

Jessica Alba Dynasty League – 2025 Season Preview

1. Introduction

Welcome to the sixth year of our dynasty league! After another wonderful season I know that we're all eager for the kick-off of the NFL season and the fantasy adventure that accompanies it.

I'd like to start by congratulating myself on my third consecutive, beautiful, magnificent victory last year, the best victory the world has ever seen. I wish you all almost the best of luck for the season ahead. At least we don't have to worry me gloating for at least another five months in every update. Just imagine how annoying it would be to hear all about an unprecedented four-peat, eh?

It's the fourth season with our Lombardi and Madden Conferences vying for dominance over the JADL. From a factual and academic perspective, it is evident that the MFC, led at the front by your noble commissioner, is the dominant conference at present but I'm sure in a few years of good drafts and maybe a bit of trading the LFC will start to become more competitive. Maybe that could even start this season?

There are ample stats on our website and on Sleeper so I won't go heavily into these but I have included a few metrics about what the often-maligned experts think now and did they get it right on the whole last season.

2. Strength of Schedule

I couldn't do another review without adding something new to the mix. Whilst I obviously can predict the future to the extent that I can win this league over and over again, it's not within my gift to know that for every given week. However, I can say when our teams are likely to be under-strength from bye weeks and who will be playing them in that week. So, I present the all new JRSoS.

Note: our schedules are done in advance of the NFL schedule being released based on our conference finish in the previous season. I don't control who gets a better strength compared to someone else.

Tier	GM(s)	No. of bye week opposition
1	Jebus and Lee	6
2	Gareth and Neil	5
3	Chris	4
4	Mike and Rich	3
5	Alex	2
6	Dave and Ross	1

3. Mandos (Gareth - LFC) – 10th Place

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
61	10 th (10 th)	10 th (-)	10 th (-)	45 (-16)	10 th	10 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
10 th	=9 th	10 th	10 th	6 th	8 th	10 th	10 th	9 th	10 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2070.4	10 th	693.6	7 th	455.5	10 th	689.0	6 th	232.3	10 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
4.83	5 of 5	Wins	Loses	1% (LFC – 5 th)	Week(s)
		2	12		5, 8, 12 & 14

After taking a third Loser of All Losers title and his LFC compatriot formerly vying for the basement now soaring, Gareth is back at the bottom of the rankings. As we heard from the pre-draft review, he's got a young side now, so let's take a look at G's refreshed team.

Three-ish starting QBs is a great start. Bryce Young and Michael Penis, sorry Penis, I mean Penix are both QB2s with potential and AR15 is a QB3 who could be a QB1 if he manages to get his shit together. And who can forget about Gardner Minshew backing up a washed-up Patrick Mahomes and AOC backup at the mighty Las Vegas Raiders? The transition from a team of old men to not so little kids has taken place. He just needs them to perform now.

Gareth's RB core isn't the best. Until recently it looked like his draft misfortune had continued – this time in the guise of (alleged) domestic abuser Quishon Judkins. He does have RB2 and exciting rookie prospect Omarion Hampton but after that is Judkins (an RB5 on the rise) and two RB6s. It's not a championship winning lineup – unless your championship is turd shaped. The textbook rebuild tactic might to sell those young rookies off to contenders in favour of strengthening everywhere else. Does Gareth think he's close enough to lifting himself off the bottom to contemplate keeping these young RBs?

Surely after all this rebuilding Gareth's WR core looks good? If good is mid table and young and filled with hope – then Gareth has another good core. Led by a WR1 Ladd McConkey, but backed up a WR2, Marvin Harrison Jr, then a WR3 and a WR4. Green shoots of hope?

Another position with a story similar to his RB room. Ranked rock bottom of the TE league but with a bit of draft capital spent on a young and potentially productive TE2. A whole load of dross afterwards. Not great reading today – maybe better next year?

With this team it's kind of tough to say which bye-weeks are an issue given the lack of relative strength. I guess Weeks 5 (vs Neil), 8 (vs Ross), 12 (vs Alex) and 14 (vs Dave) maybe particularly tough with some significant players out.

Crikey it's going to be another hard year for our elder statesman but hopefully he'll exceed his projected win record. There's some youth and hope for the future which won't be hurt by another high draft pick. Should he consider cashing in one or two of those prize assets for multiple first round picks though?

