

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2024 Rookie Draft Preview

I. Introduction

We made it through another season with your noble Commissioner yet again taking the belt. With the NFL Draft in a few weeks and our draft in just under a month, it is the time of hopes and dreams. When people value free agent movers such as Swift, Ridley and Russell Wilson as actual commodities. And injury plagued players like Dobbins, Cousins and Saquon could somehow shake off the injuries and become productive once more. Or players traded to dramatically different situations can somehow become great like Mixon, Jeudy or Diontae Johnson [Spoiler – you'll all be terribly disappointed].

I thought it would be helpful to do a little review of all the teams. Is your team as good / bad as you think? Where might people need to draft some young blood to improve their team. Will you need to trade up to get your man? Does the draft matter at all and can you trade actual players to improve your team?

All these questions will not get answered and there will only be numerous other questions like: is our Commissioner deluded he can compete again? Is Chris' team any good? What is Gareth doing? Has Ross lost his touch? One thing that is for sure – a few of us need to update the out-of-date team names / branding.

II. Rule Changes

Thank you all for agreeing to the changes to the rules. Updated rules are online but to confirm:

- The introduction of Tight End Premium scoring of 0.5 points per reception from the 2024 season.
- If an interception resulted in a pick 6 it would result in the QB being penalised -1 point in addition to the -1 for an interception.
- We would move to one 1 September cut to take place every year.
- A completed field goal would provide 3 points to the kicker. For every yard over 30, a further 0.1 points would be provided.

III. 2024 Rookie Draft

The draft board (as things stand) is in the table below:

Pick	Round 1	Round 2	Round 3	Round 4	Round 5
1	NEIL	Alex	NEIL	NEIL	NEIL
2	GARETH	GARETH	GARETH	Lee	Jebus
3	ALEX	ALEX	Gareth	Jebus	Alex
4	Alex	Chris	Ross	CHRIS	CHRIS
5	Alex	Neil	Gareth	DAVE	DAVE
6	ROSS	Gareth	Ross	Lee	Dave
7	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS	DUDDERS
8	Alex	LEE	Dave	Neil	LEE
9	MIKE	Neil	Gareth	MIKE	MIKE
10	Neil	Gareth	Neil	Lee	Lee

All caps denotes own pick

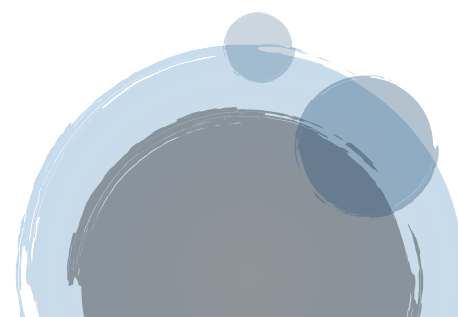

There was excitement around last years' draft and the hype around this one is even stronger! There could be three or four QBs going at the top of the NFL draft, a couple with very high fantasy ceilings. As always there's a lot of QB needy teams in the JADL so could we see some movement in the first round? There's not a strong RB class but the WRs look very good with two standout prospects and a 'generational talent'. It's back to the future with the TE class with just one outstanding prospect.

One thing clear right now is our draft will be dominated by two GMs – Neil and Alex. Neil has the all-important 1.01 plus a second first at the end of the first round. Alex has outdone his three firsts from last year and has four this year, including picks 3 to 5! They both hold some keys to how the draft will fall. Unless they trade it all away? Another note is that the LFC once again looks like it will heavily influence the draft as they hold seven of the first ten picks and 15 of the first 24 picks! That's probably not too surprising given their recent performances.

	QB	RB	WR	TE	Total
Chris	1	0	0	1	2
Dave	1	2	0	0	3
Dudders	0	0	1	1	2
Gareth	1	0	0	0	1
Jebus	2	2	1	1	6
Lee	0	1	3	1	5
Mike	2	2	1	0	5
Neil	1	0	1	0	2
Ross	1	1	2	0	4

IV. 2024 Elite Players

For a bit of context to some of the descriptions below I've included this table setting out how many elite players each team has. For QB, RB and WR this is any player in the top two Expert Consensus Ranked tiers. For TE it's the top tier only.

V. Picks #1 and #10 – Canton Giants – Neil – Madden Conference

First up is the worst of the MFC teams who beat Gareth to snatch the 1.01. Neil's team has remained stable keeping an overall and '24 ranking of 8th for a third straight season. Drawn in a tough MFC he might well have made the playoffs as an LFC team but it wasn't to be. And maybe that's for the best long-term. Neil's got a young team has needs more or less across the board but there's green shoots of hope and with five picks of the first 24 there's a strong possibility to improve things.

