

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2025 Season Review – Part Two

1. Introduction

So gents, with the end of the round-robin and before we start our conference rounds, it's the second mid-season review. We'll take a look at where we are, hand out some minor awards and see where we may be going.

2. Week 9 Review

LFC

Well, the two dead rubbers didn't turn out that way did they!? Well, it kind of did at the bottom of the LFC with Rich losing to our runaway leader. This leaves Rich at best with a .500 record. Sorry, Rich, I'm not sure the playoffs are for you this year. Not a massively surprising result but much closer than expected. This was Mike's lowest output this season (139.40) but was enough for an 8th victory effectively cementing his place in the playoffs but not mathematically because....

.... the Mandos blasted their way through the breecetie boys! The 'boys came crashing down to Earth this week with Daniel Jones and his two top RBs underperforming at the same time. Now MHJ doesn't have a dwarf throwing to him maybe five wins from five is doable - the playoffs aren't an impossibility yet for the mighty Mandos!

MFC

Again, I'll start at the bottom of the conference where the Felons put it together for one - and perhaps one week only - and dominated Ross and his 'Rookies'. They put up a brave fight but Drake London and Tee Higgins five TDs were just too much. In the other matchup you humble Commissioner's success this week came at the expense of injuries to CJ Stroud and Boutte. Hopefully, neither will be sidelined for too long.

Both of those results mean that the MFC has four teams on 4-5 with 54 points separating 2nd from 5th and less than a point between 4th and 5th (even though the latter is irrelevant since neither team would make the playoffs).

The remaining matchup between the Boy Scouts and Toolsy Prospects was all set to be an all-timer with both projected over 160 points at one point. However, injuries once again struck Alex's side with Kraft doing in his ACL and Jayden Daniels elbow bending in the wrong direction. This is not to say that MFC leading J J F J didn't have a good day but it ended as somewhat a damp squib.

Round-Robin Review

3. Conference Leaders

As above, Mike and Lee sit atop of their conferences. 🏆

The winner of the second phase of the season is Mike at 4-0. Honourable mentions to Lee and Dave who are both 3-1.

4. Conference Losers

As you all know, Rich and your humble Commissioner are presently bottom of the pile in their conferences. 🤡

But the bottom of the pile for the second phase of the season is jointly held by Alex, Neil, Rich and Ross who are all 1-3.

5. Top Scorer

Mike is still the highest points scorer with a record breaking 1,497.14 points at this stage. 🔥 Lee is second with 1,366.60 points.

6. Fewest Points

Going hand in glove with his terrible record, Rich continues to score the fewest points with just 958.98 points. Honourable mention to Gareth who is also below 1,000 points! 🤡

7. Potential Points

Since the draft order is mainly based on potential points, I'll give a short lowdown on those at the bottom. Rich would be taking the highest available pick with 1,150.98, followed by Gareth at 1,225.60. Conversely, whoever has your humble Commissioner's pick would have the lowest pick with 1,448.62 followed by Chris with 1,383.02.

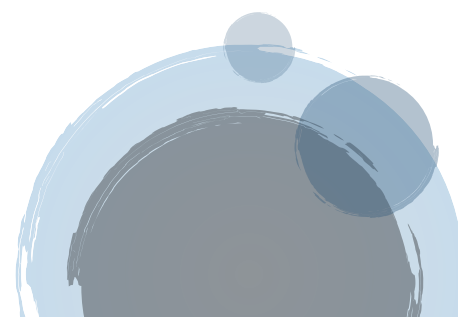

8. Best Defence

The best 'defence' is Rich who has only conceded 1,099.86. 🏟️ The team who has conceded the most is now Ross with 1,313.82, more than six teams have even managed to score! Honourable mention to Chris who has also conceded 1,284.62 points!

9. Least FAAB used

Neil has the most of his FAAB left, having spent just $100! 💰

Next closest is Alex with $725 remaining!

