

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2026 Season Preview

1. Introduction

Welcome to the seventh year of our dynasty league! After another wonderful season I know that we're all eager for the kick-off of the NFL season and the fantasy adventure that accompanies it.

2. I'd like to start by congratulating Mike on finally getting it across the line last year, a victory he will no doubt dine out on for decades to come. I wish you all almost the best of luck for the season ahead. At least we don't have to worry about me gloating for at least another five months in every update.

3. It's the fifth season with our Lombardi and Madden Conferences vying for dominance over the JADL. From a factual and academic perspective, it was the MFC, led at the front by your noble commissioner, that was the dominant conference. However, the LFC has become far more competitive, investing heavily in MFC assets as well as drafting well over the last few years. The tide has turned and the Care Bears are now leading the way.....but for how long?

4. There are ample stats on our website and on Sleeper, so I won't go heavily into these, but I have included a few metrics about what the often-maligned experts think now and whether they got it right on the whole last season.

5. Strength of Schedule

6. As debuted last year, the JRSoS is back and, to show there was no bias, those at the top last year find themselves in the bottom tier, with Gareth and Chris having the easiest ride this year. Let's hope they don't screw up their advantage, eh?

Note: our schedules are done in advance of the NFL schedule being released based on our conference finish in the previous season. I don't control who gets a better strength compared to someone else.

Tier	GM(s)	No. of bye weeks
1	Chris and Gareth	6
2	Ross	5
3	Alex, Dave and Mike	4
4	Jebus, Lee, Neil and Rich	3

7. Canton Giants (Neil - MFC) – 10th Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
55	9 th (9 th)	8 th (-)	10 th (-1)	58 (+3)	8 th	7 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
9 th	6 th	8 th	5 th	7 th	8 th	7 th	=9 th	5 th	=5 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2386.1	6 th	824.5	5 th	686.1	7 th	601.3	8 th	274.2	9 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.67	3 of 6	Wins	Loses	44% (+39) (MFC – 4 th)	Week(s)
		6	8		6, 8 & 10

It was a tough 2025 for Neil and his Canton Giants picking up a third Loser of All losers trophy – equalling Gareth’s record. If projections are anything to go by it’ll be more of the same this year but with some changes in the MFC he’s in with a shot of finally getting back into the playoffs. He’s certainly bucked the predictions before both making and not making the playoffs. Let’s see what’s in store for us this season.

While Neil’s QB room is ranked in towards the bottom of rankings it’s certainly not looking as bad as others and features at least two players who are young and capable of defying their expectations – Jaxson Dart and CJ Stroud. Added to these two QB2s is another QB2 who was last year’s MVP. It’s a shame he moved on from Caleb Williams but we’ll find out this year if that was the right decision – more on that later. Backing these guys up is Stafford’s backup who sits as a QB4 right now. Decent potential but not projected to propel him in what has been a competitive MFC this year.

It’s a similar story with Neil’s RB core. He’s got an RB1 in an Achane, a young RB2 in Tuten on a suddenly very competent Jags, and two RBs including the Rookie lead back of the Super Bowl winners. Then it’s a bit less productive. Three RB4s and more chaff. Achane is a bit of an enigma. The explosive dwarf has some absolutely astounding stats but he appears to be the only Dolphins weapon. Surely this little guy can’t avoid the treatment room carrying that team?

Another mixed bag at WR: Garrett Wilson is a great receiver but a WR2 as he's on the Jets; he picked up Egbuka (another WR2) in the last draft which looks like another good pick but after that it's a whole load of WR4+. If he wants to get back into the playoffs again, he needs to strengthen this area of his team quite drastically.

Neil seems lucky that George Kittle is a freak specimen of a human being and seems likely to have miraculously recovered from an achilles injury in less than 9 months! After him then a load of rubbish like most teams. He's going to need to hope that the substation doesn't strike Kittle again to compete this year.

He's done some excellent planning with bye weeks not significantly affecting him too much. Fortunately for him, his significant clashes all coincide with the lowest ranked teams – Ross, Jebus and Rich – in weeks 6, 8 and 10. Week 8 is looking particularly bad, but I guess at least it's not so bad in all the other weeks, eh?

It looks likely to be another interesting season for Neil. He's got some players which could break fantasy in a given week but then score nothing (or be injured) the next. He has a great chance to make the playoffs with a bit of commitment to this year and he has more than enough draft capital to achieve that if he wants to. Once you have a playoff ticket, who knows what this team could achieve!?

