neil	0	1	0	1	2
Ross	1	0	1	0	2

V. [Way too early] Points Projections

For a bit more context, I've added Sleepers projections in the table below. It's great to see how competitive the LFC has become. This is the first time the LFC has ever led on points in any category and are within a couple of hundred points with the MFC overall! Will we see our first LFC winner soon?

First up we have Ross who beat Rich for the 1.01. It was his first time in the toilet bowl but he snagged the 1.01 so not a totally unsuccessful visit. I can't imagine who he's going to select but at least he's not at the draft in person so we can quickly move into the draft proper. At 7th for '25 the 'first time' phrase may be the first of many as he's 6th in dynasty rankings too. Unlike last year, when he had four elite players, now he has just 2 and the 1.01 burning a hole in his pocket but, alas, not a single other pick. He's also got the second oldest team so maybe he needs to consider a rebrand and rebuild?

Ross' most obvious strength comes at QB but the gloss has come off what was two elite starters. Josh Allen is still arguably the QB1 but he's lost a true WR1 and Herbert's offence now seems to be that good ol' ground and pound game with the additions of Najee Harris and Omarion Hampton (at the expense of Ross' own 'one good knee' Dobbins). He could trade one of his big two for a king's ransom and set his overall team up to be a top competitor with Wilson providing QB2 duties but so far he hasn't even countenanced the thought. A conundrum that seems like it will never be resolved - that one early belt may be the only time he ever gets to hold it.

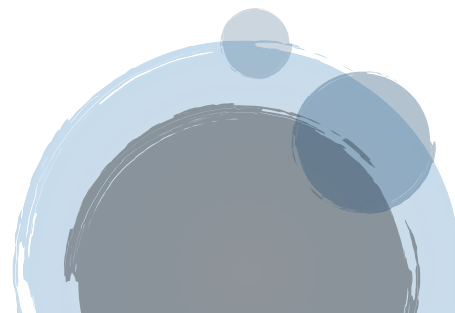

RB is a clear area of weakness in Ross' team. 8th in age and dynasty rankings and 9th in '25 rankings means he's got to do something to stop the rot. If only there was a clear and obvious draft pick who could fill the gap.....s. Alas, for Ross, even the addition of a star RB would only partially paper over a crack of a disintegrating RB room. At least his last 1st round RB rookie pick worked out so well...is Jonathan Brooks ever going to take an NFL field?

At WR we have a different story. Or do we? Ceedee Lamb is an obvious elite WR but what used to have youth on its side seems to just be aging out at 8th oldest, again. Sure, Aiyuk's shone in patches but his injury means he won't be fully fit for most of this year so he as usual is reliant on a whole load of still unproven 'youth' and Calvin Ridley.

At TE Ross has yet another 8th oldest room but one of some points scoring quality. Jonnu Smith finally broke after a mere eight years in the NFL and he also has Dallas Goedart. There are some quality TEs in this draft. Good enough to go 1.01? Many of us may have taken Bowers 1.01 in hindsight.

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2025 Season Rookie Draft Preview

For the first time, these previews will now include an assessment of Superflex options, since I've added that to the Jebus Rankings™. For Ross, he's middle of the table. While he does have a very decent second QB his options outside of that are a little.....lacking. Maybe the 1.01 will help improve that?

It's been three years since the end of the no trade experiment and it seems the damage may be irreversible. Multiple high 1st round picks seem to have had little impact on the Mandos prospects. Aside from his league leading age profile, it's pretty red, well a deep claret, across the board both long-term and for '25. Picking in the top two for the third consecutive year presents Gareth with some intriguing options. There's RBs galore, another shot at a QB, a unicorn WR prospect and two good TEs. Not sure that's going to fix everything but at least he can decide his own adventure. It may be a while that he stays in the doldrums though, with the prospect of winning the belt a faraway dream. Will he be going for that golden turd once again?

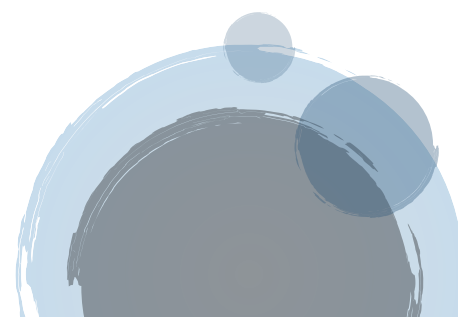

Gareth's QB room did get an addition last year only after passing up on Drake Maye, Jayden Daniels, JJ McCarthy and Bo Nix. Unsurprisingly, this keeps him near the bottom of the QB rankings. Not quite bottom though. Who has the worst QB room you ask? Well, you'll find out soon! Back to the the Mandos, who at least have three starting QBs, when Richardson's shoulder isn't fucked. Maybe a fourth option would be good. There's only one QB to pick really this year – could he drop to his second first at number 8?

