

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2023 Rookie Draft Review

I. Introduction

Firstly, thanks to everyone for getting together for our first ever all in-person draft and a very enjoyable evening. Special credit must go to Dave for his marvellous hosting and BBQ. We made it through our third Rookie Draft relatively unscathed and I think it's safe to say there were some surprises (who the fuck is Jaren Hall??)! Once again, I'll be addressing the questions: Is your team as good/bad as you think? Does the draft tell us if you are you winning now or looking to secure some of the top picks? Where might people need to trade to improve their team to push them up the rankings? Did the draft actually matter?

All these questions will not get answered and there will only be numerous other questions like: is our Commissioner deluded? Is Chris' team any good? When will Lee get a QB who's any good? Will the LFC ever become a force to be reckoned with? One thing is for sure – there's some team brands that need a bit of an update.

II. 2023 Rookie Draft

The draft board finished as the table below. Names highlighted in green indicate the value of the player selected was greater than the value of the pick (according to KTC). Those in red indicate where the players value was less than that of the pick:

Round 1	Round 2	Round 3	Round 4	Round 5
1. A Richardson QB Gareth	1. Q Johnston WR Gareth	1. H Hooker QB Lee	1. I Abanikanda RB Chris	1. T Evans RB Chris
2. B Robinson RB Alex	2. Z Charbonnet RB Alex	2. R Rice WR Alex	2. T Scott WR Alex	2. Z Kuntz TE Chris
3. B Young QB Gareth	3. M Mayer TE Gareth	3. T Bigsby RB Gareth	3. Z Evans RB Gareth	3. S Bennett QB Dave
4. CJ Stroud QB Neil	4. D Achane RB Neil	4. J Downs WR Dave	4. K Boutte WR Neil	4. E Hull RB Neil
5. J Gibbs RB Dave	5. K Miller RB Gareth	5. L Musgrave TE Gareth	5. C Tillman WR Dave	5. T Kraft TE Dave
6. J Smith-Njigba WR Alex	6. J Mingo WR Alex	6. T Spears RB Neil	6. L Schoonmaker TE Dave	6. E Gray RB Jebus
7. J Addison WR Dudders	7. R Johnson RB Dudders	7. J Hall QB Mike	7. D Vaughn RB Mike	7. T Dell WR Dudders
8. Z Flowers WR Ross	8. J Reed WR Neil	8. J Hyatt WR Neil	8. D McBride RB Lee	8. T Tucker WR Neil
9. D Kincaid TE Alex	9. S LaPorta TE Dudders	9. C Brown RB Alex	9. T Palmer WR Mike	9. P Nacua WR Mike
10. W Levis QB Ross	10. M Mims WR Neil	10. AT Perry RB Ross	10. D Washington TE Jebus	10. J Moody K Jebus

Gareth started the draft with a bit of a surprise and picked man-mountain Anthony Richardson at the 1.01 giving Alex the opportunity to pick up Bijan at 1.02! After that our QB needy teams made the right choices and everything went to consensus until pick 7. But I'm not sure there is any consensus after pick 7.

The draft was dominated by Gareth and Alex with their 8 picks each but it'll be remembered for two moments: Mike trading back from the 2.09 to the 3.07, double-crossing Gareth in the process, then picking unknown QB Jaren Hall! He then doubled down on this exciting prospect that no-one knew about, and he could've taken at the 5.09, saying he would've taken him at the 2.09! I would wish him and Mike the best of luck but Mike's had enough of that at QB. The second moment was, of course, the first ever pick of a kicker in a rookie draft by the league's foremost kicker proponent!

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2023 Season Rookie Draft Review

Before I analyse each team, I thought I'd explain the projected points I've used and the order your team appears in. The points come from our friends at Sleeper and as we know are perfect in every way. I've used the total projected points for the maximum number of players at each position you can play every week, excluding superflex for non-QBs, with the exception of TE. No-one in their right mind is going to play 3 TEs. Please don't expect your team to achieve the total points by the end of the season (but very well done if they do!!). So, the points are: 2 QB, 4 RB, 4 WR, 2 TE, 1 Kicker and 1 DST.