4. Canton Giants (Neil - MFC) – 9th Place

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
76	6 th (8 th)	8 th (-2)	9 th (-3)	55 (-21)	9 th	9 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
7 th	6 th	7 th	=7 th	9 th	10 th	3 rd	3 rd	8 th	8 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2397.8	8 th	816.1	5 th	644.8	6 th	603.4	10 th	333.5	4 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.94	4 of 5	Wins	Loses	5% (MFC – 5 th)	Week(s)
		4	10		9, 12 & 14

It was a tough 2024 for Neil and his Giants and if projections are anything to go by it'll be more of the same this year. He's bucked those predictions before both making and not making the playoffs. Let's see what's in store for us this season.

While Neil's QB room is ranked in the lower half of rankings it's not looking as bad as others and features at least two players who are young and capable of defying their expectations – Caleb Williams and CJ Stroud. Added to these two QB2s is another QB2 who's status is a bit less clear. Can you really play with a slipped disc? Backing these guys up is his homer QB pick who sits as a QB3 right now. Decent potential but not projected to propel him in what has been a competitive MFC.

It's a similar story with Neil's RB core. He's got an RB1 in an injured Achane, a very competent RB2 in Chuba then it's a bit less productive. Two RB4s and a couple RB5s. However, Achane is a bit of an enigma. The explosive dwarf has some absolutely astounding stats so long as Tua is his QB and he isn't in the treatment room. He's not the only one who need Tua to have a fully fit season, including his head coach!

WR is probably Neil's greatest weakness: a WR1 (reliant on Justin Fields), a frequently injured Deebo (WR4) then not much else. He picked up Egbuka (another WR4) in the draft but his prospects for this season are somewhat unclear. If he wants to get back into the playoffs again, he needs to strengthen this area of his team quite drastically.

Neil's did well to pick up George Kittle at the 2024 draft (via Chris) to help this room which suffered from the dearth of quality at the TE position. He's got him then a load of rubbish like most teams.

Main problem with Kittle: will the smelling salts ban bring down his match day energy levels?

He's done some excellent planning with bye weeks not significantly affected him too much.

Unfortunately for him his significant clashes all coincide with other MFC teams – Jebus (twice) and Lee – will benefit the most in weeks 9, 12 and 14. Less than ideal if he's pushing for a playoff spot.

It looks likely to be another interesting season for Neil. He's got some players which could break fantasy in a given week but then score nothing (or be injured) the next. Can he beat the odds and force two other MFC teams into the toilet bowl and get back in the playoffs once more?

5. Inch by Inch (Rich - LFC) – 8th Place

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
67	9 th (=6 th)	9 th (-)	8 th (+1)	62 (-5)	8 th	7 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
6 th	5 th	9 th	9 th	5 th	4 th	4 th	2 nd	5 th	9 th

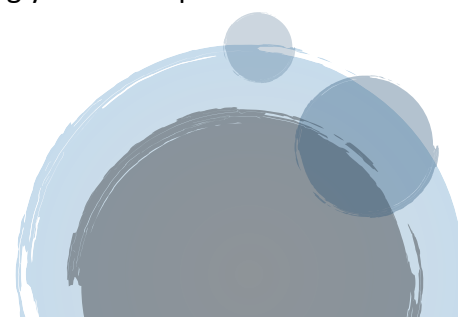

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2463.8	6 th	877.8	4 th	555.3	9 th	689.0	6 th	341.7	3 rd

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.48	4 of 5	Wins	Loses	20% (LFC – 4 th)	Week(s)
		5	9		6, 8, 9, 12 & 14

Another team, another set of low expectations. Alex's rise seems to have come at Rich's expense with the LFC previously being so bad that you can make the playoffs almost regardless of how good your team is. Perhaps this year will change that? While the experts have Rich projected to finish 8th his projected points put him at 6th. Maybe the playoffs are in reach? Let's have a look if and why he's got a chance.

His QB core is middle of the ranks. Why? Well, he's got two QB1's in Brock Purdy and QB turned RB Justin Fields. He's got a QB2 in JJ McCarthy who is an unknown quantity but every QB seems to thrive in Kevin O'Connell's system. He's even got another starter in a QB4 with the immobile and nocturnal Aaron Rodgers should the worst happen and injuries hit.