RB is another position with youth on its side. What it has in youth it possibly lacks in quality. The room is bottom in dynasty rankings and for 2025. I'm not sure he even has a lead back on his team so it's great news for G that this draft is so packed with RBs

Another position group, another area of need? His WR core is up from the basement dweller from last year with his additions of Marvin Harrison Jr, Ladd McConkey and Ricky Pearsall. That actually reads not too bad. Green shots of recovery!?

At TE we return to the norm. Bottom across the board once more. Surely he has to pick up one of those decent TEs in this draft? Maybe with that 8th pick?

Given how poor the vast majority of the Mando's is, it will come as no surprise that they are also bottom of the new Superflex category. Surely this draft can only improve this?

VIII. Pick #3 – Inch by Inch – Rich – Lombardi Conference

Onto pick three and it's the second LFC team. Inversely to last year, a bottom four finish, a top four pick but will it help see a swift return to the top four again? It's not looking likely. 9th in dynasty and 8th for '25, has Rich is seemingly facing somewhat of a rebuild. Like his LFC compatriot, he has one high and a lot of lows. There's a few needs to fill with only one pick 1st round pick. Perhaps he could trade to improve his situation???

In a pleasant surprise this offseason, Rich's QB room now has four starters! Alas, the quality and future certainty is a little bit shakey which is reflected in a 6th ranking in dynasty and 5th for '25. He could well be back to two again next year if the Jets are bad again and the ayahuasca user retires. Maybe he'll be in position to pick up yet another QB at a draft (well, he's not going to be trading for one!).

Dudders' RB core is somehow not the worst in the JADL. The stiff competition from the last two teams means he is 9th for dynasty and 8th for '25. The main problem seems to be that all his RBs have aged out and there's been no attempt to replace them. Well now's as good a time as any. This draft provides a prime opportunity to refresh this room.

WR is a similar story. 8th in age and 7th for both dynasty and '25 rankings. Devante Adams and AJ Brown aren't getting any younger and his younger prospects don't seem to be prospects anymore. If only there was a mechanism outside the draft to change or swap players with other teams for their assets to improve things. Maybe one day Sleeper will add it in. Until then I guess Rich will just have to throw some more darts at the draft board.

In a complete shift from the rest of his team, Rich has the second youngest but best Dynasty and '25 TE room. He has strength and a bit of depth but given we've got two flex spots, could picking up another TE help provide a bit of stability to his side? Or a trade asset to improve elsewhere? Haha, I know. It's not the latter.

Onto superflex and despite the number of QB starters, the lack of elite quality along with none at other positions but him only above Gareth for both Dynasty and '25. Needs that 3rd pick to be a blinder to move up these ranks.

IX. Pick #4 – Canton Giants – Neil – Madden Conference

At four is our second and the worst of the MFC teams. Neil's team has remained stable keeping an overall dynasty ranking of 8th for a fourth straight season. He's slightly down for '25 at 9th – I guess change is as good as a rest. Drawn in a tough MFC has sadly meant he hasn't made the playoffs since the formation of the conferences but he's not just making up the numbers, he has some good players but not the elite players that has allowed him to catch a break and make the playoffs. Neil's got a young team which has needs more or less across the board but there's green shoots of hope with five picks of the first 24 – there's a strong possibility to improve things. Just goes to show what a bit of smart trading – mainly with Dave – can do for you.

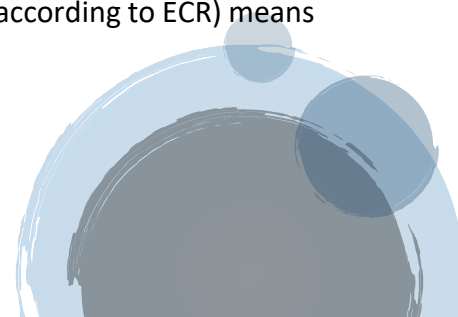

Neil's QBs are ranked 5th in both dynasty and '25 thanks to a very smart pick of CJ Stroud then picking up Caleb last year. Assuming Caleb can make progress in a Ben Johnson offense, Neil's pretty settled here. Maybe he'll pick up Ward and forget about his QB room for a decade or so? Building around QBs is not the worst dynasty strategy in the world, eh Lee?