The order of teams will appear by team who has done 'the worst' as a result of the NFL and rookie drafts and who has done 'the best'. I've defined this by the change in overall Jebus Dynasty Rankingtm (JDR) from 1 April to 1 June.

III. Falcons – Chris – MFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
-1	3.38	4	2,539.7	5	3	644.9	3	3	732.9	5

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
7	722.3	8	6	225.6	5	1	109	3	5	105	5

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
-0.33	2.90	3.23		3	7	4	9

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
2		3	5	-1	6	4	-1	5	4		4

First up and most likely to be the most contentious review, mainly because I'm not going to hear the end of it if the 56 experts who do this for a living don't agree with Chris' individual values. So, do they? Will I be left in peace? Spoiler: there's not a lot of green in those tables above.

Chris' draft went about as well as it can do for a man with one 4th and two 5th round picks. It's unlikely any of those picks will set the world on fire but you never know with backup running backs I suppose. I don't think it was drafting those players that put Chris first on the list but more the NFL draft.

Chris' QB room is clearly his main strength but he paid a lot to get it. However, the Cardinals are clearly tanking which puts Kyler's value at risk along with that ACL tear and let's face it the teeny towelled twat didn't put in any sparkling performances. Maybe he was just rusty. Maybe he's distracted by a new city's worth of massage parlours?

At RB he's 3rd in 2023 rankings but middle of the pack in scoring and dynasty ranks. He's added a couple of nobodies but what's more problematic is rumours about Cook getting cut and Walker now sharing a backfield with a solid pass-catcher. I know Chris is maintaining the public line that he'd rather have Walker than Bijan but now he's an Atlanta Falcon and undisputed leader of that backfield he might be privately regretting not picking that 1.01 himself.

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2023 Season Rookie Draft Review

At WR Chris might have a bit of a problem. Bottom end of the '23 rankings but kept afloat by some younger players from a dynasty value perspective, Chris is surely going to need to make some moves here to avoid handing Alex the 1.01 next year.

At TE we're back at the middle of the pack for '23 and dynasty but at least his weekly starter will be pretty damn good if Purdy remains the starter at the 49ers. If it's anyone else, then he may need to start Fant or the returning Irv. Smith – eek!

His kicker is good and defence middle of the pack. Honestly, I'm not going to be analysing these positions but I guess I have to mention them, right?

It's going to be another thrilling season for any Falcon's fans (Liz or his mum?) not knowing if they're going to make the playoffs or not. He's fifth in scoring but fourth in the MFC so could find himself in a bit of bother again. He needs to make more moves to solidify his team if he wants to win but he's not got much in picks. Will that exceptional QB core have to change? God only knows what his dynasty prospects are: Henry, Cook and Michael Thomas (remember him?) are all in his starting lineup right now. But will they be in '24 or '25!?

IV. J J F J – Lee – MFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
^1	2.54	1	2,875.3	1	6	543.7	9	1	968.4	1

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
1	919.9	1	4	242.3	4	1	109	3	10	92	10

Dynasty

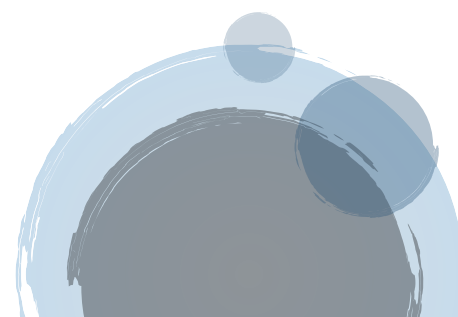

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
-0.29	2.40	2.69		2	1	2	10

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
9	-5	5	1		1	1		1	4		7

Second up is Letter-Wang. Bloody hell that team name is hard to pronounce – perhaps it's time for a re-brand? Anyhoo, first draft with no top picks for the man who has everything (except for a high quality QB) and it's fair to say his team wasn't significantly impacted by his draft. One pick in the 3rd and another in the 4th round made no impact on his team except for the stacking of his weird and wonderful QB room.

It's not the lack of picks alone that puts Lee in second. Oh, no, it's the influx of rookie QBs pushing the meagre value of his present ones even further down. He's moved from 4th to 9th in dynasty ranks at QB and also 9th in projected points. Will he need to do something here to push him beyond MFC winner and onto a Championship winner?