It's a much worse story at RB. Thanks to the draft he has two starting RB2s in Henderson and RJ Harvey. Both have bags of potential but may need some time to rise up the pecking order. My word how bad this room would be without them! Next up are two RB4s and three RB5s. All backups. Rich could really do with improving this room to even hope to compete in the LFC this year! At 9th in projected points here too and nearly 400 points behind the leader, it's seemingly another uphill battle.

Next up is his WRs which is much better than that RB core. Well, it could hardly be worse! The highlight of Dudders team is his WRs led by a WR1, one AJ Brown, a WR2 in Adams and WR3 Jaylen Waddle. After those two the suspended and suspect driver Jordan Addison, a WR4, and rookie Tre Harris, a WR5. Then it's a lot of youth and hope. This room is ranked a bit higher in the pack but mid-table for projected points. I feel like these players are going to be a fixture in his flex spots.....

.....if they can get ahead of his TEs. The suggested rebrand to Tight Inch by inch was never adopted by Rich but he still has a good TE even if LaPorta disappointed in his second season. Alongside that TE1 he has another in Njoku. The move to TE Premium has been a boon for Rich and those flex spots are begging for a tight end to be squeezed in.

With the lack of strength and depth there's a few bye weeks where there will be opportunities for opponents to take advantage. Weeks 6 (vs Jibus), 8 (vs Chris), 9 (vs Mike), 12 (vs Dave) and 14 (vs Mike) he's got some tricky matchups with Mike looking to be the primary beneficiary.

There are a range of outcomes for Mr D where all of his players stay fit and he makes another run in the playoffs but it's not looking likely. There is another possibility where a couple of injuries hit in key areas and he takes the prize off the present Loser of All Losers. It feels like Rich is at a bit of a cross-roads. With Alex's team rising rapidly to the top there's a gaping hole at the bottom of the LFC dying to be filled. Is now the time to focus on the future before it is forced upon him?

6. The Rookies Nest (Ross - MFC) – 7th Place

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
86	5 th (5 th)	7 th (-2)	7 th (-2)	67 (-19)	7 th	8 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
1 st	4 th	8 th	=7 th	10 th	=6 th	9 th	=6 th	6 th	7 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2359.6	9 th	809.8	6 th	640.0	7 th	651.7	8 th	252.7	9 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.51	4 of 5	Wins	Loses	30% (MFC – 4 th)	Week(s)
		5	9		7, 8, 10, 12 & 14

Back to the MFC and it's The Rookies Nest ~~is on Fire~~. After a disappointing 2024 regular season which gave Ross his first taste of the toilet bowl, he walked away with the 1.01 to salvage some pride. In a somewhat surprising move, Ross has seen the writing on the wall for the 2025 season already and cashed in his only tradeable non-QB asset. Ross must've somehow seen the projected rankings and points suggests he's in for another tough year and got those extra 2026 firsts and a WR unlikely to play all of this season. It's always fun looking at Ross' team, so what to make of this version of the team?

What doesn't change too much for Ross is the quality of his QB room. The QB1, a QB2 and a QB3 means he's never short of a starter. This puts him up there with one of the best QB rooms but somehow sixth in projected points. Ross is off to a decent start as usual – how can you not with Josh Allen?

We've been to the top of the rollercoaster and now we're on the way down when we look at Ross' RB core. He's got an RB1 in his shiny new toy – Ashton Jeanty. After that it's not looking quite so positive. Two RB3s in ETN and Stevenson and a knee-less RB4 who were all at least a tier higher 12 months ago. How quickly fortunes change! No wonder he's decided to start a rebuild. Who is going to cough up the dough to take Jeanty off his hands?

If I was to continue the rollercoaster analogy, which of course I am, then Ross' team would probably best be described as a log flume. We've done the big drop and now we slowly drift back to the station. Let's hope there's some nice animatronics along the way. The sale of Ceedee Lamb leaves him bottom of the expert ranks and 8th in projected points. Jameson Williams is his top ranked WR who just sneaks in as a WR2. Then it's three WR3s, two WR4s and Aiyuk who's ranked as a WR5. Maybe when the injuries and suspensions are shaken off, this could be an alright core. Might be a bit late to hope for a good 2025 overall but that 1.01 might still be an option.