It's a similar story at RB. Ranked 5th in Dynasty and 6th for '25 – middle of the pack but room for improvement. Devon Achane and Hubbard were shrewd acquisitions and trading Najee to get more shots in this year's RB class was another wise move. Surely a couple of those 5 picks, including the number 4 must be going to RBs.....he can then sell to Dave for magic beans and a 5th.

There's quite the drop off at WR though. Ranked at 9th for Dynasty and rock bottom for '25, the temptation must be to take Hunter or McMillan if they are there at 4. It's not all bad though and not worst projected for points. There's hope that his elite asset, Wilson, might link up with his college QB properly, and Deebo will be his boom-bust self but not much beyond that.

Next up what was the worst TE room in the JADL is now 3rd best! Again, amazing what a bit of trading can do for you. But just because Neil has Kittle doesn't mean he should be resting on those laurels. It's a decent TE class and I'm not sure I'd want to be relying on Gesicki week in week out if Kittle got injured.

At superflex we have a tale of hope. 8th for '25 isn't great but 6th in Dynasty (3rd according to ECR) means there could be a rosy future for the Giants.

Here comes the hot-drafter (murderer), He's a drafting gangsta (murderer), Big up di toolsy prospects (murderer), Still love rookies like that (murderer). That's right. It the real Rookie Whisperer and drafter supreme: Mr Alex Newberry. From zero to hero in a mere 4 drafts just look at all that green! No longer can he be defined as "shitshow LFC team" but the scorched-earth policy seemingly has led to this draft. He's one step away from green across the board and surely the belts will follow. He's 'only' got two picks in the first round as things stand but as the number 1 ranked team in both Dynasty and '25, surely these will be the missing pieces to put him head and shoulders above the rest of us?

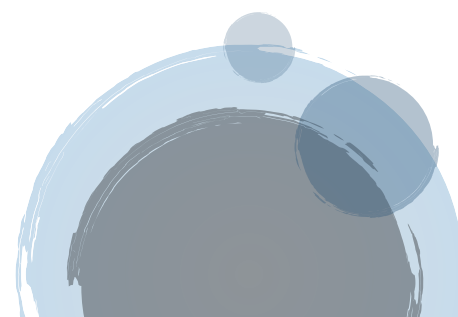

With a single draft, the worst and oldest QB room in the JADL went to third youngest and best in Dynasty, '25 and projected points. With Drake Maye, Jayden Daniels and Bo Nix he could be set for a decade. Does he believe in Cam Ward? If he does the four drafters above him might have made a big mistake.

Here's the chink in the armour. The only orange on the page. An obvious area of need but wouldn't you know, the man with the plan has executed to perfection. The draft he needs RBs is the class of the RB. I can't imagine any of those first round picks are going on a position which doesn't match his direction. Will Alex be the next team to three-peat?

Alex's WR room is the youngest in the JADL and second only to one man's for both Dynasty and '25 rankings. Just because you have two elite WRs doesn't mean you don't need more though. Will Alex be tempted to take Tet or Hunter at 5?

Alex's TE core is once again the youngest and the best primarily due to the addition of on Mr Brock Bowers. Admittedly his backups aren't great so maybe he could use one of his two firsts on yet another TE?

At superflex Alex isn't no. 1 for '25, he has to accept the runner up spot, but of course for Dynasty he is number 1. Two more first round picks could well move him up by this time next year. Only time will tell.

At 6 (and 10) we have another LFC team and a rebrand! Mike's taken his new allegiance to the next level by merging it with his team name. Marvellous work! This time last year Mike was a Bucs fan and projected league leader but the Toolsy Projects have taken his mantles and seemingly his fandom. It's not a slide into obscurity just yet though. He's Ranked at No. 2 overall for dynasty and '25 he's still got a great team with high hopes to make it back to the LFC Championship game again, just like his newly beloved Eagles. As there's not been too much churn in players it's starting to get a little bit older but that's why we have draft picks to freshen things up. With two first round picks and elite players at nearly every position it all looks good for Mike. Will he commit and finally push his chips in to try and finally win it or should he incorporate the Bills into his team name and get yet another new jersey?