8. Mandos (Gareth - LFC) – 9th Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
45	10 th (10 th)	9 th (+1)	9 th (+1)	60 (+15)	7 th	8 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
10 th	=9 th	6 th	6 th	8 th	7 th	3 rd	=5 th	8 th	9 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2330.8	7 th	614.9	8 th	730.3	4 th	669.9	7 th	315.7	7 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.73	3 of 6	Wins	Loses	35% (+34)	Week(s)
		6	8	(LFC – 4 th)	5, 7, 8 & 11

After avoiding a fourth Loser of All Losers title, Gareth has done some good drafting and has finally lifted himself off the bottom of the rankings - well mostly. He now has areas of relative strength but there are still a couple of holes. Could he finally be coming out of the doldrums he's been in since making the Championship game in year one: is it another year of misery; a small push to get the 1.01; or a big push to finally get back into the playoff hunt?

It's not a great start with one of the, if not the, worst QB rooms in the JADL. Two starting QBs: a bargain buy of Shough – a QB2 – and QB3 in Bryce Young is nothing really to shout about unless they both take a giant leap this year. Backing them up is Michael Penis, sorry Penis, I mean Penix who's just lost his job to fellow witch, Tua Tagovailoa then a whole load of nothing back-up or back ups to back ups. Getting the 1.01 in the '27 draft must be a tempting goal to help sort this room out.

Gareth's RB core isn't the best but is a real improvement from recent years. Alleged domestic abuser Quishon Judkins has put that all behind him and is a good RB to support his cast of the much hyped RB1 Omarion Hampton and his 1.01 pick last year (thanks to Chris) in Jeremiah Love. It's a shame he's a Cardinal but maybe that's not a bad thing if he's playing the longest of long games. After those three is not too much. The textbook rebuild tactic might to sell those young rookies off to contenders in favour of strengthening everywhere else. Does Gareth think he's close enough to lifting himself off the bottom to contemplate keeping these young RBs?

Surely after all this rebuilding Gareth's WR core looks good? If good is lower-mid-table and young and filled with hope – then Gareth has another good core. Led by a WR2 Ladd McConkey and backed up by three WR3s in Marvin Harrison Jr, Christian Watson and newly drafted Carnell Tate. Green shoots of hope if one or more of these players can take a step up this year?

Onto TE and it's much like Neil. One very good (and young) TE1 in Colston Loveland – another example of some good drafting – but basically fuck all else. Could probably do with investing in a backup in case of injury but a good asset for 13 regular season weeks.

With only two starting QBs and reliance on the Chargers, this team has a few tough bye weeks. Weeks 5 (vs Chris), 7 (vs Lee), 8 (vs Dave) and 11 (vs Chris, again) may be particularly tough with some significant players out.

There's a possibility that it's going to be another hard year for our elder statesman but there's some youth and hope for the future which won't be hurt by another high draft pick. Should he consider cashing in one or two of those prize assets for multiple first round picks though?

9. Inch by Inch (Rich - LFC) – 8th Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
62	8 th (7 th)	10 th (-2)	8 th (-)	44 (-18)	9 th	9 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
8 th	8 th	10 th	9 th	9 th	9 th	5 th	=2 nd	10 th	10 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2026.9	9 th	692.4	7 th	370.9	10 th	586.7	9 th	376.9	2 nd

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
4.38	5 of 6	Wins	Loses	18% (-2)	Week(s)
		5	9	(LFC – 5 th)	6, 8, 9 & 11

Another LFC team at 8th, and some low expectations it seems. Not quite rock bottom but very close, Rich's team needs improvement across the board. With three 2027 firsts burning a hole in his pocket, as well as some for 2028 too, it looks like the start of a deliberate rebuild is on. Let's have a look at what we'll all be facing this year.

His QB core is towards the bottom of the ranks. Why? Well, he's got a QB1 in Brock Purdy and QB3 in the swan song season for Aaron Rodgers, future megastar Fernando Mendoza and a whole load of dross. Another team with just two starters which presents a problem if injuries and bye weeks hit but not an issue if you're rebuilding and seeking future success, I guess.

It's a much worse story at RB. RB3 RJ Harvey is his only 'lead' back but after that is predominantly back-ups and dross. Classic rebuild strategy of leaving the backs for last. Maybe the 2028 or 2029 drafts will improve this room?