A similar story of mediocrity at TE for Ross. Dallas Goedert is his TE1 but is ranked as a TE2. Following that it's pretty much dross.

With some weaker depth charts it won't come as a surprise that there might be some tough weeks coming up when the byes hit. He's going to be looking at lower tier replacements against opponents in the round robin in weeks 7 (vs Mike) and 8 (vs Gareth) and in the divisional round against 10 (vs Jebus), 12 (vs Lee) and 14 (vs Chris).

With lower half rankings and 9th projected points, it looks like Ross is beginning a streak of toilet bowl appearances. I guess the real questions are: is his team good enough to get that that 1.01 again, how long will the toilet bowl run go on for and could disaster strike and he not end up in the toilet bowl?

7. Falcons (Chris - MFC) – 6th Place

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
75	7 th (6 th)	4 th (+3)	6 th (+1)	76 (+1)	5 th	5 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
5 th	=7 th	4 th	6 th	3 rd	3 rd	2 nd	=3 rd	4 th	5 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2408.2	7 th	652.5	9 th	626.2	8 th	758.2	3 rd	371.3	2 nd

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.30	4 of 5	Wins	Loses	78% (MFC – 3 rd)	Week(s)
		7	7		7, 8 & 10

We're finally out of the losers section and into the playoff teams. First up is the Chris' Felons, sorry Falcons, in the MFC. The rebuild finally coming through with his first playoff appearance since our inaugural season – despite winning every rookie draft! If he outdoes his projections by the same amount this year as last then he'll make it all the way to the conference championship game.....and lose. If we go on projected points then he'll finish 6th again. While Chris doesn't care what the experts think, let's have a look at his team anyway.

At QB we've got a conflict between the experts and the infallible Jebus Rankings™. Experts have him at 5th, JR at joint 7th and projected points at 9th. With the demise of the teeny-towelled-twat, Chris' strongest room is somewhat downgraded. Let's not downplay this room though. With two QB1s, the weeks leading to the byes and the release of Call of Duty makes for a formidable team. For the first time in a while Chase and Burrow will hit the ground running for Chris but it appears that Kyler may need to brush up on his 'no look' passing skills. Or maybe just look where he's throwing the ball would be better?

Not a dissimilar story at RB. Conflict between ECR and JR rankings and a low projected points, it seems that Chris once again is relying on two very good starters – King Henry (RB1) and Kenneth Walker III (RB2) – then not a lot after it. I'm sure everything will be fine relying on the health of a 31-year old and a Kenneth who has never completed a full season. Might need to trade to improve this room or it's another re-re-rebuild.

Onto better news for Chris. Three is the magic number – prediction and projections all align. Led out by two WR1s and three WR3s, there's definitely quality and the first evidence of depth beyond those five obvious starters. These will almost certainly be filling his flex spots every week and maybe even his superflex spot for a couple of weeks, or in case of injuries. If he wants to strengthen elsewhere, this is where the trade bait lies.

At TE we're back to the same old story. Chris has a very very good starting TE with the TE2 in Trey McBride. Once again he has nearly nothing beyond that. It's very nearly Eric All or nothing. It's not quite that bad, he has possibly the lowest YAC pass catcher in NFL history as another TE2. As a result, he has a middle ranking core but very good projected points at TE. Guess what I'm going to say now – that's right, if he has any hope of competing for 17 weeks he might need a bit more help here.

With such a paper-thin squad, there no surprises that he's looking a bit weak in weeks 7 (vs Neil), 8 (vs Rich) and 10 (vs Lee). Weeks 8 and 10 are looking particularly bad but I guess at least it's not so bad in all the other weeks, eh?

Whilst Chris has a very good chance of reaching the playoffs given how far his team is projected ahead of Ross and Neil, his lack of depth at 3/4s of his position groups leaves him 7th in projected points and an injury or two away from another hard season. There is the potential for a run to the playoffs if he gets very lucky with injuries or trades to find some depth to be competitive over a long season. If he can buy a ticket, he can win it but maybe it's time to invest heavily to win now....or is it time to re-build this re-build?