At RB, Lee's overall team dynasty and '23 ranking remains at number 1 where he has a plethora of talent old and young. Getting rid of Breece Hall may have hurt the age profile a bit but adding CMC certainly did not hurt his points production. And by 'not hurt' I mean he's 100 points clear of the second place RB core. He could probably shed a stud for that elusive QB and still have the top RB core. Problem may be that he's not the only one in that market. Maybe picking up more picks (which don't get injured) may be a better course of action?

It's a similar story at WR. Top in both '23 and dynasty but this time only 75 points clear of his nearest rival! Young, talented and hot and maybe another place where he could package something for that championship winning QB?

At TE he's middle of the pack but certainly serviceable with Goedert sitting 4th in projected points but might be in a bit of a sticking situation if he gets injured but that can be said for pretty much every team.

His kicker is good his defence is bottom of the pack.

So, what does Lee do this year? When you look at the projected points you can see the logic of him not wanting to sacrifice those RB and WR rooms which more than make up for the season long points. This makes him the favourite to take the MFC and secure that place in the Conference finals. BUT, do Kirk Cousins and Derek Carr have the ability to have those big games when it matters for him. Derek Carr has scored over 30 points just twice in his career, the last time in 2017 (30.18). Kirk has done it five times, once last year for the first time since 2020. When you look at his rivals who have Hurts (5 times in 2 years), Herbert (6 times in 3 years), Allen (12 times), Lamar (13 times) and Mahomes (17 times) it must be tempting to see what you could do by making a big move. Perhaps even start a dynasty?

V. One Flew Over the Rookies Nest – Ross – MFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
^1	3.42	6	2,605.8	4	2	680.1	2	7	665.6	6

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
8	746	6	2	302.1	1	1	105	5	1	107	3

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
-0.17	3.25	3.42	-1	5	4	3	4

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
2	^1	2	8	-2	9	5		2	2		3

Onto our third loser and it's yet another MFC team. This one, however, had two first round picks. So why did he lose ground on almost everyone else? Did he just pick poorly? Surely not from the master of all rookies which his rather long and overly convoluted team name implies. It's been a long time since holding that precious belt, has he lost his touch or just become complacent? Well, he had three picks, all of them ahead of where the value was. A wide receiver on a crowded depth chart, a backup QB who rather disgustingly eats bananas with the skin on and drinks coffee with mayonnaise and whoever in god's name AT Perry is.

He picked up Levis which was an understandable choice given his QB room of two which really helped bump him up the QB ranks for '23 and dynasty wise. Whether Levis becomes an actual starting NFL QB is probably an entirely different matter. Is he really better than Trey Lance who can't beat out a Mr Irrelevant?

RB seems to be a bit of a problem spot for Ross. Middling to lowly ranked for '23 and near the bottom dynasty wise he's got to be hoping for a miracle. He's added AT Perry who will backup Eno Benjamin who's backing up Jamaal Williams who will play instead of Kamara for the first 6-8 games so it appears that he's going to be leaning rather heavily on his WR room to fill those 2 flex spots (plus the superflex in weeks five and 13).

This WR room is great though and more than makes up for his deficiencies at RB though, right? Er, well, they've got some good KTC value, that's worth lots of fantasy points, right? Er, no. 6th in points and 8th in '23 ranking means that Ross is going to be hoping that 3-4 of his WRs are going to have to play well ahead of expectations every week.

At least he has Travis Kelce at TE. Basically, the undisputed no. 1 TE and no. 1 target for one Patrick Mahomes. Not much more to be said.

His kicker is alright and his D# is pretty good.

Ross has some interesting decisions to make over the summer. Does he hold, hope that no injuries hit him, they hit other teams and pray that his rookies and waiver wire moves see him through? Can lightning really strike twice? That's a pretty big gamble in a very competitive MFC. Alternatively, he could trade one or two of his big assets to either: get some immediate production at RB and WR and have a crack at retaking his title; or, pick up some players and picks to plug his dynasty holes but not compete this year and get that elusive 3rd QB in Caleb Williams. I know a couple of GMs with a quality RB and in need of a QB....

