

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2022 Rookie Draft Preview

I. Introduction

We made it through another COVID hit season with our worthy winner Dave taking the belt. We've all now taken the chance to review our teams and cut our rosters down to 25. With the NFL Draft in a few weeks and our draft in just over a month, it is the time of hopes and dreams. When people value free agent movers such as Gage, MVS and Kirk as actual commodities. And injury plagued players like CMC, Saquon and Carson could somehow shake off the injuries and become productive once more. Or players traded to dramatically different situations can somehow become great like Carson Wentz, Amari Cooper or Mitch Trubisky [Spoiler – you'll all be terribly disappointed].

I thought it would be helpful to do a little review of all the teams. Is your team as good / bad as you think? Where might people need to draft some young blood to improve their team. Will you need to trade up to get your man? Does the draft matter at all and can you trade actual players to improve your team?

All these questions will not get answered and there will only be numerous other questions like: is our Commissioner deluded he can compete again? Is Chris' team any good? Why is Gareth's team so old? Does Ross even need a QB? One thing that is for sure – a few of us need to update the out-of-date team names / branding.

II. Rule Changes

Thank you all for agreeing to the changes to the rules last month. Updated rules are online but to confirm:

- Two conferences created with the winner of each conference getting a regular season prize and bye to week 16. Second in the conference guaranteed a playoff spot with third also in the playoffs (subject to 'Rule 3').
- Playoffs via conference with the two conference 'winners' playing off in the Championship Game.
- Taxi expanded to 7 slots with the previous years' rookies still on the taxi at the following years rookie draft allowed to be retained for a second year only.
- An additional Flex spot from the 2023 Season on.
- Trade deadline now 6pm on Sunday of Week 15.
- £5 additional subs to support conference winners' prizes and a new top week points scorer prize.

Hopefully, these changes will help create rivalries while keeping the league competitive long-term and still give something for non-playoff teams to play for. I'm sure we all have our own conference chats, trophies and memorabilia sorted too.

III. 2022 Rookie Draft

The draft board (as things stand) is in the table below:

Pick	Round 1	Round 2	Dave's Round (3)	Round 4	Round 5
1	ROSS (via Alex)	LEE (via Alex)	DAVE (via Alex)	LEE (via Dave via Alex)	Alex
2	CHRIS (via Gareth)	GARETH	GARETH	GARETH	GARETH
3	CHRIS	GARETH (via Chris)	CHRIS	CHRIS	CHRIS
4	LEE	LEE	LEE	LEE	LEE
5	NEIL	CHRIS (via Neil)	NEIL	NEIL	NEIL
6	ROSS	LEE (via Ross)	ROSS	ROSS	ROSS
8	DAVE (via Ross via Jebus)	ROSS via Jebus)	DAVE (via Jebus)	JEBUS	JEBUS
9	RICH	RICH	RICH	RICH	RICH
10	DAVE	MIKE (via Dave)	DAVE	NEIL (via Dave)	DAVE

Unlike last year when there was a consensus 1.01, Ross has his pick of a murky bunch. There's a lot of QB needy teams as always but not what appears to be an outstanding intake of rookie QBs, or not ones that will necessarily start this year. There's also a strong WR class but maybe we shouldn't be expecting another Justin Jefferson or Ja'marr Chase. RBs look a little trickier with one standout prospect and potentially a bit of a drop-off from there. At TE there is a decent class but not more unicorns.

One thing is clear right now is our draft will be dominated by three GMs – Ross, Chris and Dave. Each with two first round picks, they hold some keys to how the draft will fall. Unless they trade it all away? Another note is that the MFL looks like it will heavily influence the draft as they hold the first six picks.

IV. Picks #1 and #6 – One Flew Over the Rookies Nest – Ross – Madden Conference

So, we open with an MFC team and former champion with Ross. He appears to need a QB, RBs, WRs, TEs and a kicker to put up a fight in 2022 and to stay competitive in the long-term. Sure, he has a young team but with a highest rank of 6 (RB) in '22 and 4 (QB) in dynasty it's not looking great for Ross. No wonder he has the 1.01. He does have the most draft capital and he'll need to live up to his team name and make some crazy accurate picks and hit with those rookies to improve his team.