8. So Good It's Hurts (Mike - LFC) – 5th Place

2024				2024
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
98	2 nd (1 st)	6 th (-4)	5 th (-3)	82 (-16)	3 rd	3 rd

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
4 th	=2 nd	6 th	3 rd	3 rd	=6 th	5 th	=3 rd	1 st	3 rd

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2715.2	3 rd	909.1	3 rd	774.8	3 rd	712.0	5 th	319.3	5 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.99	2 of 5	Wins	Loses	95% (LFC – 2 nd)	Week(s)
		9	5		5, 8 & 11

Winning the fifth-place playoff for the LFC was glory hunting new Eagles fan, Mike, and his newly named So Good It's Hurts. When I said he needed a rebrand to move on from Tom I didn't mean for him to reassess his whole life. Anyway, after falling below expectations last year, he's projected for another league contending season with a 95% chance of making the playoffs. Will Mike be able to get back to the top of the LFC or has his window closed with a new kid on the block leapfrogging him?

With what feels like the strongest QB lineups, Mike boasts two QB1s in Hurts and Mahomes and Tua as a low end QB2, he's once again all set here. Lee must be incredibly envious. Beyond that, a fourth starter and QB3, as well as some backups just waiting on an injury to hit.

Mike's RB core hasn't changed in a while and it's starting to show in the rankings. However, a third place in projected score will I guess come as some relief. He still has two RB1s, two RB2s, an RB3 then a wasteland. It's a solid core but there's a few question marks over a couple of them: Can Kyren Williams stay fit, will Montgomery get anything but goal line work and is Swift really the RB1 in Chicago. I mean really?

Mike's WR core seems to have somewhat of a split opinion. The experts have it at 3rd, JR joint sixth and the projected points split the difference at fifth. Mike has a WR1 in Puka, a WR2 in DK Metcalf, one WR3, two WR4, then a not much at all. Also, for the second time he's drafted himself a 'unicorn'

DB who might also play a bit of WR. How did drafting the last unicorn go? It's an ok room. Not setting the world on fire though – shame he missed out on Egbuka.

At TE Mike is middle of the pack just like his finish last year. With a middle of the pack ranking comes middle of the pack players. Hockenson and Ferguson are TE1s with roles in their offences but not setting the world alight. Lastly there is Kyle Pitts Sr who is in a contract year. Will we finally see the potential of the 'unicorn' emerge? He could have a great TE room but he may have an absent one. Who knows?

With options across each position there's not a lot of problems with bye weeks. The just three fairly significant bye week clashes are week 5 (vs Chris), 8 (vs Lee) and week 11 (vs Gareth).

Proud Bird Gang member Mike's certainly got the quality in every position group to make a play for the belt once again. But is it enough to win the LFC now there is actual competition? Now we know Mike can be unfaithful to his team, will he finally consider trading out of some of those blue-chip assets to strengthen in his areas of need? I know a team with some WRs who needs a QB1.

9. J J F J (Lee - MFC) – 4th Place

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
100	1 st (3 rd)	2 nd (-1)	4 th (-3)	83 (-17)	2 nd	4 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
8 th	=9 th	3 rd	=4 th	1 st	1 st	7 th	=6 th	10 th	4 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2544.0	5 th	575.2	10 th	733.8	5 th	962.1	1 st	272.9	8 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.11	3 of 5	Wins	Loses	99% (MFC – 2 nd)	Week(s)
		10	4		5, 8 & 10

Next up is the penultimate MFC side who finished top 4 for the third year in a row. Would he have won more had there not been another MFC setting dynasty records? This side had the potential to be a juggernaut that couldn't be beaten, ranked first overall by the experts for two successive years – where is he now? The experts still have him at number 2 with a 99% chance of making the playoffs but the JR is a bit more circumspect – I wonder why?

Oh, here we are. Lee's QB core is by far the weakest area of his team and the worst QB room in the MFC. We'll see later examples of the inverse and the power that has. He doesn't even have a QB1 to rely on in his ranks. He only has one QB2 - Jared Goff and his newly acquired rookie QB3 Cam Ward. After that a load of backups and dross. While the rest of us do the honourable thing and don't wish injuries on other players, I'm sure Lee is making sacrifices to the football gods that a QB goes down before week 8 so Kirk Cousins or Jameis get one last hurrah.