Next up is his WRs which is not quite as bad as his RB core but it's not good either ranked at 9th - well, it could hardly be worse! After the sale of AJ Brown and Waddle last year, the room is led by WR2 Adams, WR3 Parker Washington. After those two suspect driver Jordan Addison, a WR4, and rookie De'Zhaun Stribling who has thus far escaped the substation – I guess it must have a cumulative effect. Then it's a lot of youth and hope. I feel like these players are going to be a fixture in his flex spots.....

.....if they can get ahead of his TEs. The highlight of Dudders' team is his TE room and I once again suggest a rebrand to Tight Inch by Inch. He has two TE1s in Harold Fannin and Sam LaPorta. Alongside them, he has another decent starter in Njoku. The move to TE Premium has been a boon for Rich and those flex spots are begging for a tight end to be squeezed in.

With the lack of strength and depth there's a few bye weeks where there will be opportunities for opponents to take advantage. Weeks 6 (vs Gareth), 8 (vs Alex), 9 (vs Mike) and 11 (vs Alex) he's got some tricky matchups with Alex looking to be the primary beneficiary.

The prize of Loser of All Losers is up for grabs for a new winner this year and, unless he has an enormous dollop of luck, it already feels like Rich is nailed on to be in that final. He's chosen to focus on the future before it was forced upon him – can he make the most of it?

10. Falcons (Chris - MFC) – 7th Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
76	5 th (5 th)	7 th (-2)	7 th (-2)	93 (+17)	3 rd	2 nd

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
2 nd	2 nd	4 th	=7 th	4 th	2 nd	2 nd	=2 nd	1 st	2 nd

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2790.5	4 th	906.8	2 nd	707.3	5 th	805.5	4 th	370.9	3 rd

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.37	2 of 6	Wins	Loses	92% (+14)	Week(s)
		9	5	(MFC – 1 st)	5, 11, 13, 14

We're at the end of the losers section and a second time Chris has provided someone else the 1.01. Chris' Felons, sorry Falcons, rebuild seems to finally be coming through when we look at the rankings and his projected score is in the top four. He looks a shoe-in for the playoffs as is statistically the leading team in the MFC. While Chris doesn't care about any of this analysis or what the experts think, let's have a look at his team anyway.

At QB, the experts and the infallible Jebus Rankings™ are united in the view that it is the second best in the league. The projected points also agree with this. The teeny-towelled-twat is back but for Chris it's a nice bit of backup/trade bait. He has two QB1s in his beloved Joe Burrow and newly acquired Lamar Jackson. Added to this is Kevin O'Connell's new plaything, who is a QB2 these days. The weeks leading to the byes and the release of Call of Duty make for a formidable team. Chase and Burrow should hit the ground running and he'll be hoping that Lamar's going to return to his running ways too. Great room. No notes.

A different story at RB. Conflict between ECR and JR rankings and a lower projected points, it seems that Chris once again is relying on two very good starters – King Henry (RB1) and Kenneth Walker III (RB1) – then not a lot after it. I'm sure everything will be fine relying on the health of a 32-year old and a Kenneth. Might need to trade to improve this room and make the most of his competing window.

Onto better news for Chris at WR. Led out by three WR1s and a WR2 backing them up there's definitely quality and the a bit of depth beyond those five other obvious starters. These will almost certainly be filling his flex spots every week. Not too much beyond those four though. If he wants to strengthen elsewhere, this may where the trade bait lies too.

At TE we're back to the same old story. Chris has a very very good starting TE with the TE2 in Trey McBride – although we all know Chris disagrees with this ranking. Once again he has nearly nothing beyond that. Dallas Goedart isn't nothing though as he wisely traded to make up for the depth he lacked last season. Maybe he's beginning to understand the importance of depth. We'll see. As a result, he has a very high ranking and very good projected points at TE.

With a somewhat thin squad, there are no surprises that he's looking a bit weak in weeks 5 (vs Gareth), 11 (vs Gareth, again), 13 (vs Neil) and 14 (vs Ross).

Is this team a real contender? His starting XI certainly seems that way but what happens when injuries hit? He's happy to talk up his backups but the rankings don't seem to agree with him. There's something a bit Spursy about Chris' team's performances in recent seasons. A decent starting XI, hope that their backups are actually good but the reality has been winning 1.01s for other people. Will this finally be his year or will he be forever in the Boy Scout's shadow?