Unlike Mike's fandom, his QB core has maintained its place near the top of the rankings. His beloved Jalen Hurts leads a trio that sets him 2nd for Dynasty and 3rd for '25. Mike's pretty settled at QB. The two first round picks are unlikely to add further depth here but it doesn't need it.

At RB Mike's team sits at 3rd for Dynasty and 4th for '25. He obviously has JT and Kyren Williams was a gem he drafted in 2022 and after that he's got TD king Monty and Swift's who somehow has a backfield all to himself right now. There would be no harm in Mike taking one of the many RB prospects but could his lustful eye be attracted to something more shiny elsewhere?

WR seems to be Mike's weakness (as well as his loyalty issues). At 6th in Dynasty and 5th for '25 it's a far cry from the top 2 of the past. We know he can throw a fifth-round pick at some random kid and turn them into a gem. Just imagine how good a first round WR he picks could be! But will one of the big names still be there at 6?

Mike's TE core is one deeply-seated in loyalty which has paid off with what is now the third best TE core in the league, with Hockenson and a somehow still valued Pitts. Previously that might have been a problem but thanks to the Falcon's acquiring Penis, sorry Penix, there seems to be some optimism that he might fulfill his potential. Another stroke of luck I think we'll all get behind.

Last but not least we have the superflex category. With Hurts, Mahomes and Tua it's no massive surprise to see Mike in the top half of rankings, 2nd for Dynasty and 4th for this year.

At pick 7 we have the last of the LFC teams. It's a team holding its own based entirely on one part of its team. Ranked 3rd in dynasty but 6th in '25 ranks he's at his usual mid-table spot. With the 4th youngest team there's potential for his team to move up the ranks but when you look at the colour of these charts, is this team actually in trouble? There's one very green room and a lot of red and orange.

Dave's QB room is still around the middle of the pack in dynasty rankings but there appears to be some concern amongst experts that this room isn't looking great for this year. He's ranked 8th in JDR and 9th in ECR! He certainly needs not worry about having two solid starters for a good few years but the strength in depth he once had has gone. Will he be able to grab Ward at pick 7 or will the habitual trader wheel another deal with Neil to get himself a solid QB3?

Dave's RB core has maintained its top ranked dynasty and '25 ranking, including two elite players in Jahmyr Gibbs and Bucky Irving...? With Cook and his team sponsor also on the team it's a great core and full of youth. A sub-24-year-old core adds to the positives. However, what does the rest of his team look like?

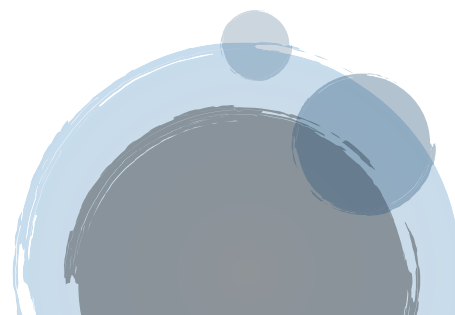

The WR core looks like it could be a needy part of his team. 5th in Dynasty but second oldest means a refresh might be needed. While he has an infallible JDR rank of 3rd, there may be a bit of trouble if we look at the expert rank of 8th! He also has no elite players could be a problem if he wants to seriously compete with Alex or the MFC. The lack of WRs in this draft could be an issue. Could we see yet another trade from Dave to improve this room?

TE is a difficult position to crack and the recent influx of quality TE's has left Dave's core a bit behind. Kincaid looked great in year one but last year he took a fairly big step back. Will the offence change enough to get him involved in the receiving game again. Will the Muth get loose with A Rod tossing him the ball? Can Cade Otton maintain a large market share with so many mouths to feed at Mike's former team? Will Dave be able to guess which of these three will be good in any given week? Or will he draft one of the couple of top TE prospects and hope they turn into a Brock Bowers?

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2025 Season Rookie Draft Preview

At superflex, the lack of QB3 and elite players beyond RB means that Dave is 7th for Dynasty and 8th for '25. Maybe he'll get lucky at the draft? Maybe he'll just trade with Neil....again.