Neil's QBs are ranked 5th in both dynasty and '24 thanks to a very smart pick of CJ Stroud last year. He has the opportunity with the 1.01 to add Caleb Williams to this room and to forget about his QB room for maybe a decade!

It's a similar story at RB. Ranked 4th in Dynasty and 5th for '24 – middle of the pack but room for improvement. Trading for Rashaad White and his previous draftee Najee are solid enough but another '23 gem of a pick in Devon Achane has improved this room. I don't think you'll improve on this core from this draft class.

There's a bit of a drop off at WR ranked at 8th for both dynasty and '24. There's hope that his elite asset, Wilson, might be good if Rodgers can play more than a handful of snaps, and Deebo will be his boom-bust self but not much beyond that. He traded away his older WRs last year. Could he maybe trade back from that 1.01 and pick up a top WR and a bit extra or maybe even draft MHJ at 1.01!?

Next up the worst TE room in the JADL. It's a not a good TE class. Will Bowers make it to 1.10?

VI. Pick #2 – Mandos – Gareth – Lombardi Conference

It's been two years since the end of the no trade experiment and it seems to the damage may have been worse than I feared. Picking up the 1.02 ahead of Alex was unexpected but presents Gareth with some intriguing options. Unlike last year, he has just one pick in the first round so the pressure's on to make it count. He has successfully dropped from the 8th oldest team to the youngest so the last draft improved things from that perspective. It may be a while that he stays in the doldrums though, with the prospect of winning the belt a faraway dream. One elite player at QB thanks to last years' draft is a decent start. Maybe six picks in the first 24 might help the fix the multitude of problems this team has. Maybe he'll trade that elite QB for a much-needed influx of quality, or will he be going for that golden turd once again?

Gareth's QB room got a refresh last year making it the youngest of all teams. Unfortunately, the 1.01 last year wasn't quite so good but maybe they'll be better this year? The 1.02 this year provides an opportunity to potentially end his QB problems for a very long time. But can he resist the temptation of MHJ?

RB is another position with youth on its side. What it has in youth it possibly lacks in quality. The room is 8th in dynasty rankings and for 2024. Singletary and the Gus Bus are now lead backs on their new teams which provides a silver lining. It's probably the only one as there's not a great deal of quality to draft.

Another position group, another area of need. The basement dwelling WR core for dynasty and 2024, this room needs some long-term improvements. It's old, tired and broken. This is an exceptional WR class. Is he going to bother using his picks on anything else?

At TE it's another similar story to Neil. 7th in dynasty and 9th in 2024 rankings, He's going to be hoping for a breakout season from Mayer and Musgrave.

Next up it's another shitshow LFC team but the scorched-earth policy seemingly has led to this draft. If it has, Alex has picked an almost perfect year to do it. He has the only team with no elite players but half of the first eight picks and 6 of the first 13 picks. This gives him plenty of darts to find some along with a much-needed injection of youth. I'm not sure if he'll be hoping they can hit the ground running with 3 picks in the first round of next years' draft too.

With the third to fifth picks it looks like Alex will be well placed to take a smorgasbord of QBs this year if he wants to. With the worst and oldest QB room in the JADL he probably needs to.

Another position core and this time it's the next to bottom of the running back barrel in dynasty and '24 rankings. Another obvious area of need but Alex strikes me as a man who has a plan. I can't imagine any of those first round picks are going on a position which doesn't match his direction. But what do I know? Maybe he sees a diamond in this mountain of rough?

Alex's WR room is the youngest in the JADL but another bottom dweller in both dynasty and '24 ranking. With this excellent WR class at least one of those trio of high picks are going on a WR, right?

Alex's TE core is one area his team that isn't completely dogshit. At 8th in dynasty and 7th for '24 it's his strongest area of his team but that's not saying much. Could he draft the top consensus TE again?