11. Raiders of the Lost Yard (Jebus - MFC) – 6th Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
80	4 th (2 nd)	5 th (-1)	6 th (-2)	36 (-44)	10 th	10 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
5 th	=9 th	9 th	10 th	10 th	10 th	7 th	8 th	7 th	8 th

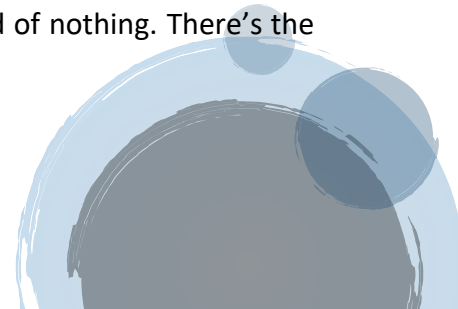

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
1680.4	10 th	544.8	10 th	379.3	9 th	432.8	10 th	323.5	6 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
4.68	6 of 6	Wins	Loses	12% (-87)	Week(s)
		5	9	(MFC – 5 th)	7, 8, 10, 11 & 13

Oh, how the mighty have fallen. It may be somewhat deliberate but the writing was on the wall this time last season. His injury luck ran out, he didn't cover for his lack of depth and here we are. Rock bottom. And by about 400 points if projections are to be believed. The creditors finally came calling and our noble Commissioner could only hide in the dark from them for so long. He made moves at the end of the season and in the off-season to cover his blushes but he doesn't have his own picks for the next couple of years and the ones he does have are likely to be late. Let's see where we are with this shitshow team heading to the toilet bowl for the first time since we started (including before the Conference Era (BCE)).

Well, it's not a great start. Almost bottom of the pile in rankings and bottom in projected points is exactly what you all want to hear. His team boasts one young QB1 in Caleb Williams. He has Daniel Jones as his QB2, and he also happens to be a QB2. Then nothing. It's not the worst duo for a rebuilding team but it will be music to Rich's ears as he holds his first.

A team that once featured both Saquon and Bijan in their pomp is now almost bottom of the pile. Much like his QB room it starts with an exciting young RB but even they are in a committee with a vet. After that the remnants of James Conner and Aaron Jones then a whole load of nothing. There's the classic RB light rebuild and then there's this monstrosity. What the hell is he going to do if there's injuries?

You'll all be delighted to hear, that after two almost basement rooms it hits rock bottom at WR. Ranked 10th in every metric it's a sad state of affairs. The most exciting talent unfortunately plays as a DB, then a concussed Wan'dale Robinson (a WR4), then a load of old men and young kids. Those two new draft picks might be finding their way off the taxi sooner than most. It's going to take a few drafts to fix this monstrosity.

TE is a slightly better but not the room it once was nor in the top half of rankings or projections. He has five – yes five – TE2s just mooching around in his squad. Likely, MAndrews, Johnson, Strange and Okonkwo. Plenty of starters but not setting the world alight. At least we all know who's going to be filling his flex spots now.

With depth issues, there are a few weeks where your former champ champ champ may be even more beatable. Weeks 7 (vs Rich), 8 (vs Neil), 10 (vs Ross), 11 (vs Lee) and 13 (vs Mike).

Like Aaron Rodgers, Jebus tried to cement his legacy by adding another ring to his collection. But also like Rodgers, these next couple of years will end in bitter disappointment. Jebus is facing a major rebuild now. Will he be able to replicate Alex and get himself back on the championship hunt again or is it going to take nearly a decade like Gareth?

12. Toolsy Prospects (Alex - LFC) – 5th Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
100	1 st (1 st)	4 th (-3)	5 th (-4)	100 (-)	1 st	1 st

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
3 rd	1 st	5 th	5 th	2 nd	3 rd	1 st	1 st	2 nd	1 st

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2823.4	3 rd	925.2	1 st	652.5	8 th	817.8	2 nd	427.9	1 st

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.23	2 of 6	Wins	Loses	92% (-7)	Week(s)
		9	5	(LFC – 1 st)	6, 11, 13 & 14

Despite last season's projected runaway victory, Alex fell below those lofty expectations. He came a disappointing third in the LFC and fell at the first hurdle in the playoffs against a pre-Bijan trade Mike. Despite this and making no real off-season moves, Alex remains the undisputed favourite to win the whole thing. The 17 power ranking point lead he had last year has closed to just 5, with four teams now within those 17 points. Despite the disappointment of last season, has he become complacent or does he just have confidence in this highly ranked team?