From that disaster zone, his RB room is an area of relative strength but middling in projected points. In previous years he's have at least two RB1's but age and the need to trade for a starting QB has left him with just one. But that one isn't a bad one - the game breaking CMC who has the potential to put up over 20 points a game and over 40 points on a very good day. He also has the potential to play less than 8 games. Behind CMC he has Kamara and Pollard as RB2s, Brian Robinson Jr, Tyrone Tracy and Jordan Mason as RB3s. There's even more beyond that. It's not the room it once was as but it's still good as long as CMC stays healthy.

From strength to absolute strength as we move onto Lee's WR room. No fewer than four WR1s then a WR2. It's no surprise that this room is unanimously ranked at the top and going to rack up a shit load of points. After that WR2 though it's a loooong old scroll down to Adonai Mitchell at WR78 – a WR7! It's an amazing room which will likely feature week in week out for Lee, perhaps even at superflex, but a couple of injuries could lead to a severe setback.

A different story at TE, I'm afraid. When Lee traded Goedert for Kelce to get his room back up to championship standards (and Ross effectively threw in the towel on 30 August 2023) he will have known a decline was inevitable. Well last year we may have seen the beginning of the end. Seems like the experts agree with a bottom four ranked and projected room. Will Lee need to make a move here to have another crack at not just winning the MFC but to take that coveted belt.

With so many options at RB and WR there aren't too many troublesome bye weeks, except where he's a bit short on the QB side. Perhaps three concerning bye weeks at 5, 8 and 10, against Gareth, Mike and Chris, respectively.

Lee's invested heavily in this team and will want to get more than an MFC title to his name. Has the perfect plan finally come together or will difficulties at QB or an injury to one of those brilliant WRs derail his fourth shot at picking up that belt? Now he could plug all these WRs and RBs into his flex spots and maybe even his superflex spot but the upside of his fourth or fifth WR/RB the same as the upside of another QB1? Maybe something to mull over while other teams race up the rankings with the young and exciting team(s)?

10. breecetie boys (Dave - LFC) – 3rd Place

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
91	4 th (4 th)	5 th (-1)	3 rd (+1)	71 (-20)	6 th	6 th

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
9 th	=7 th	2 nd	=1 st	8 th	5 th	8 ^d	=6 th	7 th	6 th

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2577.2	4 th	682.4	8 th	888.2	2 nd	717.1	4 th	289.5	6 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
3.37	3 of 5	Wins	Loses	72% (LFC – 3 rd)	Week(s)
		7	7		5, 7, 8 & 9

Next up we have the team that won the third-place playoff for the LFC. Is third mid table mediocrity? Let's say no. Well done to bave for escaping mid-table mediocrity for the third time in a row. However, predictions seem to think he'll be back there again at the end of this year. bave has been surprisingly quiet on the trade front this summer. Is he finally seeking some stability and looking to capitalise on a 3rd place finish – or has Neil finally blocked his number? His team is where it is at the time of writing so what to make of it.

It's not a great start at QB. The third-place playoff last year was the battle of the awful QB rooms. Firmly near the bottom of the table in rankings and projected points with Lee. Not surprising given the room. He's also got just two starters: Jordan Love and Trevor Lawrence, both QB2s. After that is a load of backups and hope. Maybe Danny Dimes, who's a QB3, starts for the Colts but I'd doubt he gets a full season. Either some leaps in form or a trade is required to move up the ranks here.

A completely different story at RB. Second in the charts in rankings (joint first in JR) and projected points, bave has one of the strongest RB cores in the league. No fewer than two RB1s, two RB2s, an RB3 and some depth pieces, it's looking good and competitive for bave. When bave won previously his strength at RB was consistency and depth. He's reverted to that winning formula so let's see if lightning strikes twice. In fact he could probably field four RBs every week in his lineup....

....probably because he has to. This WR core is back to that middling, even bottom half of the table WR room. If you're looking for a weakness in his team, here it is. It's not that bad though with three WR2s and one WR3 and some old guys, there's definitely worse WR rooms but there's no one elite to get him over the line when push comes to shove in the playoffs. If his team was in the MFC it would have no hope. As he's in the LFC it should be enough but will it be enough to push his team to glory again?

Another room, another middling rank and projected points. A rookie TE1 in Tyler Warren is his best ranked hope then former dynasty darling Dalton Kincaid, now a mere TE2, who could be the number one target in Buffalo. Are these guys the hope that might kill bave's season. After those guys are no-hopers but maybe rookie Arroyo could be a diamond in the rough? It's a shame all his rookies are on such bad offences.

