

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – Regular Season Review

I. General

We made it to week 14 with a record breaking season! Thank you all for being so active and engaged in the league and for making the moves to keep the league competitive.

And competitive it was. Almost everyone was in with a shout of the playoffs with three games remaining and only one out of it (Lee) with one crucial match to play.

It's good that the draft system seems to have done it's work in balancing the league with all of last year's bottom four featuring in it again. Congratulations must go to Chris, Gareth, Lee and Ross; you're all in with a shout of picking up that coveted No. 1 pick!

Last season I commended Alex for taking the No. 1 spot quite comfortably, so I'll do the same for myself and for breaking last season's record in week 13. I reluctantly think that Ross must also be congratulated for not coming in the bottom 4 which I think most of us anticipated after trading away Aaron Jones and Tyreek Hill in the preseason.

II. Newbrook Felons Falcons (Chris) – Seed #10

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
5	9	1,552.18 (10)	1,611.34 (1)	-59.16 (8)	1,998.02 (8)	445.84 (10)	77.7 (10)	159.04	91.82

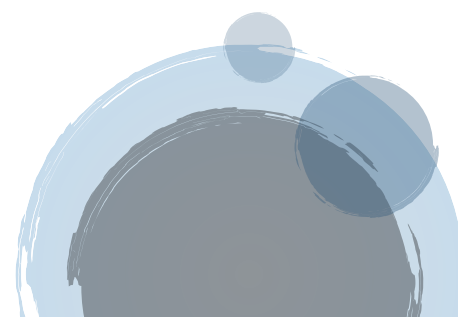

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
77	8 th	7 th	72(-5)	10 th	-2	-3

Once again Chris' team only dropped below the pre-season prediction. His team of intrepid crooks and Joe Burrow started well, like a child pickpocket in Barcelona, but soon got overconfident and inevitably found themselves in trouble with the Policia resulting in an 8-loss sentence (in 9 games).

There was no early release for good behaviour but his street urchins were straight back to work picking up another 2 wins to see the season off. His young offenders were struck by several injuries which contributed to this long losing sentence including: Zach Wilson, Crock, Gordon, Robinson, Julio, Jeudy, Higgins, Fant and Schultz.

Chris' bandits rarely featured in a top scoring position, picking up just 7 of these weekly awards. However, his bench did take the weekly 'awards' by storm with an all-time record of 18 awards! He was never best manager but was a criminally poor picker and was worst manager an all-time league high of 5 times (I told you it was a record breaking season)!

Going into the toilet bowl for the first time, Chris needs his delinquents to stay fit for him to pull off a heist for the coveted No. 1 pick.

III. I am the Waller and Russ (Gareth) – Seed #9

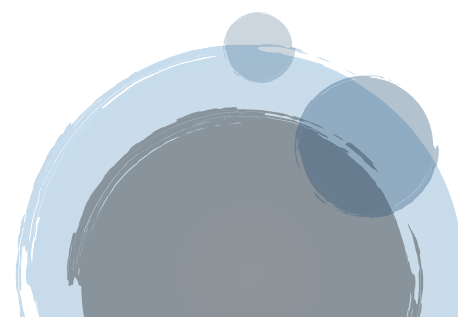

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
5	9	1,600.72 (9)	1,777.54 (5)	-176.82 (10)	1,847.60 (10)	246.88 (1)	86.6 (1)	137.24	83.60

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
91	4 th	4 th	76 (-15)	9 th	-5	-5

Last season's projected winner and eventual runner up found himself lower in projections for this year but he eventually finished even lower. The later rookie draft pick from last year meant that Gareth didn't have an injection of youth to immediately plug and play into his aging side and I don't think I need to mention the 'T' word. So, when injuries to Wilson, Sanders, CEH, Waller and Woods hit, hard times fell on Waller and Russ.

As the league's second lowest actual and basement potential points scorer, it'll come as no surprise that Gareth's players had the fewest top scoring appearances in the weekly awards with just 4 top scorers (and half of those were his kickers) and 3 benchwarmers (1 of which was a kicker). Despite this Gareth did show his GM credentials winning best manager with an all-time record of four times and was never worst manager.

Now he's out of the playoff hunt, maybe there could be a change of tac and he could finally consider shifting some of those veterans for younger prospects and/or picks??? Unlikely – I'm sure he'll be hoping for one last hurrah from his aging players now can help bolster his 'young studs' into a contending side again.