VIII. Pick #6 – One Flew Over the Rookies Nest – Ross – Madden Conference

Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital
Ave Age	Rank	JDR Score	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC - DC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC

3.54	6	5	3.53	5	3	1	6	6	5	2	8	8	1	3	4	6

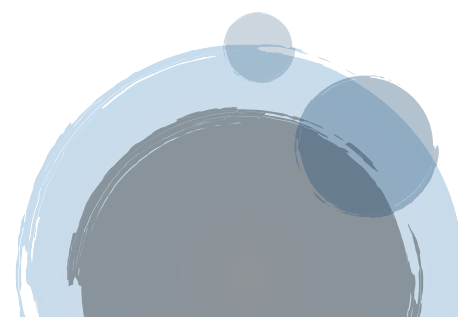

We get to pick six and it's another MFC team and former champion with Ross. At 6th for '24 the 'former' adjective is going to be sticking around for years to come as he's 6th in dynasty rankings too. Like last year, he does have four elite players and a 1st round pick so he'll need to live up to his team name and make some crazy accurate picks. Those crazy accurate picks seem to have been more crazy than accurate recently though.

Ross' most obvious strength comes at QB but the gloss has come off what was two elite starters. Josh Allen is still arguably the QB1 but he's lost Diggs and Herbert's offence now seems to be that gif of Will Smith standing alone in the Bel Air mansion. He could trade one of his big two for a king's ransom and set his overall team up to be a top competitor with Levis and Wilson sharing QB2 duties but so far he hasn't even countenanced the thought. A conundrum that seems like it will never be resolved - that one early belt may be the only time he ever gets to hold it.

RB is a clear area of weakness in Ross' team. 8th in age, and 6th in dynasty and '24 rankings means he's got to do something to stop the rot. Travis ETN is his one elite asset then a load of players sharing a backfield or backups. His hope rests on the shoulders of a 32-year-old fending off Achane. Surly he needs to draft here to improve his roster, if only there was someone decent to draft.

At WR we have a different story. Ceedee Lamb truly broke out last season and Aiyuk continues to be a centrepiece of the 49ers offence. That puts him 3rd from a dynasty perspective but his remaining players pushes that down to 5th for 2024. Could he use pick No. 6 to add another elite WR?

Ross traded Kelce away last year to pick up ETN but it seems to have left him in a bit of a TE pickle. 7th in dynasty and 8th for '24 leaves him one section of the team without an elite asset. 6th could be a good spot to pick up Bowers?

IX. Pick #7 – Inch by Inch – Dudders – Lombardi Conference

Overall							QB					RB					WR					TE					Draft Capital
Ave Age	Rank	JDR Score	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC - DC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	Ave Age	Rank	JDR	ECR	KTC	KTC

3.63	7	8	4.08	8	8	8	10	10	3	4	1	1	7	8	8	8

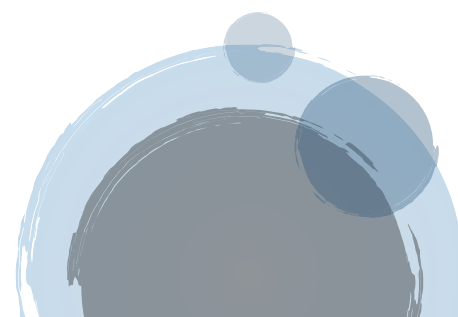

Onto pick seven and it's another LFC team. A top four finish, a bottom four pick but is it a top four team? It is in the LFC but not overall. 7th in dynasty and for '24, has Dudders' competing window ended? He's got another team with some highs and lows. Highs of 1st at TE and 3rd at WR are matched with a low of 10th at RB. There's a few needs to fill with only one pick 1st round pick and a quickly aging team. Perhaps he trades to improve his situation?

A difficult offseason for Dudders QB room leaves him with two starters and an uncomfortable QB position for this year. If one of the better QBs in this draft drops to him it could give him cover for the QB in his 40s and staring retirement in the face.

Dudders' RB core is somehow the worst in the JADL. The main problem seems to be that all his RBs have aged out and there's been no attempt to replace them. Well now's as good a time as any. Only problem is the draft probably isn't going to dramatically improve matters. That leaves one option.....

WR is another story. Thanks to some excellent drafting, WR looks like an area where Dudders is 3rd in both dynasty and '24 rankings. He has low dynasty value but good production with Devante Adams and the relative youth in AJ Brown and Jalen Waddle. Could he be tempted to sell one of his two elite assets to cover the apparent holes elsewhere? I know, it seems unlikely to consider such things but you never know. The 1.07 does seem like a prime spot to add another good young WR so maybe one of those assets could be traded?

Dudders had a blinder at last years' draft and managed to snag himself the dynasty TE1! From what was a position of perpetual need is now one of strength and a bit of depth. If somehow Bowers makes it to 7 he'd be a fool not to take him but he definitely doesn't need him.