We start at QB where Alex has three QB1s in Maye, Daniels and Nix just in case one of them (seemingly inevitably) gets injured. Oddly enough this puts him at 3rd (1st according to JR) and first overall in projected points at the position. If that wasn't enough he also has the Jets starting QB to provide cover for his cover. Unlike a few other 'contenders', Alex is kitted out to win starting with the most important position in football.

If there's a chink in Alex's very flashy gold encrusted armour, it's at RB. What a team this would be if Alex had traded for Bijan when he had the chance? Anyway, Alex did have two RB1s in Josh Jacobs and Chase Brown but he's down to one thanks to some rather unsavoury allegations against the former Boy Scout. That leaves him with one RB1, one RB2, one RB3 and one RB4 as his prospective starters. He's down to 8th in scoring at the position too and dropped into tier 2 and third place for overall scoring too. If Alex is to win then those draft picks burning a hole in his pocket are best directed in this direction?

Like at QB, Alex is up at the top of the table again, second only to Lee and his mega-core. Two WR1s in JSN and Ceedee Lamb, a WR2 in Nabers and three WR3s in Odunze, BTJ and Chris Godwin make this room a force to be reckoned with. Something tells me those flex spots are going to be pretty WR heavy.

At TE is where Alex reigns supreme from a positional basis. Why? Well, that mighty 2024 Las Vegas Raiders pick in Brock Bowers, rookie reception record holder and highest projected score helps. He's also got a second TE1 as insurance in Tucker Kraft. Not much more to say really – he's pretty much set barring a real injury crisis.

Despite this powerhouse of a team, it seems that bye-weeks might be a bit of a problem. There are four weeks where teams might get a chance to beat the champion elect - weeks 6, 11, 13 and 14. Can Chris, Rich, Dave or Gareth take advantage?

Alex has kept it tight and hoped that luck emerged. It looks like those TE, WR and QB picks along with some shrewd trading has turned some Toolsy Prospects into potentially Established Winners.....when he eventually does the deed. Last year turned out to be a bit of a damp squib and he's not strengthened so his competitors have caught up a bit. He's still the man to beat and could still make moves to turn this into an unstoppable juggernaut. Can anyone stop him?

13. breecetie boys (Dave - LFC) – 4th Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
71	6 th (6 th)	2 nd (+4)	4 th (+2)	92 (+21)	4 th	3 rd

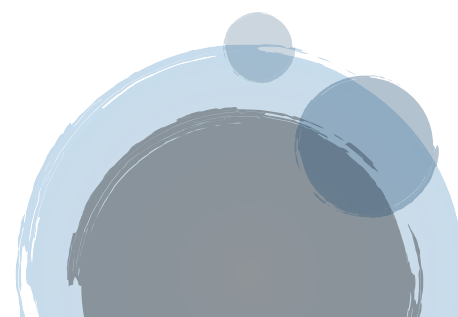

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
7 th	=3 rd	5 th	=3 rd	6 th	=4 th	4 th	=2 nd	3 rd	4 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2900.5	2 nd	885.8	3 rd	917.0	2 nd	733.0	6 th	364.7	4 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.38	1 of 6	Wins	Loses	81% (+9) (LFC – 3 rd)	Week(s)
		8	6		6, 7, 10, 13 & 14

Well Dave is the first of the LFC to want to challenge Alex's statistical supremacy. Dave has been accused of mid-table mediocrity before but he finally made it to a championship game last year. An LFC championship game but that's progress. Predictions seem to think he'll be back there again at the end of this year but he's projected to be the third best team in the LFC so he'll have to do it the hard way. Dave has been surprisingly quiet on the trade front this summer. Obviously, he's made some moves, particularly to strengthen that wishy-washy QB slot, but this is very much a similar side to the one we all faced last year. Is he finally seeking some stability and looking to capitalise on winning the LFC – or has Neil finally blocked his number? His team is where it is at the time of writing, so what should we make of it?

It's not a great start at QB if the experts are to be believed coming in at 7. He might prefer to look at those magnificent Jebus Rankings™ and projected points – where he is third as a ray of hope. Upgrading Danny Dimes to Dak will help for the next year or two, adding a second QB1 to Trevor Lawrence who had a bit of a breakout season last year. He's also got two more QB2 starters in Jordan Love and Malik Willis backing them up so for a change, Dave seems all set at the position even if he doesn't have one of those elite top 5.