Looking at bye weeks and bave has avoided problems in the divisional round but has a few weeks where he won't be at full strength in weeks 5 (vs Lee), 7 (vs Alex), 8 (vs Jebus) and 9 (vs Gareth).

bave's quality seems centred in one key position, and that is reflected in his rankings and his odds of even making the playoffs. He's going to need to get that fax machine fired up and Neil unblocked to make a stronger push to challenge Mike and Alex in the LFC before we even consider the MFC. If he keeps it as it is it's going to require a lot of luck otherwise it's another year of mid-table mediocrity.

11. Toolsy Prospects (Alex - LFC) – Runner Up

2024				2024
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
67	8 th (9 th)	3 rd (+5)	2 nd (+6)	100 (+33)	1 st	1 st

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
3 rd	=2 nd	6 th	=4 th	2 nd	2 nd	1 st	1 st	3 rd	2 nd

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2940.1	1 st	942.6	2 nd	745.1	4 th	859.6	2 nd	392.8	1 st

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.33	1 of 5	Wins	Loses	99%	Week(s)
		11	3	(LFC – 1 st)	8, 10, 12 & 14

Despite last season's projected 8th place finish, Alex did a wee bit more than beat expectations. He absolutely smashed them winning the LFC and making it to the championship game. This year he is the undisputed favourite to win the whole thing. He's so much better than every other team that the average drop in power rankings for every other team is 14 points (kudos for Chris on being the only other team to improve their points) and he's 17 points ahead of the 2nd team! This is the largest margin in JADL history. So if this team is so good, what makes it that way?

In what will emerge as a common pattern, Alex has leapt up the rankings at QB up to 3rd (or joint 2nd) with four starters to boast about. And they're not just middling pocket passers either. He has two QB1s including the 3rd overall, a QB2 for those bye-weeks and a QB3 in case of an injury crisis! This also puts him 2nd in projected points for the position. Unlike a few other 'contenders', Alex is kitted out to win starting with the most important position in football.

If there's a chink in Alex's very flashy and fresh amour, it's at RB. What a team this would be if Alex still had Bijan but then he very wisely sold your noble Commissioner's firsts for other assets. Anyway, Alex does have two RB1s in newly acquired Josh Jacobs and the other Chase on the Bengals. These are unfortunately backed up by four RB3s – a mixture of backups and rookies. He's only projected for fourth in points. Maybe those draft picks burning a hole in his pocket are best directed in this direction?

Like at QB, Alex is up at the top of the table again, second only to Lee and his mega-core. Three WR1s in Nabers, JSN and Brian Thomas Jr have had Ceedee Lamb to partner with them. Much like Lee, there's a bit of a gap to a couple of WR3s and a few more beyond that. Something tells me those flex spots are going to be pretty WR heavy.

At TE is where Alex reigns supreme from a positional basis. Why? Well, that mighty 2024 Las Vegas Raiders pick in Brock Bowers, rookie reception record holder and highest projected score helps. He's also got two more TE1s as insurance. Not much more to say really – he's pretty much set barring a real injury crisis.

Despite this powerhouse of a team, it seems that bye-weeks might be a bit of a problem. There are four weeks where teams might get a chance to beat the champion elect - weeks 8, 10, 12 and 14. Can Neil, Rich, Gareth or Jebus take advantage?

Alex has kept it tight and hoped that luck emerged. It looks like those TE, WR and QB picks along with some shrewd trading has turned some Toolsy Prospects into potentially Established Winners.....when he eventually does the deed. He's the man to beat and could still make moves to turn this into an unstoppable juggernaut. Can anyone stop him?