VI. Tompa Bay Bucs – Mike – LFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
	2.54	1	2,756.1	2	1	722.4	1	5	766.9	4

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
3	792	5	1	268.8	2	8	91	8	1	115	1

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
-0.12	2.23	2.35		1	2	1	8

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
1		1	3	-1	4	3		7	1		1

Next up is the first team from the LFC. Like the first two teams, Mike didn't end up having a pick until the third round and even that one was meaningless in the end since he picked up the unknown rookie QB Jaren Hall. He made three further picks in the 4th and 5th rounds but less said about any of those players the better.

Mike can afford to be frivolous with his picks with the roster he has assembled, particularly at QB. He's to QBs what Lee is to RBs, with an undisputed leader in both '23 and dynasty. Maybe that Jaren Hall character is actually good? If anyone would know it'll be Mike. One issue though. His three actual starters all share the same bye week. He'll need to cover that hole or he may face the wrath of the commissioner.

At RB he has a middling team in '23 and one of the better ones for dynasty. At fourth place in scoring and question marks against pretty much every starter he has, will this be an area Mike might want to improve upon if he finally wants to break that glass ceiling?

Mike's WR seem to be a bit better based on the infallible Jebus Rankings coming in 3rd in '23 and dynasty but the projected points and KTC values tell a slightly different story. At 5th in projected points and 7th in KTC value it looks like he's got low value but not so high production. Another chink in the armour that may need to be resolved if he wants to be the bride instead of the bridesmaid?

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2023 Season Rookie Draft Review

Mike has previously drafted a TE at number 3 overall but he doesn't seem to have panned out to be the unicorn we all expected. That's probably not Mike's fault but the mismanagement of the Atlanta Falcons. Fortunately, Mike drafted a TE in the startup draft who isn't all that bad so he has the best TE room in the JADL.

His kicker is rubbish but he has the best defence.

Mike's team is head and shoulders above the rest of the LFC but if he wants to take on and beat the cream of the crop of the MFC maybe he needs to sacrifice some of that quality he has on the bench at QB and TE and improve those RB and WR rooms?

VII. Raiders of the Lost Yard – Jebus – MFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
^1	2.98	3	2,670.8	3	6	641.7	4	2	795	3

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
2	803.9	4	2	248.2	3	8	89	9	8	93	9

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
-0.06	3.29	3.35	^1	4	8	6	7

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
6		7	3	^1	5	6	^1	9	2		2

We're back in the MFC again with our penultimate loser from the draft and yet another team with a couple of late picks. Those picks are probably not worth mentioning since one may not even end up playing as a pass catcher but he did pick up the next great kicker and that is probably worth a quick note.

With just two starting QBs and a ranking at '23 and dynasty of 6th, Jebus must be worried about this spot, particularly with Lamar's injury worries from the last two years. With a projected points total of 4th the players he does have are better than most but any injury to either of his starters will spell disaster. Matchups against Lee and Dudders on the bye weeks could also prove to be problematic if he doesn't have sufficient cover at RB or WR.

Jebus' RBs rank near the top in '23, dynasty and projected points ranks but given the age of his players along with a big dollop of rumours around Mixon's status his KTC value is the middle of the pack. However, aside from Saquon, he doesn't have any really outstanding players who can provide those big weeks which can win titles. Is an investment here needed to keep hold of the beloved belt?

A bit of a different story at WR. This is where the aging out of Jebus' team really shines through. 2nd in '23 rankings and 4th in projected points but a dynasty ranking of 6 and value at 9, these WRs aren't going to last. Time to sell up those older productive assets for some youth and picks or trade up to win and face the consequences?

Different story again at TE for Jebus. Everything is ranked second in every metric. Leading with Andrews, who's six years younger than Kelce, and backed up by dynasty darling Chig Onkonkwo, who's just 22, he's got youth and production in abundance.

His defence and kicker though – oof. Maybe that rookie will be good?

Like with any contending team Jebus is going to need some luck and a shortage of injuries to fend off his rivals. Trading to provide more top quality, particularly at RB and WR seems necessary to compete with rooms like letter-wang but only having 2 starting QBs must also be a big concern. Alternatively, he's still got time to burn it all down. Trade the assets while they're still worth something and have a go with better depth in 2024 or beyond. If he doesn't do the latter and has some bad injury luck he could be holding a Golden Turd. At least he still has his '24 1st, for now.....