A very similar story at RB. A discrepancy between expert rankings with those Jebus Rankings™ putting him joint third and second in the scoring charts. Dave has one of the stronger RB cores in the league. No fewer than two RB1s in Gibbs and Cook, two RB2s in Hall and Irving but a bit of a gap to Malik Washington; an RB4. When Dave won previously his strength at RB was consistency and depth. He's reverted to that winning formula so let's see if lightning strikes twice. In fact he could probably field four RBs every week in his lineup....

....probably because he has to. This WR core remains his weak spot. Middling, even bottom half of the table WR room. It's not that bad though with four WR2s and one WR3 and some other guys, there's definitely worse WR rooms but there's no one elite to get him over the line when push comes to shove in the playoffs. Will it be enough to push his team to glory again or does he need to get out that fax machine and start doing some more deals?

Another room, and we're back to top four in rankings and projected points. Two TE1s in Tyler Warren and former dynasty darling Dalton Kincaid is not bad at all. After those guys are no-hopers but maybe rookie Stowers isn't as bad as the camp reports make out? Could he be a diamond in the rough?

Looking at bye weeks and Dave has a few weeks where he won't be at full strength and they come against his major competitors (and Ross) in weeks 6 (vs Mike), 7 (vs Ross), 10 (vs Gareth), 13 (vs Alex) and 14 (vs Lee).

Dave's quality seems centred in one key position, and that is reflected in his rankings but he will surely be making the playoffs again. Can he buck the trend and challenge Mike and Alex for LFC supremacy again or will a couple of key injuries derail his season? I don't think he wants to go back to mid-table mediocrity and we know he's willing to trade – will we see some movement in season so he doesn't have a repeat of last season's LFC championship game?

14. The Rookies Nest (Ross - MFC) – 3rd Place

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
67	7 th (8 th)	6 th (+1)	3 rd (+4)	67 (-)	6 th	6 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
1 st	7 th	7 th	=7 th	5 th	6 th	10 th	=9 th	9 th	7 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2245.8	8 th	576.4	9 th	702.8	6 th	744.1	5 th	222.5	10 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.62	4 of 6	Wins	Loses	45% (+15)	Week(s)
		6	8	(MFC – 3 rd)	7, 8, 10, 11 & 14

Back to the MFC and it's The Rookies Nest ~~is on fire~~. After a disappointing 2024 regular season which gave Ross his first taste of the toilet bowl, he defied projections and somehow finished 3rd last year! In a somewhat surprising move, Ross decided to not build upon that success but to trade for picks in the 2026 draft and beyond. I assume he did that to try to rekindle the Rookie Whisperer title he lost to Alex. Not sure the 2026 draft was the one for that but maybe I'm wrong. Maybe it's his new found love of the Boy Scouts that led him to trade a QB1 for a WR1? It seems like Ross might be in for a difficult season now though. Projected rankings and points don't look great but as others in the MFC are rebuilding – he might get caught in the middle again. It's always fun looking at Ross' team, so what to make of this version of the team?

In a throwback to previous years, Ross once again has just two starters. What has changed is the quality of his QB room. Of course he still has The QB1 rotting on his team but now his QB2 is a bridge QB3 in Brissett. He has Brissett's rookie backup and then basically nothing. This is not a good start. He must want one or two of those 2027 QBs. Problem is he only has his own pick. Is Josh finally going to move to a championship calibre team or has he got his eyes set on the 2028 draft already?

Onto Ross' RB core and the only way is up, right. Well....he's got an RB1 in Ashton Jeanty, an RB2 in ETN, and RB3s in Stevenson, and two RBs with very very dodgy knees. At least the knee-less duo are a tier higher than 12 months ago. No wonder he's decided to start a rebuild. Who is going to cough up the dough to take Jeanty off his hands?

At WR Ross has a middling core. What he gave up in QB stability he gained in a WR1. This year that trade was for Nico Collins. Let's hope for his sake the player he traded for in the deal doesn't find himself injured and in prison! Last years' trade and prison bait, Rashee Rice is a WR2, then he has a WR3 in Jameson Williams and Reed sneaks in as a WR4. Beyond that is a lot of hope. Those '26 firsts are down the WR depth chart. Maybe when the injuries and early-release tags are removed, this could be an alright core. Maybe those first round picks are toast. We'll see. Might be a bit late to hope for a good 2026 overall but that 1.01 might still be an option.