12. Raiders of the Lost Yard (Jebus - MFC) – Champ Champ Champ

2024				2025
Power Ranking	Prediction ECR (JR™)	Regular Season Finish	Overall Finish	Power Ranking	Prediction	Jebus Ranking™
94	3 rd (2 nd)	1 st (+2)	1 st (+2)	80 (-14)	4 th	2 nd

QB		RB		WR		TE		Superflex
FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™	FP	JR™
2 nd	1 st	1 st	=1 st	7 th	9 th	6 th	=6 th	2 nd	1 st

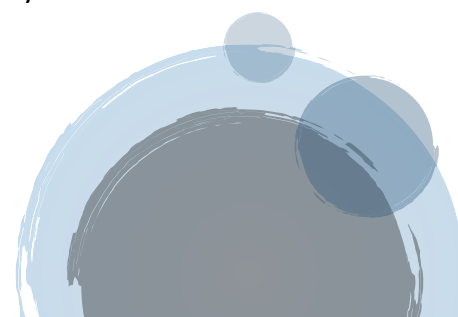

Total		QB		RB		WR		TE
Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank	Points	Rank
2789.0	2 nd	951.4	1 st	921.5	1 st	636.4	9 th	279.7	7 th

JR™ Score	JR™ Tier	Projected Record		Playoff Odds	Bye-pocalypse
2.78	2 of 5	Wins	Loses	99% (MFC – 1 st)	Week(s)
		10	4		6, 7, 9 & 12

Last but most certainly not least is your noble Commissioner who also just happens to be the reigning champion who also just happens to be the champion from the year before. Oh and he was also the champion from the year before too. Does his team still hold up to his hither to dominance or, more accurately, dynasty? Or has the championship window closed and the creditors knocking hard on the door? Can he hide behind the furniture one last time and do the unthinkable?

Well, it's a good start. Second in rankings (1st in JR) and top in projected points isn't what you all want to hear. His team boasts three QB1s in Lamar, Dak and Baker. Mayfield had a great year last year but yet another OC change isn't ideal. Dak has new weapons but can never seem to stay fit. Any injury to Lamar would be a disaster but that would be true for any team. Good start but it can't continue to be a good story, can it?

Sorry gents it is. A team featuring both Saquon and Bijan is unsurprisingly top of the tree in rankings and projections. However, after the RB1 and RB2 we've got to scroll down a bit for the next players. Theres an RB2 in James Conner then two RB3s in Aaron Jones and the injured Joe Mixon. Then there's a couple of rookies and backups. Most of these plyers are old – very very old. What the hell is he going to do in future years?

You'll all be delighted to hear, that after two top rooms it's a real drop at WR. Ranked 9th in JR and projected points (7th by ECR) it's a sad state of affairs. It is however top of the charts in one regard – age. His top receiver remains the man whose infidelity and virility knows no bounds. This seems to now be extending to his team which he appears to want out of. After that WR2, your Commissioner/Champ Champ Champ also has newly acquired Mike Evans, another old man and WR2, a WR4 in Cooper Kupp and even more old guys even further down the ranks. It's not exactly a championship winning lineup and is in desperate need of improvement. Those flex spots seem unlikely to feature any WRs unless disaster hits.

TE is a slightly better but not the room it once was nor in the top half of rankings or projections. He still has MAndrews as his TE1 but he is suffering from an influx of new hotstuff tight ends and a Ravens offence where he is no longer the forefront of their passing game. After that he has three TE2s and even more after that. Plenty of starters but not setting the world alight again.

With a couple of depth issues and a reliance on the Baltimore Ravens, there are a few weeks where your champion may be more beatable. Weeks 6 (vs Rich), 7 (vs Lee), 9 (vs Neil) and 12 (vs Neil).

Like Aaron Rodgers, Jebus may feel he wants to cement his legacy by adding another ring to his collection. But also like Rodgers, his team isn't getting any younger. At fourth in rankings overall (2nd in JR) and second in projected points, it looks like it's now or never to win again as these players are going to age out very soon. It looks like future Jebus is going to have a major rebuild on his hands. He still has the opportunity to sell what he can get for his better players and get ahead of that debt before it becomes a mortgage he can't pay off. But will he?

13. Conclusion

Well done for making it this far. May I be the first to congratulate Alex on winning his first belt, retaining the LFC trophy and getting that first legit star on the Lombardi Conference logo. A well-deserved victory after a textbook rebuild. Something for us all to aspire to.....well maybe except for your noble Commissioner – that dynasty might be the thing you all want to actually aspire to repeat.

Anyway, don't take what I've said too much to heart. What do I know? Maybe do take my rankings a bit more to heart than the experts but given both levels of inaccuracy maybe take them with a pinch of salt too. There's still time now and in season to change your fortunes – whether that's to win this year or beyond.

In any case, enjoy the highs and lows of another Dynasty season and remember: in the end there can be only one glorious champion.