Ross' most obvious strength comes at QB. Two staggeringly good starters but once again he has no backup. He has the picks to add a third but would this be at the expense of the rest of his roster as it has been to date. He could trade one of his big two for a king's ransom and set his overall team up to be a top competitor but so far has not even countenanced the thought. A conundrum we will all be intrigued to see resolved.

Unlike last year, Ross has several RBs in his core but with only one of any value. He's got plenty of committee backs and backups but he may need to draft here to improve his roster.

A very similar story at WR. Ross has several WRs in his core but again only one of top value and several with new QBs at the helm. In a position known for its inconsistency, drafting in this area could be a must given his picks and the WR prospects available.

Aligned with the rest of his team building he has a plethora of TEs but this comes at the cost of quality. If he wants to win again trading for a better TE may could secure him another victory and win back that coveted belt.

V. Pick #2 and #3 – Falcons – Chris – Madden Conference

Dynasty Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital
Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR Score	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC - DC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC

3.23	5	5	3.32	4	3	5	2	1	7	8	5	6	1	3	3	6

At Number 2 – after a spectacular effort in getting Gareth to agree to a trade! – and 3 we have another MFC team, Chris’s freshly rebranded Falcons. Like Ross’s team, it’s pretty young (!?) but Chris is more of an average team, ranked 5 overall for ’22 and Dynasty with some highlights and low-lights. In ’22 rankings his team hits a low at 7 at WR and a high of 2 at RB. In Dynasty rankings he hits a low of 6 at RB and WR but high of 2 at QB (presumably it is assumed that the small-toweled massage enthusiast Watson will continue his career at some point). Despite having two top-three picks this year, Chris’s team also has bang average draft capital at fifth. Having little capital in the ’23 draft is probably hurting him here.

Chris’ team ostensibly has a small number of quality QBs with strength in its relative youth averaging just 25.5 years old. However, the aforementioned Brown, combined with a QB who is not predicted to be on the field until game 4-6 at the earliest means it could be a difficult start to the season at QB. Could Chris take one of this years top prospects with the 2 or 3 and forget about his QB core for the next decade?

Chris starting RBs demonstrate Chris’ commitment to competing for the 2022 season. Cook and Henry are certainly big names at or near the top of their game but aren’t getting any younger and are well past traditional RB peak age. Both also have health concerns. So, who will fill in during bye weeks and injuries. Another old RB without a team and a young fella coming back from an Achilles injury in a RBBC. Chris has the opportunity at 2 and 3 to add one of those top backs in this draft to help solidify his RB unit as the number one and insulate him for future years when the King and Cook inevitably decline.

Chris’ WR core is an interesting one. Experts, public and JR rankings all suggest that Chris’ WR core is on the weaker side in the league. With the exception of Tee Higgins all his WR have some question marks on them – virtually all his WRs (certainly all of any starting value) have either new QB or are on new teams. Will drafting a WR(s) help him out? As this class has a lot of quality prospects and he’ll have his pick of them - Probably.

One word describes Chris’ TE core – shallow. He has just two players. One injury and he’s in real trouble. Some might say, well most judging by his rankings, that he’s in trouble anyway. Schultz was last years TE4 though so maybe he has some hope. A big trade for one of the big names will certainly give him the positional advantage he needs. Looking long-term that mid-second round pick or even a third could snag him a future TE star.