At 9 we have yet another LFC team. What a team Mike has assembled! Ranked dynasty No. 1 at QB and overall for dynasty and '24. As there's not been too much churn in players it's starting to get a little bit older but that's why we have draft picks to freshen things up. He's basically already won the LFC title again and is in with a shout of making the championship game once again – with elite players at nearly every position it all looks good for Mike. Will he commit and finally push his chips in to try and finally win it or should he incorporate the Bills into his team name?

While Ross' QBs have taken a bit of a step back, Mike's core has leapt ahead. It goes without saying that Mahomes is near the top of his tree but with another top 3 QB in Hurts and the yardage king Tua and Jaren Hall providing cover, Mike's pretty settled at QB. The 9th pick is unlikely to add further depth here but it doesn't need it.

At RB Mike's team sits at 3rd for '24. He obviously has JT and Kyren Williams was a gem he drafted in 2022 but after that it's not quite as strong. Monty finished at RB13 last year but is sharing a backfield with Gibbs and Swift's new team isn't great. Not much after that. Nothing to sniff at but the latter two aren't setting the world alight.

At 2nd in dynasty and for '24 at WR, does Mike need to strengthen here? Probably not but that may not stop him. Maybe he'll throw another 5th round pick into the void and snatch himself a Puka Nacua!?! Sickening.

His worst core is at TE. With Hockenson injured he's relying on Pitts. Previously that might have been a problem but thanks to the Falcon's acquiring Cousins there seems to be some optimism that he might fulfill his potential. Another stroke of luck I think we'll all get behind.

Into the second round and we find ourselves an MFC team. One competing for championships? Well, no, not yet. The perpetual builder finds himself a little behind last years' projections at 4th in dynasty and 5th for '24 rankings. It's 7th oldest so he's going to have to put together a run of results soon or he might find himself needing to rebuild his rebuild.

Chris has the third strongest QB core for dynasty and 4th for '24 rankings. He's got one elite player in Joe Burrow but I wonder if he has any concerns with the teeny-toweled twat not becoming the player he was before his deviances were uncovered? For two years Watson's Browns have been worse than when Brissett and Flacco were executing the offence. On the plus side, the Cardinals might be turning a corner and Kyler should be fully fit for the season ahead. I don't think the 14th pick will be improving his fortunes here anyway.

What was once a strength for Chris, his RB core is, like Dudders, slowly turning into a key weakness. The core is ranked 7th in dynasty and for '24. He is very much relying on the health of Kenneth Walker and King Henry. Beyond that is a whole lotta nothin' so Chris will be praying for separate bye-weeks and to draft a RB who might get a chance as a lead backup.

Onto Chris' WR core. Its is an interesting one. It's young and ranked 5th for dynasty but 7th for '24 with no elite players. If Tee Higgins is traded to be a WR1 on a team it may be a different story. Drake London might be in for a surge at the Falcons; Pickens has at least a professional QB passing in his vicinity now; Kirk is still meh; Jeudy has a new team; and, Michael Thomas is teamless. So many questions, so much hope, so little evidence that any of these players are good. If he wants to compete he needs this room to improve one way or another. Maybe he can draft a gem?

What does Chris not need? A TE. With Kittle and McBride he's got the top TE core in the JADL

Another second round starting pick, another MFC team. Unlike the last two MFC teams, Lee's team is very much in a position of strength. He has maintained his overall ranked no. 2 team in dynasty and '24 but with an increasingly aging team. He's assembled this team through some very smart draft picks and trading away his future 1^{sts}. But are there any weaknesses to this team?

Yes – it would appear that Lee's QB core is not as good as other top teams, or indeed the top half of teams. Whilst several teams he's competing with have more than one top 12 QB he has maybe one on the fringe. The claim of six starters of yesteryear is now more like three so he'll be keeping a close eye on those bye weeks. If it were me, I'd be looking to sell a couple of those elite assets he has elsewhere to push this well constructed team over the top. But that's me and we all have our ways of constructing teams. Perhaps Lee will try to trade into the top of this draft and grab himself this year's ~~Trey Lance~~ CJ Stroud.

While Lee's RB isn't what it used to be, it's still 4th for dynasty and 3rd for '24. Most importantly it contains a certain Mr Christian Jackson McCaffrey. If you have him you have a chance of winning any week.

Once more, Lee's WR core is top of the tree and he can smugly relax knowing he's got the youngest and best WR core. With three elite assets in Jefferson, Chase and the Sun God and more WR1s in his pocket, is this an area he could use to support strengthening elsewhere?