TE is a disaster for Ross. He traded Dallas Goedert to his arch rival but he's backup for Chris. Another '26 first rounder is sitting there but camp buzz and a Jets stink is upon him. Ross helped Dave with his roster cuts by trading for two TEs from him but both of those spend more time blocking than receiving. Maybe the 1.01 is destined for a new up and comer like Gareth?

With some weaker depth charts it won't come as a surprise that there might be some tough weeks coming up when the byes hit. He's going to be looking at lower tier replacements against opponents in the round robin in weeks 7 (vs Dave) and 8 (vs Mike) and in the divisional round against 10 (vs Jebus), 11 (vs Neil) and 14 (vs Chris).

With lower half rankings and 8th projected points, it looks like Ross is beginning a streak of toilet bowl appearances. I guess the real questions are: is his team good enough to get that 1.01; how long will the toilet bowl run go on for and could disaster strike and he not end up in the toilet bowl?

15. J J F J (Lee - MFC) – RUNNER-UP

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
83	2 nd (4 th)	1 st (+1)	2 nd (-)	89 (+6)	5 th	5 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
6 th	=3 rd	3 rd	=3 rd	1 st	1 st	8 th	8 th	6 th	5 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2768.6	5 th	806.8	6 th	774.0	3 rd	877.2	1 st	310.6	8 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.65	2 of 6	Wins	Loses	90% (-9) (MFC – 2 nd)	Week(s)
		9	5		6, 7, 8 & 10

Next up is the final MFC side who finally made it to the championship game after coming so close so many times only for his bubble to be burst by a team which traded its future for a title. This side had the potential to be a juggernaut that couldn't be beaten, ranked in the top two overall by the experts for four successive years – where is he now? The experts still have him at number 5 with a 90% chance of making the playoffs – is this the last chance saloon for Lee or has he waited too long to rebuild like your noble Commissioner?

He may have ranked top two for four years but Lee's QB core has always been an area of weakness. He finally corrected it this summer with the aforementioned trade with fanboy Ross but is it too little too late? He added Herbert as a QB1 for the first time ever and perennial QB2, Jared Goff, is there sitting in his superflex spot moving away from the reliance on his WR core to fill that spot. He then has three QB3s backing them up in Cam Ward, Kirk Cousins and Shedeur Sanders so might need to make some further investment in future.

His RB room is an area of relative strength and top three in projected points. He has managed to put together a room with two RB1s in CMC and Saquon! What a room that would've been in 2022 but in 2026 they are potentially towards the latter stages of their careers. He'll be hoping their workloads are managed – and the electrical substation turned off – if he wants this room to last beyond this year.

After that pair of oldies but goodies we have three RB3s in committees; Pollard, Dowdle and Mason. I'm sure Lee isn't hoping for injuries but he might not be too disappointed if these guys get the backfields to themselves.

From strength to absolute strength as we move onto Lee's WR room. No fewer than three WR1s then a WR2 and WR3. It's no surprise that this room is unanimously ranked at the top and going to rack up a shit load of points, even though he sold Nico Collins to improve his QB room! It's an amazing room which will likely feature week in week out for Lee, but a couple of injuries could lead to a severe setback as his depth beyond the top four isn't as good as you might like.

A different story at TE, I'm afraid. Seems like the experts agree with an 8th ranked and projected points room. The 2023 acquisition of Kelce was inevitably going to come to an end with him dropping down to a low TE1 and new, young and better offences supporting much better TEs. Kelce was great in his day but those are sadly behind him. Lee compensated for this nice and early and traded or drafted for the next best thing, right? Right? Well, very much like his neglected QB room, Lee has left it late to do anything about this. If Lee wants to have another crack at not just winning the MFC but to take that coveted belt from the LFC he might need to have a look at what he can do to get some more points on the board here.

With so many options at RB and WR there aren't too many troublesome bye weeks, except where he's a bit short on the QB or TE side. Perhaps five concerning bye weeks at 5, 6, 7, 8 and 10, against Dave, Jebus, Gareth and Chris (twice), respectively. Those two matchups with Chris could decide where that MFC trophy lives next year.

Lee's invested heavily in this team and will want to get more than an MFC title to his name. Has the perfect plan finally come together or will difficulties at TE or an injury to one of those brilliant WRs derail his fifth shot at picking up that belt? What a dynasty this could have been if he'd just pushed those chips in all the way. Maybe something to mull over while other teams race up the rankings with the young and exciting teams?