VI. Pick #4 – J J F J – Lee – Madden Conference

Dynasty Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital

2.65	2	1	2.76	1	8	9	2	5	1	1	1	4	1	2	1	2

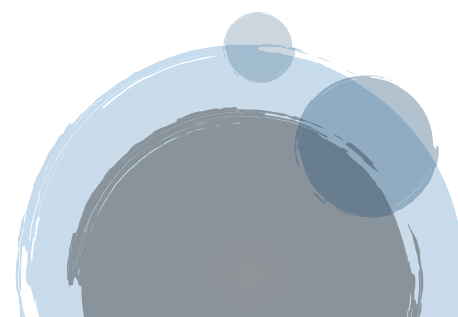

Another high pick, another MFC team. Unlike the last two, Lee's team is very much in a position of strength. His three first round picks last year could be the model for others to follow. From relatively low rankings he has the overall ranked no. 2 team in dynasty and '22 with the third youngest team bolstered by the third ranked draft capital. If his team is so good how does he have the fourth overall pick you may ask - are there any weaknesses to this team?

Yes – it would appear that Lee's QB core is a bit uncertain and this is reflected in all the rankings. Derek Carr is settled in as a QB2 with some great new weapons but much is uncertain in his other two. Trey Lance could be Lamar Jackson 2.0....or Jalen Hurts....or Daniel Jones...or Marcus Mariota. We just don't know yet. Jameis has been handed another go with the Saints but he wasn't setting the world alight last year before his injury. Will he use his 1.04 to snag another young QB?

Lee's RB core has been much improved by his acquisition of last years RB2. He's still middle of the pack (according to ECR) and the age profile of his starters would suggest to me it could be sensible to pick one of those top three RBs to sustain a competitive team for the next few years (assuming Trey Lance is a thing).

WR looks like an area where Lee can just relax, smugly knowing he's got the youngest and best WR core. Will he be able to resist adding another young WR? He should but this man is not always rational.

With a tier 1 and 2 TE, Lee's TE core ranks near the top in 2022 and dynasty. He doesn't need another TE but he didn't need Chase last year either. Maybe some investment would be wise given that 7th ranked age profile.

VII. Picks #5 – Canton Giants – Neil – Madden Conference

Dynasty Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital

3.94	8	10	4.13	9	10	10	8	4	4	2	8	9	8	8	3	5

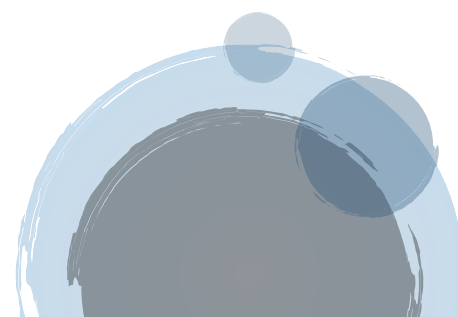

At pick 5 we have yet another MFC team. Neil's team has moved up the ranks from bottom last year to 8th with an appearance in the playoffs to boot. Slow and steady progress. Much like Ross, Neil's got needs more or less across the board. With highs of 4 in '22 and 3 in dynasty rankings WR is probably the one position he could pass over.

Neil's QBs are ranked 10th in both dynasty and '22 and it's hard to argue with that assessment. To his credit he does have three NFL starters but unless one of them makes a gigantic and completely unexpected leap, Goff, Danny Dimes and Mills probably aren't going to give you a positional advantage. Perhaps the 1.05 there will be an immediate opportunity to improve.

Things aren't quite so bad at RB. Ranked middle of the pack in Dynasty mainly because his two starters are outstanding. Kamara is still a top RB even if not at the top of his game and Najee was a gem picked up at 1.04 in the last rookie draft. The fall off from there is pretty grim though – Johnson, Gaskin and Hines. Neil's got two prime candidates to sell in a rebuild or that 1.05 could provide that depth as he did last year to have another crack at making the playoffs.

At WR a similar pattern emerges the WR1 Cooper Kupp and Mike Evans helps paper over some pretty serious cracks. Another prime candidate to be sold with top of the market value is there or another position where drafting a difference maker could push for another playoff run.

At TE we return to the same problem as his QBs and most teams have a TE. There's no Pitts in this class so drafting a TE in the first round would be a waste but he definitely has the assets to trade for one of the top players.