Lee traded for Kelce last year which means that despite the age profile he has an elite asset for '24. It might be looking a bit ropery in future years and it seems unlikely Bowers will drop to pick 18. He might need to trade his way out of this pickle for when the inevitable Kelce retirement comes.

2.98	4	4	3.49	4	6	7	1	1	5	7	4	7	7	5	4	3

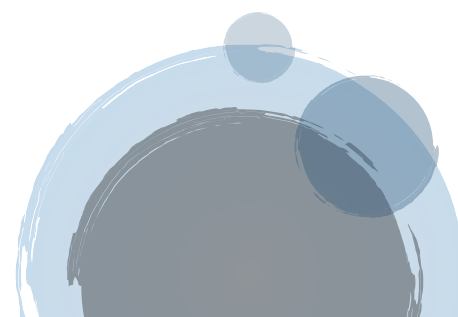

At pick 38 we have the last of the LFC teams. It's a team on the up, ranked 3rd in dynasty and 4th in '24 ranks so he belongs in the playoffs as things stand. With the 3rd youngest team there's potential that there is room for this team to move up the ranks in '25 and '26.

Dave's QB room is still around the middle of the pack both in '24 and dynasty rankings but is an area where his patience with Love has gifted him an elite player. He certainly needs not worry about having starters for a good few years but the strength in depth he once had has gone. It's unlikely a QB is dropping anywhere near pick 38 so the habitual trader will need to wheel another deal with Neil to get himself a solid QB3.

Dave's RB core has improved from last year into the top ranked dynasty and '24 core, including two elite players in Breece Hall and Jahmyr Gibbs. A sub 24-year-old core adds to the positives. However, Chubb doesn't look like he'll be fit for much of the 24 season and some of his assets are vulnerable to sharing a backfield post-draft. Will this still be the no.1 core in 5 months time?

The WR core looks like a needy part of his team. 5th in dynasty and for '24 with no elite players could be a problem if he wants to seriously compete with Mike or the MFC. It's also the 9th oldest thanks to his trade for Mike Evans and Hopkins still hanging around. There's plenty of WRs in this draft so could we see yet another trade from Dave to improve this room?

TE is a difficult position to crack but Dave's core isn't terrible. He'll be delighted that Diggs has left the Bills making Kincaid a top target there but there's a long way to go until the start of the season. Without one of those elite players and no free agency to readily stream, a lot of hope is pinned on Kincaid, the Muth and the hope that Waller doesn't choose to retire.

Last but not least it's the final MFC team, your back-to-back champ and your Noble Commissioner. A second happy ending last year but what does that team look like now? Mid-table in dynasty at 5th and 3rd for '24. It looks like it will be a struggle to make it three in a row but he is the only team with elite players at every position group. Given his team's age profile, 10th overall, maybe he should be thinking of trading those elite assets to teams in need and accept his competing window is rapidly closing?

Jebus was a very lucky boy with that QB core last year with Lamar and Dak staying fit for the first time and Baker making a miraculous return to competence. It looks like this core is safe for now and there's no chance of a draft pick improving this group.

With a significant investment in Bijan and some fortunate free agency moves, Jebus' RB core is 3rd in dynasty rankings and 2nd for '24. With Saquon, Connor, Jones and Mixon all the wrong side of 27, a long-term injection of youth here is a must. But with so little draft capital he's going to need to trade those elite assets to freshen things up.

At WR is another aging core. Ranked 7th for dynasty and 3rd for '24, it's not looking as rosy as it did 12 months ago. It's yet another area where an injection of youth has to be long-term aim. Sure, Hill will be elite for another year but after that can you rely on Amari Cooper with the tiny-toweled philanderer? Keenan Allen and Kupp seem to be sharing WR1 duties and are well past 30. At least Curtis Samuel and Hollywood Brown are the WR1s on their teams. This is the perfect draft to correct this problem but no picks to do it.

Jebus' TE core is similar to the rest of his team. Getting older but still productive at 4th for both dynasty and '24 rankings. With Andrews and his backup on the roster he'll be hoping for one more swing to try to retain the belt forever.

XV. Conclusion

Have I been too harsh? Not harsh enough? Are the rankings actually worth the data they're saved in? I hope I have inspired some contemplations of rosters which will result in some great trading before, during and after our draft on 3rd May. I'm very much looking forward to the NFL Draft and then our fourth rookie draft which hopefully will be 100% in person once again. I'll be doing my best Goodell impression with the offer of big hugs all round.