16. Tompa Bay Bucs (Mike - LFC) – CHAMPION

2025				2026
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
82	3 rd (3 rd)	3 rd (-)	1 st (+2)	98 (+16)	2 nd	4 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
4 th	=3 rd	2 nd	1 st	3 rd	=4 th	6 th	=5 th	4 th	3 rd

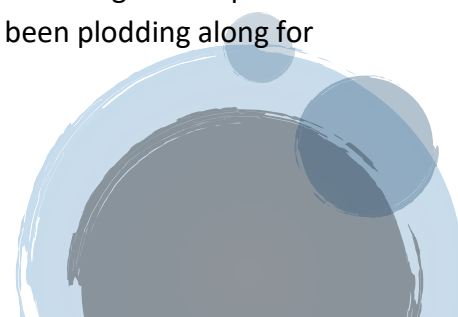

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2946.9	1 st	872.1	4 th	929.3	1 st	814.1	3 rd	331.4	5 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.40	1 of 6	Wins	Loses	89% (-6)	Week(s)
		8	6	(LFC – 2 nd)	8, 10, 11

It was third time lucky for the new-then-former Eagles fan, Mike! He traded the farm for Bijan and a pair of Tampa Bay players from his former nemesis to romp home and pick up the first non-MFC and Commissioner championship in the Conference Era. After falling below expectations or just short for years, he's finally brought that championship home. But that's all history - where is he now? Does he need to hide in the dark like your noble Commissioner or does he have the chance to run it back? Or will he take the BCE approach of blowing it up after winning? Maybe what you should do is somewhere in the middle? Anyway Mike is projected for another league contending season with a second ranked team and an 89% chance of making the playoffs and most importantly top projected points.

With what felt like the strongest QB lineups, Mike has dropped in ranks and projected points at QB to fourth. He still boasts a QB1 in Hurts but Mahomes has dropped to a QB2 and Tua has fallen to a QB3. He did add Baker to add to his QB2s and Sam Darnold won his own SuperBowl last year to cement a QB2 spot for himself. Not a bad room but not the room it once was.

Mike's RB got a massive injected of youth and explosiveness adding Bijan (and RB1 of course) for a load of picks. He also has another RB1 in Jonathan Fucking Talyor and four(!) RB2s backing them up with Kyren Williams, D'Andre Swift (how is Swift still even playing – it fells like he's been plodding along for a decade now), walking concussion the Skat man and David Montgomery. This core is somehow ranked second but most importantly is top projected points scorer. Great room. No notes.

Another room, another top 3 unit in rankings and projected points. Mike's WR core has two WR1s in Puka and Olave, another late round gem WR2 in Luther Burden, and two WR3s in newly acquired Mike Evans and DK Metcalf. It's an good room. Not setting the world on fire though and he'll be worried about suspensions and injuries deriding his season.

At TE Mike is the chink in the armour of this team. While he can draft WRs like they grow on trees at TE he's not been so lucky. Very much a room middle of the pack. Pitts may be a TE1 and have finished second at the position last year but take out that 46 point week and he was actually producing more like Dalton Schultz for weeks 1-14 and 16-17. Elsewhere he has Hockenson and Ferguson as 'backup' TE2s with roles in their offences but not setting the world alight. Another team that an investment at TE might be wise when considering they're competing against the likes of Bowers and McBride. Has Mike even got any picks to trade?

With options across each position there's not a lot of problems with bye weeks. The just three fairly significant bye week clashes are week 8 (vs Ross), 10 (vs Alex) and week 11 (vs Dave).

Proud former Bird Gang member Mike's certainly got the quality in nearly every position group to make a phenomenal repeat but is it even good enough to win the LFC now there is actual competition? Now we know Mike can be unfaithful to his team, will he finally consider trading out of some of those blue-chip assets to strengthen in his areas of need?

17. Conclusion

Well done for making it this far. May I be the first to congratulate Alex on winning his first championship and LFC butt plug trophy. A well-deserved victory after a textbook rebuild. Something for us all to aspire to.....particularly your noble Commissioner.

Anyway, don't take what I've said too much to heart. What do I know? Maybe do take my rankings a bit more to heart than the experts but given both levels of inaccuracy maybe take them with a pinch of salt too. There's still time to change your fortunes – whether that's to win this year or beyond.

In any case, enjoy the highs and lows of another Dynasty season and remember: in the end there can be only one glorious champion.

Commissioner Note:

This was produced entirely by his own human hands. The website has been updated with the latest AI images for your teams. Enjoy.