At pick 17 – and not the last on this list - is your back-to-back-to-back champ, your champ-champ-champ, the only winner since the conferences were founded and your Noble Commissioner. A third happy ending last year but what does that team look like now? Falling down the table in dynasty to 7th but 3rd for '25. It looks like it will be a struggle to make it four in a row and maintain any type of long-term future but he is somehow top of the projected scoring charts. Surely he can't do it again!? Given his team's age profile, 10th overall, maybe he should be thinking of trading those few remaining elite assets to teams in need and accept his competing window is rapidly closing?

There could be a perception that Jebus was a very lucky boy with that QB core last year that despite Dak's injury Baker made a miraculous leap from competence to a top-5 back! At second for Dynasty and 1st for '25, it looks like this core is safe for now and there's no chance of a draft pick improving this group.

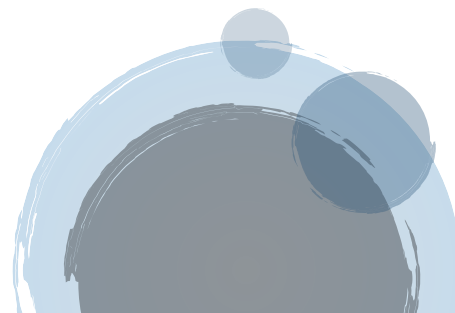

With two top five backs and five top 16 backs, Jebus' RB room is the backbone of his side. However, there's a number of these players not getting any younger and with a great RB class coming in, could this backbone become his weakness? Probably not. Ranked 2nd for Dynasty and 1st for '25, it still seems to be holding ground against everyone else, for now. Could he use his first ever pick outside the 4th and 5th rounds to find another RB gem or will they all be gone by then?

WR is another aging core where the bottom seems to have dropped off. Ranked rock bottom for dynasty and 9th for '25, it's not looking as rosy as it did 12 months ago – in fact it's a disaster zone. It's an area where an injection of youth has to be long-term aim given the average age of over 31! Tyreek Hill had one of his worst years last year, Kupp is on a new team, Hollywood Brown is the WR3 at the Chiefs and Keenan Allen and Amari Cooper don't have a team to play for! Surely he can't rely on 34-year-old Adam Thielen and Bryce Young. The 17th pick has to be spent on a WR!

Jebus' TE core is a similar-ish story It's getting older and seemingly losing top end quality. There seems to be some long-term value at 4th for dynasty but 7th for '25 rankings is not setting the world alight as he did last year. There seems to be doubts about Andrews and while he has his backup on the roster, them sharing time does Jebus no favours. Beyond that Jewan Johnson is on a hapless Saints and hopes and dreams in Chig and Brenton Strange. Can he find a TE at 17 who can be a top 5 TE this year?

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2025 Season Rookie Draft Preview

Given the quality of his QB room primarily but also those top end RBs, Jebus has the best superflex room for '25 but the age of some of these players puts him down at 4th for Dynasty. Picks 17 and beyond are unlikely to help this.

Into the 3rd round and we have another MFC team. It's seems to have been a bit of a season of transition for Lee. Last year he was sitting pretty with a pretty green looking board – except for one position – but now it's not looking so hot. His overall has slipped to 4th for dynasty and 5th for '25. He's also dropped from the top of the projected scores down to 5th and the likes of Dave and Chris. That age profile of 7th ain't looking pretty either. That being said he's assembled this team through some very smart draft picks and trading away his future 1sts but with nothing to show for it. He's got some excellent assets though so maybe with a bit of trading and moving around the draft he can move back up the ranks.

The first core we look at is always QB. Maybe you should skip to the next paragraph Lee, this isn't going to be pretty. The claim of six starters of yesteryear, then three is now down to just one! The core itself, mostly of backups, also has an average age of nearly 31, it's clear where Lee has fallen short these last couple of years while the rest of his team was incredibly strong. Unsurprisingly this leaves Lee rock bottom at both Dynasty and '25 rankings. Whilst several teams he's competing with have more than one top 12 QB he has maybe one on the fringe. If it were me, I'd be looking to sell a couple of those elite assets he has elsewhere to push this well constructed team over the top. But that's me and we all have our ways of constructing teams. He might be able to trade up and get Ward and pray that he isn't the next Trey Lance. Otherwise, he's praying for injuries so he at least has a starter for week 8.