VIII. Pick #7 – Tompa Bay Bucs – Mike – Lombardi Conference

Dynasty Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital
Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR Score	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC - DC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC

2.75	3	4	3.17	2	1	2	1	2	9	9	1	3	4	4	3	3

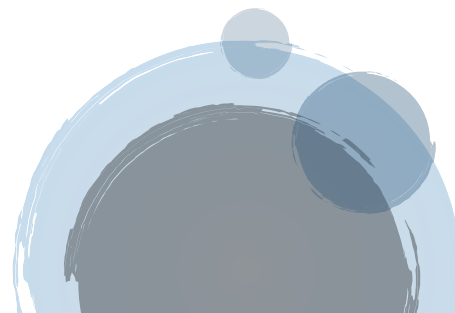

Finally at pick 7 we get to an LFC team with Mike. And what a team Mike has assembled. Ranked dynasty No. 1 at QB, RB, TE and overall, with the youngest team to boot, it's built to last. This hasn't been at the expense of competing now either. He's ranked 1 at QB, RB and TE and 3rd overall he's in with a shout of the championship once again. His draft capital isn't looking too hot at 8th but that's the problem finishing so high the season before. All looks good for Mike but for those with a keen eye there's an elephant in the room that probably needs addressing.

While Ross has the top two QBs Mike's core gives him a run for his money. It goes without saying that Mahomes is at the top of his tree but with another top 10 QB in Hurts and Tua providing cover, Mike's pretty settled at QB. Will he use his 1.07 to add further cover here – unlikely – there's an elephant that needs addressing.

In a contrast to this time last year, Mike's has no concerns at RB. Sitting at the top in both '22 and dynasty an addition here in the draft would just be rubbing salt into the wounds of the rest of the league.

Then we get to that elephant. His Achilles heal. The reason he didn't win last year? Regardless of what metric you use Mike's WR are by a long way the weakest area of his team, firmly in the bottom three in his conference and the league. That 1.07 looks most likely to be spent here but he's not going to be able to draft a Tyreek Hill, Cooper Kupp or Devante Adams. Would that pick be better packaged with another asset(s) for a top WR from someone else so he has a real shot at winning the championship?

Drafting Pitts at 3 last year and backed up by Hockenson, Mike's TE core is not a concern for him.

IX. Pick #8 and #10 – Draft to the Future – Dave – Lombardi Conference

Dynasty Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital

3.69	7	7	3.79	6	5	6	10	10	6	10	6	7	4	5	3	7

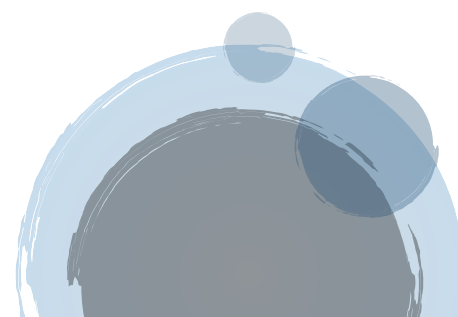

What a tumultuous off season it's been for Dave. As seems to be tradition now, the previous champion trades their better assets for the Commissioner's 1st round draft picks. But the LFC's Dave went a whole lot further trading 4 of his championship winning side for four first round picks, a few other picks and some inconsequential players. So where does that leave his team? 7th in both dynasty and '22 rankings and second in draft capital. With only two first round picks this year and a team that needs a bit of work it looks like Dave is aiming to take a high pick in what is being billed as an exceptional '23 draft class.

Dave's QB room is around middle of the pack both in '22 and dynasty rankings. Having traded for the reliable but not exceptional Mac Jones, it looks better than it did. He certainly needs not worry about having starters for a good few years. Will Dave throw a dart in the first round again and add to his ever expanding collection of QBs and try to corner the market?

Dave's RB core has been depleted with only Fournette and Elijah Mitchell keeping him from the deepest of depths of the rankings but maybe that's the point. He could take an RB at 8 or 10 but is there a benefit; waiting until '23 is probably more profitable.