VIII. Mac to the Future – Dave – LFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
	3.4	5	2,524.3	6	4	574.3	6	3	818.2	2

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
6	735.9	7	6	212.9	8	10	75	10	1	108	2

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
-0.02	3.40	3.42	^1	5	3	5	5

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
6	-2	4	2	^1	2	6	^1	6	7	-1	5

The last of the losers and we're back in the LFC with our '22 champion. Dave had an interesting 12 months. Won the belt, sold a lot of assets to re-build, bought a load of assets to try and contend but didn't go the whole hog. Ended up not doing so well so sold assets in season but kept his '23 first. That was just as well as, if it wasn't for the conferences, he wouldn't have even made the playoffs. His low projected points gave him the top pick of the playoff teams and that means he's added a top, if a little underweight, RB. Sadly he was selected by the Lions so injuries are bound to plague his time there. After that he didn't pick up much to shout about. What's the flip-flopper going to decide to do, then not do, this year?

At QB he's solidly middle of the pack for both '23, dynasty and projected points. He's got several starters led by Trevor but behind him is a lot of uncertainty. Love – is he good?; Garoppolo – is he injured?; Mac Jones – is he good? Stafford – is he injured / retiring? All good fun but like Lee, no studs to help him retake the belt.

Only second to Lee is his RB room. The aforementioned Gibbs, with Chubb, Breece Hall and, when not assaulting people, Kamara make up a solid room with a couple of streamable backups. Bit of youth, bit of experience. All good here.

The similarity with Lee's team ends at WR. It's not the worst WR room but it's certainly not the best. 6th, just like his likely finish again, is about right. He's got quite a few decent WR3 and WR4s and with that RB core you can see he's only planning on playing two of them every week. It's a bold strategy, let's see how it plays out for him.

The man who proposed TE Premium scoring but now seems to be backing away from the idea and I can see why. 6th in '23, dynasty and KTC ranks but 8th for '23 points, it's not looking great here. I won't embarrass him by listing them but maybe he should trade for a better one?

His kicker is old and homeless but defence is very good.

It feels a bit like Dave's team is in no-man's land. Not committed to a rebuild and a bit hamstrung by the two rebuilders at the bottom of the LFC. Can he make some moves to put him in a position to win the championship again or will he look to improve his one dynasty (and current) shortfall with a look at a 2024 and beyond winning team? Let's face it whatever he decides he'll probably change his mind mid-season.

IX. Inch by Inch – Rich – LFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
-1	3.58	7	2,492.8	7	4	620.9	5	9	586.9	9

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
3	844.7	2	4	222.3	6	5	112	2	1	106	4

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
0.07	3.67	3.60		7	6	7	2

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
6		8	10	-3	10	2		4	7	-1	6

Our first winner from the draft and almost inevitably it is an LFC team. Two picks in the red and two in the green gives him a very slight positive result. There were two more positives, picking up Jordan Addison at 7 and trading - yes, you read that right - trading for Jaren Hall. Hahaha. No of course not, picking him at the 2.09 would be crazy. Rich traded up for Sam LaPorta. But how's the improved team looking? Not too great at 7th and 7th for '23 and dynasty. He was in the top four last year but it looks like without some improvements it could be another yoyo season for Mr Dudley.

At QB, Rich's middling rankings very much reflect the varied age profile of his starters. Fields the high value young gun and Rodgers the high production old man. The Commanders say that Sam Howell is their starter so he does have a third option if he needs it. Beyond that, urgh.

Probably the less said about Rich's RB room the better. Bottom two for '23, dynasty, projected points and KTC. It's looking rough out there. Maybe there's a bit of hope is Zeke can find himself a job or there's a series of injuries to starters but if there's one position he needs to trade to have any chance of competing at any level, this is the spot.

WR couldn't be any different. Top three everywhere but KTC value and 2nd in projected points. He's so stacked that he has Addison on his bench and not even his taxi. If there's a place he could trade for a RB it looks like this is the spot and probably wouldn't damage his outlook too much.

At TE we're back to the old middling story. I suppose someone has to be there but he did trade up Sam LaPorta who's stepping into Hockenson's shoes. What could go wrong with relying on Jared Goff?