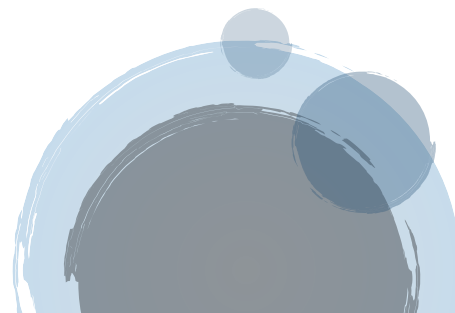

While Lee's RB isn't what it used to be, it's still 3rd for Dynasty and '25. He's got some very consistent performers who are getting older but seem to still have their starting roles. Most importantly it contains a certain Mr Christian Jackson McCaffrey. If you have him – and he stays fit – you have a chance of winning any week. There may be another RB gem in this class he can draft with that third-round pick as he did Tracy last year.

Once more, Lee's WR core is top of the tree and he can smugly relax knowing he's got the youngest and best WR core. With four elite assets in Jefferson, Chase, the Sun God and Nico Collins and more WR1s in his pocket he has a strong foundation to put up points week in week out. However, is he so heavy in this area that maybe he should consider strengthening his weaker needs elsewhere? He definitely doesn't need any additions here in the draft but that's not stopped him from adding to this room before.

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2025 Season Rookie Draft Preview

Lee traded for Kelce in an attempt to push his way to a title but last season was a bit of a down year for Kelce and that age profile is not great. It's put him down the 8th for Dynasty and 7th for '25. Can Kelce have one last hurrah or will he need to see if he can draft a gem at the draft? He might need to trade his way out of this pickle for when the inevitable Kelce retirement comes.

Last but not least is superflex and, yes, you guessed it, that desperately bad QB core pushes what could otherwise be an excellent ranking down to 8th for Dynasty and 7th for '25. This draft seems unlikely to fix that but maybe a trade or two can help?

Last but not least our final MFC team who has no picks. That's right – this is the first year a team has no picks. Why am I even bothering to type any of this? Does Chris even need to attend the draft? He does habitually trade in-draft so maybe he has a surprise up his sleeve? I guess I should keep typing then.

The perpetual builder seems to have plateaued just outside the top at 5th in dynasty and 4th for '25 rankings. It's 6th oldest so he's going to have to put together a run of results soon or he might find himself needing to rebuild his rebuild. How he does that with no picks is anyone's guess.

With the seeming demise of the teeny-towelled-twat, Chris' QB core has dropped to 7th for dynasty and 5th for '25. He's got one elite player in Joe Burrow and the Cardinals seem to be turning a corner and Kyler should be fully fit, so he's good for most of the year barring injuries. Will he surprise us all and trade into the draft to pick up Ward?

Chris' RB core has had a bit of an offseason bump. King Henry got a new contract, Najee has switched teams and Kenneth might be a more prominent feature this year for the Seahawks. After that it's a bit 'hope and dream' based leaving him 6th for Dynasty and 5th for '25. As we all know, this is a great RB rookie class so perhaps his surprise trade is for one that he particularly likes the look of?

Onto Chris' WR core. It's an interesting one. It's young and ranked 3rd for dynasty '25 with one elite player. Drake London had a great season last year but wasn't the best with Penix; Tee Higgins is great when he's fit; Pickens has at least a professional QB passing to him now; Worthy did well without any competition but with Kelce, Rice and Hollywood competing for targets now; Jeudy has lost his saviour in Jameis; and, Kirk is still meh. So many questions, so much hope, so little evidence that any of these players can be consistently good. If he wants to compete this room needs to meet its potential.

At TE Chris looks to have one of the most secure and elite TE rooms. Ranked 4th for Dynasty and 3rd for '25, he seems settled here. If McBride can just score some touchdowns he could have the TE one. If he gets injured then Ertz is a decent backup. If they both get injured he's fucked.

Onto superflex, having two good QB starters and a smattering of elite talent at each position, Chris is a solid 4th for Dynasty and 3rd for '25. Obviously no draft picks means he'll not improve here.....or will he???

XVI. Conclusion

Have I been too harsh? Not harsh enough? Are the rankings actually worth the data they're saved in? I hope I have inspired some contemplations of rosters which will result in some great trading before, during and after our draft on 28th June at 2pm. I'm very much looking forward to our fifth rookie draft which hopefully will be 90% in person once again and Gareth being at everyone's beck and call. I'll be doing my best Goodell impression with the offer of big hugs all round.

One final ask – it's that time of year when I ask for subs. So can you all send me £25 when you can, please.