IV. Jazzy Jefferson and The Fresh Jameis (Lee) – Seed #8

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
5	9	1,741.12 (7)	1,788.46 (7)	-47.34 (6)	2,136.62 (4)	395.50 (7)	81.5 (9)	165.24	69.64

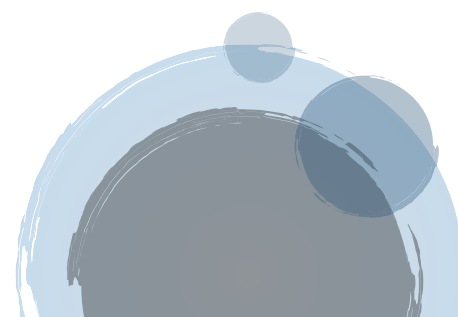

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
90	5 th	6 th	82 (-8)	8 th	-3	-2

Lee met expectations last season and, although he had a losing record, made the playoffs. This season he's fallen short of those expectations. Through a combination of injuries, poor selections and some high-scoring matchups Lee has found himself near the bottom of the pile

It's been a season of two halves for Lee. He posted some great scores in weeks 1 to 7 and was third top scorer in that time. However, he only won two games in this period. Injuries to Travis Etienne, Winston and Ridley have hurt him but so did trading away Travis Kelce and Lenny Fournette (but did bank him a couple of firsts). Weeks 8 to 14 saw a lower scoring side with the losses to accompany it, but his form has picked up at just the right time.

His players have often been top scorers in weekly awards with 14, however, Kelce accounts for three of those, as does his defence. His lack of quality bench shined through with the bench 'awards', collecting just 7 of them. He only won best manager once but was worst manager 3 times!

There's no sneaking into the playoffs with a negative record this year, he's firmly in the toilet bowl. His late season form led by Connor, Jefferson and Kittle could yet nab him that overall no. 1 pick.

V. Kittle-less Chips (Alex) –Seed #7

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
6	8	1,681.58 (8)	1,741.10 (4)	-59.52 (8)	1,979.38 (9)	297.80 (2)	85.0 (3)	139.84	102.62

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
100	1 st	2 nd	83 (-17)	7 th	-6	-5

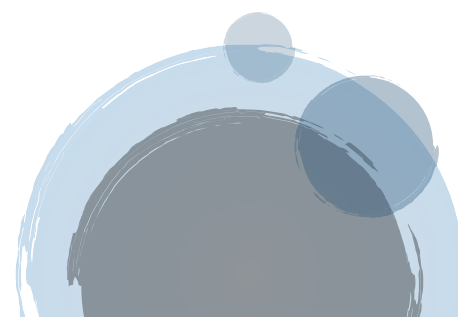

Last season's regular season winner and eventual fourth place finish found himself atop of the pre-season projections and looked set to repeat his performance of last year.

Unfortunately, Alex once again suffered injury problems in key positions with CMC missing a good chunk of the season once again. Kittle also had a stint on IR and Kyler Murray's prolonged absence coincided with Matt Ryan's dip in his usual consistent form.

His players matched last year's consistency, occasionally the top positional scorer picking up 7 of these weekly awards, predominantly at Tight End (2 – Travis Kelce). Likewise, he didn't leave that many points on his bench only taking the weekly 'awards' 4 times, 3 of these at D/ST. He failed to win best manager but was never worst manager. A lot of consistency, never dipping below 100 points in any given week, but unfortunately a high of 139 meant there wasn't enough to pick up those vital victories.

As a result of the aforementioned injuries to key players and lack of boom scoring players, he fell short of expectations by coming seventh. Alex made one significant change to his team through trading in the season, moving on from the injured Kittle replacing him with Travis Kelce and Baker Mayfield. But at what cost? His 2022 2nd and 3rd and his 2023 1st! Along with trading his 2022 1st pre-season for Chris Godwin, Alex was balls-deep committed to winning this season

So, is the commitment going to pay off in the playoffs? Ah, no. He's not in them. Instead, a fit again Kyler, the Chiefs coming into form with Kelce the No. 1 target, Diggs is hitting his stride at just the right time and a consistent supporting cast put Ross (!) in a decent position to compete for the No. 1 pick.