His kicker is middling too but his Eagles D# is good.

So will Rich carry on with the trading he's restarted to make a move to improve on that top 4 finish last year or is he just going to continue the Gareth model of decline and picking up that beautiful golden turd?

X. Canton Giants – Neil – MFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
	3.67	8	2,425.9	8	6	549	8	7	650.1	7

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
3	818.9	3	6	219.9	7	7	92	7	9	96	7

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
0.19	4.27	4.08		8	9	8	6

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
4	4	9	7		7	6		3	10		10

Our second winner from the draft and last of the MFC teams is Neil. It was a tough year last year for Neil but that meant that he could pick up one of the top QB prospects at this draft along with along with Miami's lead back and a few more prospects with some potential. Oh and an RB with no knees. Despite that it looks like it's going to be a tough year again and not just because he's in the premier conference. Ranked 8th for '23, projected points and for dynasty it may be another year of rebuilding to compete.

His '23 QB ranking may not be all he hoped for but from a dynasty perspective, picking up CJ Stroud bumped him up four spots and upto 4th. Daniel Jones signed a new contract and Goff's replacement hasn't been signed yet so it looks like Neil will be good for at least one more year or two.

At RB it's 7's across the board for Neil. This is mainly down to him having Najee, then Connor then not much else except rookies. Maybe he hits on a couple of his rookies and the Saints somehow replicates the Lions offence from last year to keep Jamaal Williams' career alive but it's not looking good for the Giants.

Much like our last entry to this list, Neil's prospects are all turned around by his top three WR room. They may not all be young but they've been pretty damn good in the past and there's no reason why they can't do it again, assuming Hopkins finds a team and the Bucs QBs massively improve on the OTA videos.

At TE he made a very wise upgrade by picking up Waller on the cheap but that improvement has only moved him up from the bottom of the rankings to the middle. I know he tried to pick up another one at the draft but got sniped every time! You never know, maybe it'll be Hunter Henry's year again?

He's got a middling kicker and a bad-ish defence.

If the projections come to pass it must, once again, be time for Neil to consider shifting the big ticket items he has with an eye on securing young players and/or additional future picks to make a crack at a longer-term secure future. Even with all his stars firing he'll be also needing two of his MFC competitors to suffer some catastrophic injuries to end up below his under-powered squad.

XI. Mandos – Gareth – LFC

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
-1	4.63	10	2,008.9	9	9	568.2	7	9	471.3	10

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
9	597.9	9	10	160.5	10	1	115	1	5	96	7

Dynasty

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
0.60	4.81	4.21		9	10	10	3

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
4	^5	6	8	^1	8	9		10	9		9

In second place in the winners enclosure, so close to taking first place, is Gareth and his Mandos. His whole team moved up half a tier from just this one draft. He added 2 QBs, a first round WR and a starting TE which makes up the bulk of his positive moves. There may be light on the horizon but alas Gareth finds himself bottom of the pile for '23 and 9th in dynasty but he's got some decent draft capital and some young assets which will likely give him some hope. Sadly, Gareth has had a great off-season offloading all his older player so no longer can I make any old jokes. Disappointing but maybe we should all be concerned how many players he has that are old enough to be his grandkids?

The biggest improvement at the Mandos comes from the additions of Bryce Young and Anthony Richardson. If they both come good, he'll easily exceed that 4th place dynasty ranking and the rather lowly 9th place for this year.

At RB Gareth picked up a few prospects but probably nothing to shout about. He also traded Sanders for some future capital, so it's a well-liked prospect coming off a pretty significant knee injury, CEH (remember him?) and a whole load of hope placing G 9th for this year and 8th for dynasty. Realistically it's unlikely G is competing this year so maybe he needs to move on from as many of these non-rookies as he can?

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2023 Season Rookie Draft Review

It's the same old story at WR too but maybe a bit worse. 9th for '23 and dynasty and bottom of KTC value, he's probably got his eyes set on Marvin Harrison Jr in the '24 draft. Again he sold one of the older players for future picks which is eminently sensible but it's going to be another tough year. When you're starting the likes of Zay Jones and Allen Lazard you know which way your season is headed.