The WR core looks another needy part of his team for '22 but the dynasty outlook is a little better. This is a good WR draft class but does Dave need to draft here? It depends on what he wants out of those '23 picks.

TE is a difficult position to crack. There are four standout players so at sixth in '22 and 4th in dynasty, Dave is the best of the rest. Maybe he could trade one of those '23 firsts for one?

X. Pick #9 – Inch by Inch – Rich – Lombardi Conference

Dynasty Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital
Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR Score	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC - DC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Age Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC

3.35	6	6	3.9	7	3	8	6	9	3	3	7	8	4	6	9	9

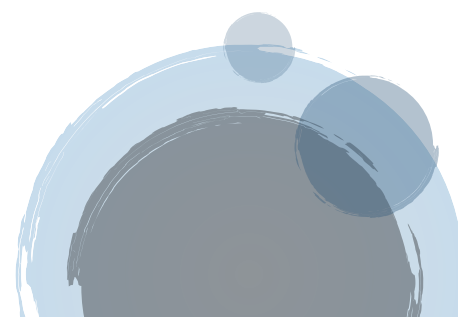

From the No. 2 pic to second. What a 12 months Rich has had! Looks like it's back down to earth for the LFC team when we look at the rankings though. A middle of the pack rank of 6th overall in '22 and dynasty, he's got another team with some highs and lows. Highs of 3 at QB and 4 at WR (in '22) are matched with lows of 8 at RB and 7 at TE. With a late first there's a few needs to fill with only one pick and a quickly aging team.

With the No. 2 pick last year, Rich picked up Justin Fields who heads into his second year and first as the clear No.1 on his team. Added to this, new contracts for Rodgers and Cousins and a new team for Trubisky leaves Rich in a comfortable QB position but not at the top of the pack. If one of the better QBs in this draft drops to him it could give him cover for the 2 QBs fast approaching their 40s. Alternatively, he could cash in on one of his starters to strengthen his team in other areas.

Rich's RB core appears to be one of his key weaknesses and one that can be addressed in the draft. Cam Akers is young and miraculously back from an achilles rupture is his obvious top asset. After that it gets a bit murkier. AJ Dillon could be taking over from Aaron Jones but Devante leaving may leave Rodgers wanting a familiar face in the backfield. Zeke is too expensive to drop but he appears to have lost some 'juice' and Kareem Hunt shares a backfield with the dominant Chubb. If one of those top RBs somehow makes it to 1.09 the temptation must be there to help provide a clear RB2.

Thanks to some excellent drafting, WR looks like an area where Rich is second only to Lee. He has low dynasty value but high production with the likes of Devante Adams and the youthful and rookie reception record holder in Jalen Waddle. This WR draft class if good and he could add to his core again if he doesn't want to cover the apparent holes elsewhere.

Rich has a terrible TE core according to most metrics ranks. I wonder if he regrets passing up on Pitts last year now he has so many starting QBs? In any case, I expect Rich to consider picking up a TE at some point in the draft to add to the hopes that Njoku or Ertz can provide some consistent weekly scores.

The no trade experiment is over!!! With a tremendous two trades in one evening the floodgates have opened as does a world of options to improve the oldest team in the league. Along with opening the trade books has Gareth also set a direction of travel for his team, much like Dave punting '22 to focus on '23? Going from his pick of this draft to having two next year would suggest he may have. As it stands, with an overall dynasty rank of 9th and '22 rank of 8th it may be his team has made the decision for him too. It's not all doom and gloom though, he has the youngest RB core with one top quality to match it and top 4 draft capital and the world of trading open to him, it's a new game now for G in the LFC.

It looks like the consensus is that Gareth's QB room could probably do with a bit of a refresh. He had a high enough pick this year to select an QB to inject some much-needed youth but that ship has sailed. However, as Mariota, Wentz and Wilson have found new homes, he has enough starters to not have to trade to cover him for this year and have a fresh face to step in next year. I would have said that is music to Gareth's ears but we live in a new reality now.