VI. Inch by Inch (Dudders) –Seed #6

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
6	8	1,755.38 (4)	1,849.10 (9)	-93.72 (9)	2,106.22 (6)	350.84 (4)	83.3 (4)	162.46	95.08

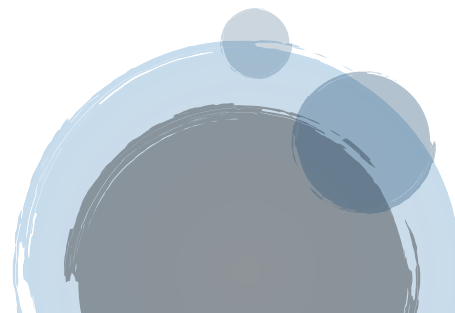

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
85	6 th	=8 th	78 (-7)	6 th	-	+2

In an improvement from last season, he has met (and exceeded) pre-season expectations rather than falling short of them. He'll be delighted he made the playoffs with an end of season push and being fourth top scorer.

The six consecutive defeats from weeks 4 to 9 really hurt his season but he may consider himself very unlucky. In that stretch his opponent averaged over 150 points with many of his scores beating pretty much anyone other than his opponent. Like so many teams it's been a season blighted by so many injuries including Devonte Adams, Cam Akers, AJ Brown, Kareem Hunt, Aaron Rodgers, Antonio Brown, Fuller, Justin Fields and Kenny G.

Rich's players featured fairly in the top scoring position weekly awards. He won 9 of these and with so many players injured his bench didn't take the weekly 'awards' regularly with just 5. He won best manager twice and was worst manager just once.

With the talent in Rich's team he has every chance of taking home the championship belt if he can finally avoid opponents putting up their season high scores!

VII. Dak to the Future (Dave) – Seed #5

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
7	7	1,887.28 (3)	1,930.18 (10)	-42.90 (4)	2,284.52 (2)	397.24 (8)	82.6 (8)	163.06	87.56

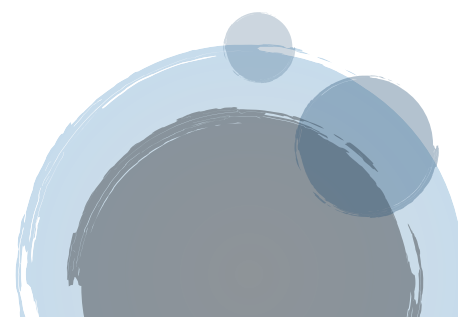

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
94	3 rd	3 rd	97 (+3)	5 th	-2	-2

Last season's Trevor Trophy winner found himself third in pre-season projections and looked set to compete for a non-losers trophy this year. Of all the teams Dave has made some of the most significant changes from his draft and continued with this in season once again making the most in season trades.

Much like last year, Dave's team was plagued by injuries, including those to Dak, Chubb, Hopkins, Carson and Chark. Different to last year, the strengthening he did through trading meant that he survived this year and has made it to the playoffs for the first time.

Dave's fell a little below expectations but has done this despite his players rarely featuring in the top scoring position only picking up 6 of these weekly awards, predominantly at Kicker (3). Conversely, he did leave quite a few points on his bench, taking the weekly 'awards' 11 times, 5 of these at RB. Similarly to last year, Dave was never best manager award but was worst manager once.

Going into the playoffs, Dave's team is mostly fit and healthy. His QB and RB rooms are strong but he doesn't have the elite receivers of the other contenders. He has the advantage of the experience of winning when it matters (admittedly against the weakest last year), will that help him take the big prize this year?

VIII. Canton Giants (Neil) –Seed #4

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
8	6	1,746.30 (6)	1,791.18 (7)	-44.88 (5)	2,105.88 (6)	359.58 (6)	82.9 (=6)	171.94	64.70

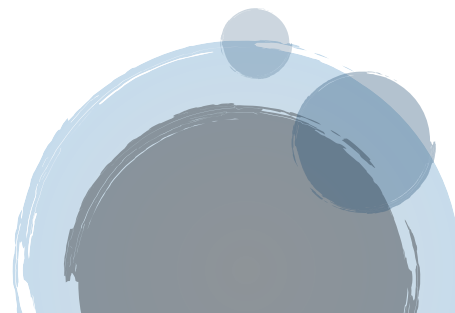

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
73	9 th	10 th	87 (+14)	4 th	+5	+6

While Neil sadly met his rather low expectations last season he has blown up the pre-season predictions. It may have taken until week 13 to confirm it but he sealed what before the season seemed like an unexpected playoff spot.