TE is another spot where Gareth has lightened the load of aging players but this time he's picked up a couple of the better prospects in the draft. Will Mayer step straight into Wallers rather large shoes? Does the most handsome QB in football like throwing to a TE? The so-called experts don't seem to think so. G is ranked 9th for '23 and dead last for dynasty.

His kicker is awesome but his defence is middling.

Los Mandos have made all the right moves to stay competitive at the '24 and '25 drafts and maybe even in the LFC in '25 and beyond? Building a dynasty on the solid ground of top QB rookies seems like a good approach and the first time we've seen it in this league. I hope it works out for him.

XII. K.I.T.T.L.E – Alex

2023

Overall					QB			RB
Change	JR Score	JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
			Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
^1	4.5	9	1,972.4	10	10	321.5	10	6	648.9	8

WR			TE			K			DST
JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points		JR	Points
	Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank		Proj	Rank
10	583	10	6	217	9	5	103	6	5	99	6

Dynasty

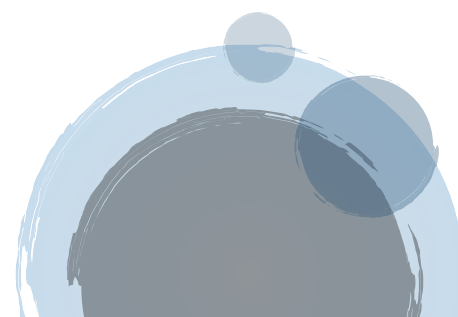

Overall							Draft Capital
JDR Score			JDR		KTC	KTC - DC	KTC
Change	Pre-Draft	Post-Draft	Change	Rank
0.62	5.08	4.46		10	5	9	1

QB			RB			WR			TE
JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC	JDR		KTC
Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change		Rank	Change
10		10	6	^4	3	10		8	4	^2	8

Last but most improved from the draft is Alex and his K.I.T.T.L.E. Like Gareth, he gained over half a tier of value for his whole squad after picking up the best players at each non-QB position. Alas, that still leaves him in 9th for '23 and dead last for dynasty. Maybe this will suit Alex and his team build. Not picking up a QB at this draft means the door is open for him to select Caleb or Drake in the '24 draft.

With just the one starting QB and no reinforcements coming from the draft it is no surprise that Alex is bottom of the pack in every single metric. With no starting QB available to him in week 5 he too might be subject to the Commissioners wrath. I'm sure he'll be fine next year unless he feels forced to take a skill position player again at the '24 draft. Surely lightening won't strike twice. At least he has Chris' '24 first to help solidify that 1.01 slot.

At RB Al's had a very solid boost since he's added Bijan to the locker room. Now placed 6th for '23 and moving up 4 places to 6th in dynasty too. Bijan's value is so high that he's now got the third most valuable RB room according to our friends at KTC! Aside from Bijan it's not looking too good. Could the points from Bijan even hurt his team? He could always trade him for something he does need or a lot more future draft capital than he paid for him.

At WR, Al is back to the bottom of the pack. He may have picked up a man who Olave and Garrett Wilson says is better than them but after that it's not looking too good. Godwin has two QBs competing to overthrow it towards him, Mooney is now a WR3 and a whole lotta nothing. Al's another man with his eyes on Marvin Harrison Jr.

At TE the pick of Kincaid along with Engram's Jacksonville rejuvenation, has left Al middle of the pack at TE but at 9th for projected points. It may be another year until he can crow about his TE room but that may suit Al perfectly well.

Much like Gareth, Alex has made the moves this year and last to put himself in prime position for the 24' draft and competing from maybe '25 onwards. He has got some top quality assets to trade for more capital in future or alternatively the capital in '24 to improve his team right now. Does Al have the patience to wait out this rebuild?

XIII. Conclusion

If you made it this far very well done. As I said at the outset, the ranks are all very much relative and the relative difference in strength isn't as much as I may have laid out above (or is it???). These experts don't really know what they're talking about (or do they???) and there's still a bit over three months until the season starts. Hopefully, I've injected a harsh dose of reality, provoked some critical thinking and encouraged some much-needed trade moves for us all.

We have our free agent auction on 21 July and I will be in touch closer to the time on how that will work.

Enjoy the summer but please keep an eye on your WhatsApp and Sleeper app. I know there will be trade offers coming back and forth.