In stark contrast to the rest of his team, RB is the one position which has youth on its side. However, with one notable exception, it may be youthful but perhaps lacking in quality. There where high hopes for Sanders and CEH but neither has really panned out to be a top back thus far. Is now the time to cash in on that young stud, Javonte Williams, and set himself up for the future or will he try to ride him to victory?

WR looks like an area where Gareth may unsurprisingly need to seek some long-term improvement. His aging core has low dynasty value and limited high value production. He must be considering using that second round pick on a WR that might drop to him at the start of that round.

Whilst not blessed with youth his TE core does have real quality in Waller. Only injury is likely to be a concern for this area of his team, for now. Alternatively, it's a high value asset which could boost the long-term value of his roster.

The last of the MFC is here and in contrast to the rest of his conference, has no top picks again – zigging while others zag, a recipe for success? Sadly a preview of the upcoming draft seems rather perfunctory as to all intents and purposes Jebus won't really be taking part in the draft unless there is some dramatic trading. What's his team like anyway? Middling in dynasty at 4th but at no. 1 for '22 he's obviously hoping to replicate last season's dominant form but with an ending that Watson prefers at the end of a massage. What has this top ranking cost? All his draft capital – 10th as per usual – the Rams of the MFC and our league.

Jebus is a very luck boy with that QB core for this year. He's gone from more or less bottom of the pack with Lamar, Jimmy G and no QB3 to arguably the best with Lamar, Dak and Brady thanks to ~~too much alcohol~~ further selling of his future and a change of heart from the goat. Maybe in hindsight if he knew Brady was staying his (and Dave's) teams might look different now. A sliding doors moment?

An above average RB core at both '22 and dynasty rankings but with an average age of nearly 26 a long-term injection of youth and quality here is a must. Maybe one day he'll have a pick where he can draft a young RB?

Another above average core with his WRs pretty highly ranked at both '22 and dynasty rankings. However, this is another team where some of the top receivers are on new teams with a fresh scheme to learn and chemistry to develop with their QBs. Another problem is the average age of 27. Yet another area where an injection of youth has to be long-term aim.

Jebus' TE core is bolstered by last years' TE1. He's one of the lucky ones with those to TEs. He'll be hoping he stays injury free to have a chance to win his conference.

XIII. Pick #41 – Kittle-less Chips – Alex – Lombardi Conference

Dynasty Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital

Last but not least is the last of the LFC and someone with even fewer draft picks than Jebus! Probably another team not really worth doing a draft preview for but let's do it anyway for completeness. Alex's overall dynast ranking of 3 and '22 ranking of 4 means he doesn't need to worry too much about not having any picks. He traded out of this draft for the (now injured) Godwin and next years draft for Kelce so he can't complain too much.

It's highly unlikely one of the QBs will drop to him in the fifth round so how does he address the middling positional rank of his QBs (5th in '22 and 4th in dynasty)? He has three starters as it stands so doesn't need another one so maybe he can wait for the '23 class, oh wait.....

Alex RB core is small but well formed. CMC should be fresh after playing just 10 games in two years and Gibson is in his third year after two RB1 seasons. Will he use his 5th round pick to bolster this part of his roster?

Alex sacrificed his first-round pick in this draft (and a third-round pick from last year) to improve his WR core. With such impressive recent draft classes and Godwin's ACL injury, he finds his core is now somewhat middle of the pack. This WR class is deep but is it 5 rounds deep?

Alex pushed his chips (and his '23 first!) in to obtain the TE1 or 2 from the last six years. It was a sound investment and with Knox as his backup he could be doing worse in this position.

XIV. Conclusion

Have I been too harsh? Not harsh enough? Are the rankings actually worth the data they're saved in? I hope I have inspired some contemplations of rosters which will result in some great trading before, during and after our draft on 13th May. I'm very much looking forward to the NFL Draft and then our second rookie draft which hopefully will be 90% in person! Plans are afoot so I can do my best Goodell impression and big hugs all round!