Neil had a magnificent start to the season with Kupp, Najee and Mike Williams starting off on fire helping to put up 150+ point totals in three of the first five weeks. However, from week 9 to week 12 he's failed to record more than 100 points and limped into the playoffs.

Neil's players have featured frequently in the top scoring position weekly awards at the beginning of the season, notably Kupp picking up 4 WR awards. His bench rarely took home the weekly 'awards' with only 6 players taking awards. His up and down season is shown in the best/worst manager awards: he won best manager three times and worst manager twice.

Neil's season could still end with a massive positive if he can regain his early season form. He's got himself a lottery ticket so we'll see how far he can go. One thing for certain is the golden turd will be finding a new home.

IX. Justin Allentown (Ross) – Seed #3

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
8	6	1,751.40 (5)	1,737.14 (3)	14.26 (3)	2,110.32 (5)	358.92 (5)	83.0 (5)	169.22	89.08

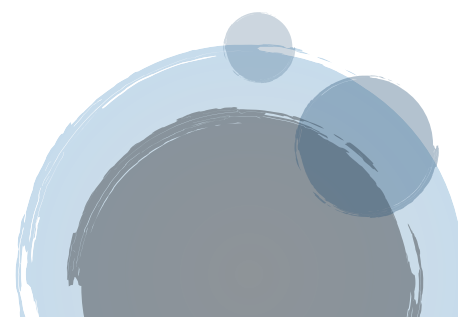

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
66	10 th	=8 th	79 (+13)	3 rd	+7	+5

I was really hoping that this year I wouldn't have to do this again. He's been so smug after winning and he wasn't supposed to do well this year.

Ross had a league power ranking of 66 which put him bottom of the league for this season but what does experts know, eh? Once again, nothing. It's not been the statistical anomaly of last season though. He's 100 points short of his league campaign last year (with an extra game). That doesn't matter though – he picked up the 8 wins to secure a playoff spot for the second year running.

So what's Ross' secret? There's no secret – it's the 60 points a week he gets from Josh Allen and Justin Herbert. His players were rarely the top scoring in any one position only picking up 7 of these weekly awards, except for at QB where he picked up a further 7! His bench was fairly strong though....at Kicker and defence. They took a further 6 of these 'awards'. Despite coming third he only won best manager once but probably more telling was he was never worst manager.

Going into the playoffs he must fancy his chances of retaining the championship belt. He's done it before but his team this year is not as elite at RB and WR. Surely, he can't do it again!? Please, for the love of all that is holy, someone's got to beat him.....please!

X. Tompa Bay Bucs (Mike) – Seed #2

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
8	6	1,923.76 (2)	1,817.40 (8)	106.36 (2)	2,248.66 (3)	324.90 (3)	85.6 (2)	162.88	82.34

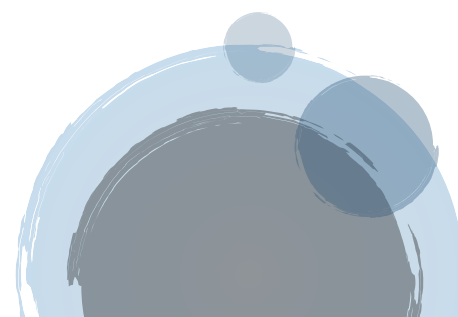

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
83	7 th	5 th	89 (+6)	2 nd	+5	+3

While Mike met his rather low expectations last season, he has somewhat defied them this year. He was projected to be around the playoffs but secured his playoff spot in week 10 and his week 15 bye in week 14!

Mike's side has been a model of consistency and his players matched this. One player aside, his players have rarely been the top scorer in any one position only picking up 6 of these weekly awards, predominantly at RB (3). Likewise, he didn't leave that many points on his bench only taking the weekly 'awards' 8 times, 4 times at QB.