10. Most FAAB used

In their desperation for relevance, your humble Commissioner has spent $921 FAAB! Elsewhere, Chris has $102 left and Gareth $169.

11. Best Manager

Our second phase best manager is shared across your Commissioner, Alex, Chris and Rich. Alex, Neil, Rich and Ross share our worst manager of the phase 🤡🤡

12. MVP Picker

Our second phase 'MVP Picker' award winner is Dave with 6 top scoring players, four of those in week 7. 🧠 Honourable mention to Chris with 5. Rich has the fewest outstanding players with not one top scoring player. 😬

13. Benchwarmer

Rich seems to have few duds and win our 'Benchwarmer' Award winner with no players winning a benchwarmer spot! 🤡 This may be a reflection on how awful his bench is.

In contrast, Mike has left masses of points on his benches 6 times! 🧑 Honourable mention to Alex who have left some top players on their bench 4 times.

14. Week 10 – Basement Bowl

First up our interconference matchup is the 5th place finishers from last year, Gareth and Neil. Alas, while the Mandos hopes have risen for a playoff spot he starts with a tough matchup against the Giants. Behind in projections and with a terrible record against Neil, could this be the nail in the coffin for those hopes. Neil very much needs a win to keep his own hopes alive but Gareth has overcome greater odds twice already this season – could the be a close battle?

LFC

In the LFC, the Toolsy Prospects start their conference battles against a beleaguered Inch by Inch. It feels like this is a bit of a dead rubber if we look at projections but Alex seems to lose two players each week. I'm genuinely not sure how he still has a team to put out every week! Could Rich pull off another unlikely upset?

In the other matchup the top two in the LFC face off. Yes, there is a 3 game and 160 point gap between the top of the LFC. Yes, Dave is 1-9 against Mike. But maybe this will be the week that someone dares to challenge the dominance of the Eagles based franchise? Projections are pretty close and Dave has put up a top ten score before – can he do it again when it doesn't really matter?

MFC

The Boy Scouts go on their second outing to the Penitentiary in the first of the MFC matchups. The one-off explosion in scoring would have meant that Chris would've beaten the MFC's runaway leader for the second time in the calendar year and indeed since the conferences began. However, a key cog in that win is on bye this week. Given how tight the MFC is every win and point counts. A loss here for Chris could be disastrous. Projections and records are on Lee's side but can he win a game playing Dillon Gabriel in superflex!?

Last up is your humble Commissioner vs Ross. A loss for either team will put a huge dent into their playoff hopes. Ross will want to bounce back after a humiliating defeat to the Felons last week but a 1-6 record against the Commissioner needs to be overturned along with a discrepancy in projections. If it's any consolation, your humble Commissioner has only actually exceed his projected score 3 times, so if Ross can make his projection he has a 2/3 chance of winning. A close and exciting matchup closes off the MFC.

15. Conclusion

It's been a good second phase of the season. There's been a few upsets, no trades(!?) and a hot chase for the playoffs in the MFC. Mike's team is dominating as Alex did in 2020 and I did in 2021 – I'm sure Ross and Dave will agree these both ended well for those teams! Every team can still, technically, make the playoffs. The conference matchups will make all the difference – lest we not forget that two years ago one team lost out on their playoff spot by just 38 points (less than 3 points per game). Every win, selection decision and point matters right now. There's still time to make moves to improve your fortunes or focus on the future before the trade deadline.

P.S.

The website has been updated as usual.

No-one can accuse me of not correcting a wrong, so I overhauled the Power Rankings algorithm. To be clear I did this ahead of certain individuals' sabre rattling during the course of today. The intention of the Power Rankings each week is to evaluate a team's form, informing how their team will perform in the coming week, taking account of the opposition that they face. I got the algorithm wrong when it too heavily featured points against, which is beyond a GMs control and not necessarily predictive of future points against. I hope you all enjoy the much more accurate Power Rankings in the weeks to come.