Consistency aside, perhaps part of the reason that Mike has somewhat exceeded expectations is that he's largely avoided injury to his top players. The other reason is record breaking Jonathan 'fucking' Taylor. He's been on fire this year and set an all-time record in week 11 with 51.9 points! It's not just consistency and JT leading to all these victories, Mike's been picking well (second highest at 85.6%) and picked up the best manager award twice.

Going into the playoffs, Mike's team remains healthy, he's got JT on fire and strength in depth across most position groups. He's got as good a chance as anyone of emulating his precious Bucs and coming home with the big prize.

XI. Saquontum Leap (Jebus) – Seed #1

W	L	Pts (rank)						High	Low
		For	Against	Diff	Max For	Missed	Pick %
12	2	2,028.16 (1)	1,624.44 (2)	403.72 (1)	2,445.16 (1)	417.00 (9)	82.9 (=6)	209.52	100.74

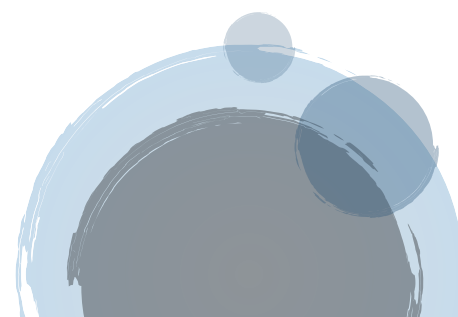

Pre-Season Rankings			Result		Difference
Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™	Power Ranking	Finish	Prediction	JR
96	2 nd	1 st	100 (+4)	1 st	+1	-

While Jebus massively exceeded expectations last year and, frankly, didn't deserve to make the playoffs never-mind finish third, he's more or less met expectations this year. Those expectations were high and with a league high 12-2 record, secured a playoff spot in week 8, top spot in week 11, a record-breaking 2,028.16 points and a weekly point record of 209.52 to boot.

It is not a surprise that Jebus' players have featured in the top scoring position weekly awards. He's won 11 of these with Henry picking it up thrice. Displaying his strength in depth (or inability to select his best players) his bench also took 12 weekly 'awards' regularly, with 6 going to his WRs. However, he only won best manager once and was worst manager twice.

Similar to most teams this year, he's had his fair share of injuries at times losing Lamar, Saquon, Aaron Jones, Deebo, Thielen, Marquise Brown and Amari Cooper. His biggest loss could have been King Henry but he swiftly resolved this by bringing in Mixon to replace him.

As with many others, Jebus has sacrificed a lot to build this competing team. Can it now go all the way and take the belt? His team was stuttering coming into the final stretch and his high scoring dominance from the early season seems to have vanished a bit.

XII. Awards

So to our end of regular season awards. I've given you a few updates of progress along the way but who are the managers who went the extra mile to pick up the awards?

League Winner

Self-explanatory and decided after only four games:

Your Noble Commissioner

Top Scorer

Again self-explanatory:

Your Noble Commissioner – 2,028.16

Followed by Mike (1,923.76) and Dave (1,887.28).

Best Defence

Chris – 1,611.34

Followed by Jebus (1,624.44) and Ross (1,737.14)

Bestballer

If we had been playing Bestball and your best lineup had played every week the league winner would have been:

Your Noble Commissioner – 2,445.16

Followed by Dave (2,284.52) and Mike (2,248.66)

Worstballer

Bottom of the bestball pile (and would be No.1 pick winner)?

Gareth

Followed by Alex and Chris

Overachiever

Who picked up the greatest number of overachiever awards? You always under-estimate the veterans in fantasy football:

Dave and Jebus

Wisest Manager

Who picked their closest to optimal team?

Gareth – 86.6%

Followed by Mike (85.6%) and Alex (85.0%)

Clueless Manager

Who basically picked their team at random?

Chris

Followed by Lee and Dave

Fine Margins

By winning the most games by a fine margin (4) and squeezing into the playoffs with a negative record on points scored this award goes to:

Dudders

Highs and Lows

This award goes to a GM who had the second highest blowouts but was on the receiving end of the most:

Ross

MVP Picker

They drafted studs who outperformed all their positional counterparts the most:

Ross – 14

Followed by Lee (12) and Jebus (11)

~~Best Bench~~ Poorest Picker

They drafted studs but just couldn't fit them into their table topping teams:

Chris - 18

Followed by Jebus (12) and Dave (11)